Ibanez Writes on Europe's Need of Husbands, a Serious One in France

Novelist Praises French Woman as an Ideal Wife, but Condems the Dowry System—"Courageous Independence in America."

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ

A CRY of alarm has just been raised in France.

A famous scientist, Dr. Paul Carnot, of the Faculty of Medicine, has been looking into vital statistics of Europe, and particularly of his own country, and he finds * * * something terrifying. He finds that there are more women in Europe than men. He finds that in France alone there are two million women who remain without husbands to match them. There are not enough men to go round.

"Out of every three women at present living in France," says the doctor, "one is condemned to spinsterhood."

That is a sad prospect for the women. But it is just as bad for the nation. Those 2,000,000 women would, if they were married, produce not less than 6,000,000 children to strengthen the coming generation. Thus, in the next 30 years, without a struggle, silently, save for some casual reference in the scientific press, France will be losing four times the number of her soldiers who were killed in the late war.

In Europe, generally, the last five years have seen excessive mortality among males, while the death rate among women has continued at normal. Sex equilibrium has been disturbed throughout the Old World. We need not say that there are too many women. It would be fairer to say that there are too few men.

What is to be done in this crisis?

Uncle Sam to the Rescue.

There is no doubt that one cause of the unpopularity of the United States in Europe is jealousy. Uncle Sam has everything in abundance that the Old World lacks tragically—dollars, food, raw materials, equipment—and also bachelors.

People who claim to know, and they come with figures in hand, assert that just the opposite situation prevails in the United States. There, they say, more men than women can be counted. Statisticians fix their eyes especially on the states of the west, and insist that in these regions the lack of women is as keenly felt as the surplus of women is felt in France and Europe.

I cannot vouch for the accuracy of such figures myself, when they relate to California. But I do know that they tell the truth about South America. There are fewer women than men in all the Latin republics of the New World. White women are in peculiar demand, and that is why the women of Spanish America are much more esteemed and sought after than women usually are in Europe.

Science, at any rate, is not troubled by practical considerations. The doctor adjusting his spectacles to his nose reads the figures on the left-hand page marked "Europe," and those on the right-hand page marked "U. S. A." He subtracts the smaller from the larger, and, drawing his conclusion, begins his article for the learned journal. Its title is "Matrimonial Emigration."

Matrimonial Emigration.

"The solution," writes Prof. Wise, "is simple. In fact, it is incredible that no economist has thought of it before. In Europe there are more women than men. In the United States there are more men than women. Let us transport the excess of men in America to Europe, and marry off our girls. The men should come to the women, because it is the part of gallantry for men to make the first advances."

There is no doubt that this solution would be an agreeable one to Europe. I can imagine an item in some New York trade journal: "Yesterday the steamer Hymen sailed for the Havre with a cargo of 2000 high grade California fiances, consigned to Paris, where this article is in great demand." Or even it would be easier to imagine advertisements for such wares in the papers of France or Germany, where the supply of husbands is so far surpassed by the demand.

Unfortunately reality would conflict with the professor's dream. Marriage is not the only thing in a man's life. Marriage means work; and a bachelor will hardly go looking for employment in a country of strange people and language just because a hundred women would be ready to welcome him as though he were a Prince Adorable. Furthermore, even if he did, the country of the wife would not be the gainer. Wives take the nationality of their husbands, not husbands that of wives. If some adventurous Westerner in Montana should come spouse-hunting in Paris, he would take his wife off with him on an early steamer.

In spite of these rapid calculations, the task of finding satisfactory life employment for 2,000,000 French women remains unsolved. And, taking Europe as a whole, there are 6,000,000 of them who gaze dreamily out over the ocean, beyond which they can see, in their mind's eye, each American woman mischievously making sport of six men among whom she has only to choose a husband.

Some humorists, more distinguished for wit than scruples, have proposed that the Government temporarily legalize polygamy to solve the problem of these husbandless women. But other humorists have shown the fallacy of this proposal. In their view, though Europe has given evidence of untold heroism on the field of battle, its more glorious heroes would blanch at the prospect of having to live with two wives at once. There is a limit to the most sturdy human endurance.

If it were a question of American women, the problem of what to do with 2,000,000 old maids would not be so serious.

The American woman is trained to look out for herself in life, and she is not so dependent on men. There is a tradition of feminine self-reliance in the United States which goes back several generations.

Most American girls, to be sure, look forward to married life and are eager to become mothers and rear families. But there is also a numerous minority which does not take spinsterhood as a hardship at all. A woman can earn a living quite easily in America, much more easily, at any rate, than is the case with the European woman. I found many unmarried women in the United States who were proud of their economic independence, claiming that they were better able to live the kind of life they wanted to lead than others who were tied down to husbands.

Horror for the Spinster.

In Europe, on the contrary, the only career open to a girl is marriage. Though the woman who never married and is never blessed with the joys of motherhood may try to deceive herself with all sorts of reasoning, she really considers her lot, when she is truly honest with herself, as practically intolerable.

The novels that are written in Europe, especially those written in France, do much to lead the general public astray on such questions. French writers are fond of describing exceptional women, of wild, untamed individualities, who try either to dispense with the moral rules of society or rise superior to them. But this woman of the European romance is an imaginary person. If one such ever existed, she was an isolated case. Ninety-nine out of every hundred women in Europe want a husband above all else, and the greatest pride of the average woman here is to be able to point to a family all her own.

Not everybody, perhaps, believes that this is so.

It seems as though the peoples of the world feel an obligation to misunderstand each other, and say unpleasant things about every other nation. We are all inclined to attribute the noblest virtues to our own country and to other countries (which we know very little about really) the worst defects. And this is as true when the subject under discussion is women as it is in the case of men. Female geography is as badly known, in general, as male geography.

I suppose the reason why such strange ideas circulate in a given country about the women of all other countries is that people know only the woman who travels, the woman who is seen away from home.

When most Europeans think of an American woman, they picture the type—and they call the type the "Americaine"—who is to be found wandering about the great cities on the Continent. Her pockets are full of money, and she spends it by the handful, leading a life of unrestrained luxury. The good housewife of Europe at once leaps to a conclusion. The American woman needs a barrel of money to live on. Look out for her, young man! She always brings her husband to ruin! If you tell her that in the United States there are plenty of economical wives—as there are everywhere else—who help their husbands to get on in business or work, who devote themselves tenderly to their children, and think only of their homes, this European critic of the United States looks at you in surprise or with incredulity, as though you were telling her something impossible.

American women may take some consolation in the fact that they have notions to correct of European women in general. The European woman that Americans know is either the itinerant artist or the heroine of some spicy novel. So far as I could judge from opinions I heard expressed in America, every Italian woman was supposed to have a fine singing voice, and a gift for music. Every Spanish girl was expected to be a good dancer. And as for the French woman, she was always pictured with a cup of champagne in her hand.

French Woman Ideal Wife.

Such ideas, of course, are as absurd as is the European notion of the American women

The French woman is the best home-maker under the sun. The French drama and novel, to make their feminine characters attractive, have cast great discredit on the real French woman.

A celebrated German did the women of France far greater justice than any French novelist ever dared to do.

After his victory in 1870, Bismarck declared that the only thing he envied France was her women. And he was sorry he could not take them all off to Germany as part of the indemnity.

Bismarck knew that the French woman represented the spirit of saving and economy in the country, the ideal of the well ordered family, the sense of national dignity, the capacity for sacrifice. That the wily old Prussian was right was demonstrated again in the recent war, where it was the women, more than anybody else, who kept up the fighting spirit that won out.

The French woman who goes abroad as a chorus girl is one thing. The wife in the French home is quite another. The girl whom the foreigner sees in his four nights in Parisian resorts has nothing whatever to do with the workingmen's wives of the manufacturing quarters of the French capital, nor with the wives and mothers who direct the French homes of the country or the big cities.

Indeed, the French woman's love for her home goes almost to the point of becoming a defect. Her excessive fondness for her children, her devotion to the quite humdrum existence around her household often leads to narrow-mindedness, and makes her hostile to change, to anything that can alter the life she has become accustomed to. But it is bad for her, as an individual, too. She comes to feel a complete submersion in her husband's lot. She is unable to get along in life without him. Very few French women "make good" when left to themselves. They rarely develop independence enough to dispense with the protection and support of a man.

That is why my heart goes out to these 2,000,000 French women who

Prisoner 9653, Candidate for President, States His Creed--How He Would Punish Plutocrats

DECLARES HE BELONGS IN PRISON WITH THOSE WHO SUFFER

In Interview Given to Norman Hapgood, Socialist Reviews Thoughts of His Youth Which Come to Him in Prison.

Greatly Interested in Revolution in Italy, Whose Slow Movement He Believes to Forecast Its Success—Reviews His Life.

Debs Would Have Those Who Are Responsible, See Their Handiwork

"I BELONG in prison. I belong where men are made to suffer for the wrongs committed against them by a brutalizing system. I have talked about this thing and these social conditions all my life, and now the fates have given to me the opportunity to practice what I have preached. I belong to this stratum of society.

"I would not harm a hair in the head of any human being on earth, but, before I pass beyond, I would like to have all the plutocrats, the profiteers, the exploiters of labor and their mistresses in their satins and their jewels—all those who believe this is a just social system and who support it—to sit in a great grandstand, and I would then parade before their seeing eyes this pageant of misery—the criminals, the sick, the halt and the blind.

"I think that any man or woman who could witness such a spectacle without feeling his and her just share of social responsibility for it all must surely have a heart of granite, and have become as gross and as dehumanized as they make out these poor souls to be."
—Eugene V. Debs.

The Post-Dispatch herewith prints the final installment of the interview which Norman Hapgood, former United States Minister to Denmark and famous editor, author and critic, obtained in the Atlanta penitentiary with Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for the presidency, who is 'Prisoner No. 9653."

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.

(Copyright, 1920.)

Now, gentle reader, stop and think. It makes little difference perhaps whether this one noble American dies in a prison cell. It may make a great difference that we are a reactionary, intolerant nation and that the love of justice is not in us, rather the cowardice that brings about the very evil it would escape.

What will the historian of 2020 say of us? I think something not unlike the following: "In America the immediate results of the great war were very different from those that came a quarter of a century after. In 1919 and 1920 the reaction and oppression that usually follow wars were at their height. Every explosion, every labor trouble, was used as an excuse for persecution and the suppression of opinion. This bigotry and use of force, social, financial and governmental, must be looked upon as a reason, probably the principal reason, that industrial troubles were so frequent during the succeeding years, and that the industrial revolution, when it began to take definite shape, was so much more a class matter than it might have been in a country as prosperous as the United States if there had been a little more political intelligence. In the second and third years immediately succeeding the war the most famous of the many cases of oppression was the retention in prison of Eugene Debs, the Socialist candidate for the presidency. It is clear to historians now that he was obviously nominated because he was in prison.

"All sorts of subterfuges and technical excuses were given for the persecution, but they need not be taken seriously by the historian of the twenty-first century. The outstanding fact is not the personality of the Attorney-General, or the concentration of the President's mind on other things, but public indifference about the most thoroughly established laws of political freedom. There was a dull resentment everywhere, and shockingly little thought. The newspaper reports of the Russian revolution mostly look to us now like rewritten melodramatic versions of the descriptions, more than a century and a quarter earlier, of the Revolution in France. Conditions in Germany, England and the smaller countries of Europe were wholly misunderstood largely from lack of interest.

Socialism in America.

"Although even then the Socialist parties in most countries were powerful, and were looked upon with hope by many observers who had no interest in the doctrine made famous by Karl Marx, Socialism in America was still described in the most schoolboy terms, as if it were mere envy and disorder, a foreign disease from which America could be protected by boycott of the idea. The Italian revolution, which to us of a century later has such an interest, caused a flood of stereotyped editorials about an order, which was increasingly unpopular in America as it progressed. Every setback that it received, notably in the dramatic temporary reaction of 1921, was hailed with relief in phrases of high-sounding ignorance. It was in a different form the Russian story retold, and the precursor to what happened in Spain, Germany, Holland, Great Britain and over the world. The American mind scarcely began to study the situation in its essential elements until the campaign of 1922, but the campaign of that year, and especially of 1924, showed that a real movement had begun."

The historian's passing reference to the revolution in Italy reminds me that Debs foresees its slow course, "Before the war," he said, as the end of our hour grew near, "practically no real Socialist thought of questioning the soundness of Karl Marx. But Marx never foresaw anything like what is happening in Italy now. He never foresaw a situation in which there was no general revolution, but where workmen in individual factories simply took over those factories. I am afraid it will fall soon, because I fear those who will hold their ground are too few. The majority will yield to talk about moderation. The trouble with such words is that they are often used successfully to bring about an abandonment of a great duty. It was this appeal that kept the workingmen in the great nations from preventing the war of 1914."

Debs Case in History.

Now, before giving the parting picture of Prisoner 9653, beloved by every other number in the penitentiary, let me put in a few general considerations about this case. It will stand reflection, since it is one of the outstanding governmental crimes of modern times. This is not the occasion for me to discuss the general philosophy of Mr. Wilson, or why his mind, which is concentrated on a few essential cases, leaves so much of importance to subordinates, and thus lands us in certain policies of Palmer, Burleson and State Department officials. The only aspect of Mr. Wilson's history that is essential to a brief survey of the Debs case is that he left it to the Attorney-General, with the result that it deserves to rank in history with such celebrated cases as those of Wilkes, Ferrer and Dreyfus.

Debs himself thinks a great deal of the part that martyrdom has played in history. He likes to refer to Socrates and to Jesus, and if he were addressing a more special audience he might bring in Copernicus, Galileo, Joan of Arc, Huss, Savonarola and the Salem witches, while discussing the solemn hostility shown by the pillars of society to Descartes, Darwin and Pasteur. He might point out that in one country, the country that in the last century has shown the most original genius, the three foremost names, Pushkin, Tolstoy and Dostoievski, were censored by the Government, and two of them were imprisoned. In that way did the Czars prepare the way for Lenine.

Debs Reviews His Life.

I have said that while Debs has won, by hard work and serious concern, a considerable degree of book education, his real education comes from what he has seen in his own life, and this is what he has seen:

"Standing here this morning I recall my boyhood. At 14 I went to work in the railroad shops; at 16 I was firing a freight engine on a railroad. I remember all the hardships, all the privations of that earlier day, and from that time until now my heart has been with the working class. I could have been in Congress long ago; I have preferred to go to prison. The choice has been deliberately made. I could not have done otherwise. I have no regret.

"In the struggle—the unceasing struggle—between the toilers and producers and their exploiters I have tried as best I might to serve those among whom I was born, with whom I expect to share my lot until the end of my days.

"I am thinking this morning of the men in the mills and factories. I am thinking of the women who, for a paltry wage, are compelled to work out their lives; of the little children who, in this system, are robbed of their childhood and in their early, tenders years, are seized in the remorseless grasp of Mammon and forced into the industrial dungeons, there to feed the machines, while they themselves are being starved body and soul. I can see them dwarfed, diseased, stunted, their little lives broken and their hopes blasted, because, in this high noon of our twentieth-century civilization, money is still so much more important than human life. Gold is God and rules in the affairs of men.

"An Outgrown System."

"The little girls, and there are a million of them in this country—this, the most favored land beneath the bending skies, a land in which we have vast areas of rich and fertile soil, material resources in inexhaustible abundance, the most marvelous productive machinery on earth, millions of eager workers ready to apply their labor to that machinery to produce an abundance for every man, woman and child—and if there are still many millions of our people who are victims of poverty, whose life is a ceaseless struggle all the way from youth to age, until at least death comes to their rescue and stills the aching heart and lulls the victim to dreamless sleep, it is not the fault of the Almighty, it can't be charged to nature; it is due entirely to an outgrown social system that ought to be abolished not only in the interest of the working class but in a higher interest—of all humanity."

In very truth, that is why Debs, with his 65 years, his gentle service, and his kindly face, wears a prison garb today. And it is why the other men in his cell, and in other cells, truly reverence him as they do.

What does he think of this prison system, as applied not to him, but to the unfortunates for whom it was designed? He says: "A thief making shoes in a penitentiary is engaged in more useful and, therefore, more honest labor than a 'free stonemason at work on a palace whose foundations are laid in the skulls and bones and cemented in the sweat and blood of 10,000 victims of capitalistic exploitation. In both cases the labor is compulsory. The stonemason would not work for the trust magnate were he not compelled to."

And Debs once said to his friend, Karsner: "Only my clay is here, and that might just as well be here as anywhere else. I can live here with my soul at peace; I can still live on the increment of the love of my comrades and friends in the world outside these walls. But these men—and I know many of them by their first names now—were once workmen. For the most part they have been used and exploited. When they had nothing more to give, had given their all—soul and body—and strove at last to make the best of a bad bargain and erred, society then put them out of sight. They were no good any longer. They are Pariahs. They are unclean!

"Punishing Him We Deformed."

"Think of the monstrous crime of punishing the brother we have deformed for the wrong he has suffered at our hands! Think of torturing his body and deforming his soul for having had the awful misfortune to be the dehumanized victim of our own inhumanity. Is it any wonder that in a perverted, wicked system the basest passions are aroused, hate and lust fill the world, and fire and slaughter ravage the race?

"I belong in prison. I belong where men are made to suffer for the wrongs committed against them by a brutalizing system. I have talked about this thing and these social conditions all my life, and now the fates have given to me the opportunity to practice what I have preached. I belong to this stratum of society.

"I would not harm a hair in the head of any human being on earth, but before I pass beyond, I would like to have all the plutocrats, the profiteers, the exploiters of labor and their mistresses in their satins and their jewels—all those who believe this is a just social system and who support it—to sit in a great grandstand, and I would then parade before their seeing eyes this pageant of misery—the criminals, the sick, the halt and the blind.

"I think that any man or woman who could witness such a spectacle without feeling his and her just share of social responsibility for it all must surely have a heart of granite, and have become as gross and as dehumanized as they make out these poor souls to be."

What Other Men Think.

What have other men thought of this prisoner, this convict now in prison garb? Brand Whitlock holds a post of honor in the world, and he has compared the movement in this country headed by Debs to the movement that was headed by Lincoln in 1860. Here are a few lines from that true poet and beloved individual, James Whitcomb Riley:

Go, search the earth from end to end,
And where's a better allround friend
Than Eugene Debs?—a man that stands
And just holds out in his two hands
As warm a heart as ever beat
Betwixt here and the Mercy Seat!

And another American poet, Edmund Vance Cook, has written:

We may bind and make you mute,
We may stripe you in the suit
Of the meanest felon. Aye,
We may scourge and crucify,
But your soul, sublime, serene,
Who can crucify, Eugene?

As I left the prison my heart was heavy, and yet underneath there was exultation. It was heavy that this persecution of a rare spirit, so courageous and so good, should come to pass in my country, in the full light of the Twentieth Century. It resulted that there are millions of men like Debs, unspoiled by luxury, unafraid; perhaps, if you like, too simple in their beliefs, who yet are fit to bring the world to a higher life, because they have known hardship and evil and seek the good. I had been in jail—yes, but in the presence of a martyr, who may die soon, but whose spirit will go marching on.

Debs stood there in the hall. He had stepped quickly and lightly from the reception room and then back a few steps toward the unseen depths of the prison. He was mingled with other men, but I saw nothing of them. His hand was uplifted, that smile was on his face. His hand was uplifted, partly like a benediction, partly like the greeting of a soldier to a friend. To me it was in fact a benediction; in truth, a greeting from a friend.

A woman and child waiting to see some common criminal were sitting in the hall. What of the father? I left the awesome building, and the huge door swung closed behind me.

Idealism of Women Will Save League Regardless of Men's Vote, Woman Leader Declares

Mrs. George Bass Asserts New Voters Will Support Democratic Party Because It Advocates Policies Women Believe In.

By ROWLAND THOMAS,

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.

"THE next President of the United States will be a Democrat, because in 1920 millions of women will have the presidential suffrage, and will use it to support the Democratic party."

The speaker was one of the three chief political leaders of the United States.

If you are old enough, you may remember that Winston Churchill once wrote a novel which centered around the fortunes of a political leader rejoicing in the name of Bass. The person who spoke to me bore the same name. But there all parallelism ceased. The prognomen of the novelist's hero was Jethro. This one's—for every downright prophet is perforce a hero—was Elizabeth. His protagonist was a man; this was a woman. His was in large part imaginary; this one very real. I do not exaggerate when I call her one of the three responsible political leaders of the United States, for Elizabeth Bass—or Mrs. George Bass, as her cards read—as chairman of the Woman's Bureau of the Democratic National Committee is among the women of the country what George H. White and Will Hays are among the men.

"But why?" I asked her, "are you so sure the women will support your party?"

"Because," she answered, "the program of the Democratic party embodies the social and political ideals women believe in, because it is the forward looking party, and because, under the leadership of President Wilson, its platform of 1912 has grown into a world-wide vision of practical idealism, crystallized around the League of Nations. Women are pacifists at heart. They believe in the League of Nations. They, therefore, find little that is congenial in any group which stands in opposition to it. Political leaders who do not take that fact into account are, to say the least, short-sighted."

Up that that point Mrs. Bass had been intensely serious. Now her speech was lighted by a flash of fun.

26,000,000 Women Voters.

"Women are as human as everybody else is," she remarked, "and another reason they will have for supporting the Democratic party is that it alone has shown itself awake to the fact that 26,000,000 of women now are voters, and it has made intelligent, cheerful provision to give them partnership in the political life of the country. The respective activities of the two national committees in the last presidential campaign illustrate clearly what I mean.

"When 1916 came, if the Republicans were aware at all that 4,500,000 women would have the right to vote in the election, they paid small attention to that new voting factor. The Democrats, on the other hand, seemed to realize that while women would not be a political unit in voting, they certainly would crystallize about certain centers, and that the question of human values and social welfare then at issue would preoccupy their attention. Straightway the Democratic National Committee asked a woman to be chairman of the 12 States where women were to vote.

"This woman came from Illinois, the first State which granted suffrage to its women. She had long been active in the civic affairs of Chicago. Since 1913, when she first had full rights as a citizen she had taken an active part in local and State politics. She happened to be myself, but that is of small importance. The point is, that she was a woman, and she had practical political experience gained from political activity among both men and women. To her the Democratic National Committee entrusted the responsibility for its special woman's campaign activities.

Ten Out of Twelve for Wilson.

"The Republicans, on the other hand, for a good while did absolutely nothing. And then they selected a man"—again Mrs. Bass' eyes quickened with the flash of fun which is characteristic of them—"and a man from a non-voting State! They put him in charge of the women's department of their Western bureau. That was their beginning, and from that time on if a mistake could possibly be made, they made it, including that historic Golden Special which we found it so easy to ditch. The result—10 out of the 12 suffrage States gave their vote to Mr. Wilson, a mass sufficient to swing the majority in the electoral college.

"So far as women are concerned," Mrs. Bass went on, "the Democrats are therefore the original occupants of the front row, and since their very sensible beginning have further shown good sense by cheerfully and of their own accord, taking us into full and free partnership with the men. Their first revolutionary step was to give me, as chairman of the Women's Bureau of the National Committee, a seat and vote in the Executive Committee of that body. Their next was to see that every State had woman representatives. Every State in the Union now has a national committeewoman and that woman has a vote in the meetings of the National Committee."

"How far has the Republican party gone in that direction?" I asked Mrs. Bass.

Why She Is a Democrat.

"Just as far," she answered, "as you would expect a party which has only destructive and backward-looking criticism to offer as an issue, a party controlled and directed by reactionaries. And that," Mrs. Bass concluded abruptly, "is one reason why I am a Democrat."

"But that is not the only reason?"

"No," she said, "my grandfather and father were sturdy Democrats and my brother has always been one. Such family tendencies are bound to affect a woman, just as they always have affected men. But beyond that I found when I had to make my choice of parties that the fundamental principles of government for which the Democratic party stood were principles I believed in, while I disbelieved in high tariff, special privileges, the upholding of vested rights as against the rights and needs of the whole people—to name only three points which are part of Republican history. So I concluded it was my job to join the Democratic party, to go to its primaries and to urge other women to join it and go to its primaries."

"You speak of having had to make a choice of parties? You did not consider the possibility of remaining a nonpartisan, independent voter?"

"I did not," said Mrs. Bass, "because I could not do that and get the full value out of my vote as a civic tool, which is what the vote should be for every woman. Our whole government is founded on a basis of political partisanship, of group action. The selection of a proper candidate is just as important, from the point of view of public welfare and good government, as his subsequent election. And under our primary laws you have to attach yourself to a party if you are to have any voice in the choice of candidates. What won the vote for women was their constantly increasing interest and share in the local affairs of their communities. Again, for illustration, I go back to my own case, which was the case of many another woman in Illinois and in the other states.

Activity of Chicago Woman's Club.

"For years I had been a member of one of the most active and practical groups of women in the world, the Chicago Woman's Club, and had had a special interest in the little Reform Department, so-called, of that club, because of the problems it was attempting to solve. From its activities finally grew the first Juvenile Court law ever written into the statute books of any State—a piece of legislation conceived and carried out by women and since copied the world over. From it came successively the child labor law, the compulsory education law, the first domestic relations court, and finally the morals court, the newest and most advanced of all Chicago's attempts to deal with an age-old problem on a basis of humanity, justice and common sense. Before women ever got the vote in Illinois they were a powerful, practical force which had to be counted within the political life of the State. They had political ideals and they had had actual experience in the work of bringing them to fruition. When the vote came it was for them only what I have already called it, a powerful civic tool, vastly increasing their powers of achievement. You will find them using it that way hereafter."

"And how seriously will they use it? How far have women entered into the active political life of the country?"

Easier to Organize Women.

"The average woman," said Mrs. Bass, "goes about as far in politics as the average man does—and that is as far as voting. But you must remember two things. It is easier to organize women than it is men. Organization moves faster with them. And they have more time to give to public and civic affairs than men have. So they are far less likely to regard voting as a mere inci-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Senator Harding's Labor Record.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Recently the writer noted a cartoon in your valuable paper depicting Senator Harding on his front porch. It was labeled "Wanted, an Idea." This cartoon was to the point, but the label should have read: Wanted, an original and progressive idea.

I challenge any of Senator Harding's ardent supporters to produce even one original idea of his that was progressive. We contend that he is a reactionary of the pronounced type, looking backward, not forward. If Lot's wife had looked backward as often as Senator Harding has she would have been a mountain instead of a pillar of salt.

When the new and progressive Constitution of Ohio was before the people of that State we find Candidate Harding running true to form by opposing with all of his reactionary might its adoption. We take it for granted that the "interests" were against it. On the other side we find that Gov. Cox was arrayed with the people and using his time, energy, power, intelligence and influence in favor of its adoption. He won, because he is in sympathy with the people and he is a progressive and has the confidence of the masses.

We find that in the late presidential primaries Senator Harding's majority in his own State was negligible, and it is self-evident if Hiram Johnson had opposed him in Ohio, Senator Harding would have lost his own State to a rank outsider.

When the name of that able and humanitarian lawyer, Louis D. Brandeis, was before the United States Senate for confirmation as a member of the Federal Supreme Court, the members of organized labor all over the country were supplicating and appealing to the Senators for favorable action, as it was recognized that the sinister influence of corporations, trusts and monopolies were putting up the meanest fight that had ever been staged in the history of the country in the Senate against the appointee of the President for Supreme Judge.

The records prove that Senator Harding voted against confirmation of Mr. Brandeis and has since stated that he was too "radical." Senator Harding, no doubt, on account of his frame of mind, confuses progressiveness and humanitarianism with radicalism; he sees through colored glasses.

On Sept. 2, 1916, when the Adamson eight-hour law passed the Senate, Candidate Harding did not vote, he was not paired, he simply resorted to that cowardly method used by "trimmers" and "ducked."

This law was sponsored by President Wilson on account of the railroad officials refusing to grant the demands of the representatives of the four organizations of the transportation department of the railroads, after the demands for time and one-half for overtime had been waived by the men at the request of President Wilson.

President Wilson had declared to the world that he was for the eight-hour work day because it was right. Later on the Federal Supreme Court decided by a vote of four to three that the law is constitutional, Judge Brandeis voted with the majority.

On Dec. 20, 1919, we find Senator Harding voted for the Cummins railroad bill. This was the most drastic bill as far as organized labor was concerned that had ever passed a lawmaking body in the United States and possibly in the world. It contained a penalty clause that would permit a man to be sentenced to jail for striking.

This law would have destroyed the protective feature of organized labor, virtually putting handcuffs and shackles on the members, leaving them absolutely helpless and at the mercy of tyrannical and unscrupulous employers. Turning back the hand of progress as far, as far as labor is concerned, 100 years.

It is a known fact that organized labor without "teeth" cannot secure equity for its members. Labor organizations all over the country protested against this law. Regardless of these protests, Senator Harding of Ohio and Senator Spencer of Missouri voted for it.

It is almost inconceivable that a sane member of the human family who toils for a wage in the industrial world, whose happiness depends on the wages he receives and the hours he works and who recognizes the equity and advantage of collective bargaining would vote for Harding for President and Spencer for Senator from Missouri.

Organized labor is as much human necessity as liberty is a divine gift, and all that has been wrought through the prophetic thought of the founders of these organizations must be defended.

A very effective way to defend them is with the ballot.

THE DECIDING QUESTION.

We repeat that the cause of the peace covenant is won before the jury of the American people. An overwhelming majority of the voters want the peace treaty ratified and want the United States to enter the League of Nations on fair terms.

The people are convinced that this is the only path of duty and honor and peace and progress and stable prosperity.

This opinion is rapidly crystallizing in the public mind. The conspiracy to discredit and kill the League in the popular mind has failed.

Leading Republicans admit the overwhelming popular sentiment for the League and the party mistake in fighting it by trying to assure Republican and independent supporters of the League that Senator Harding, despite his assurances to Senator Borah and Johnson, will accept the peace covenant with modifications and will agree to ratify the peace treaty.

Former President Taft condemns the whole program of his party and his candidate for a new association and a separate peace with Germany, as dishonorable and impossible. He says Mr. Harding will be compelled to accept the ratification of the Versailles peace treaty and covenant as the only practical and honorable policy.

Mr. Root, Mr. Wickersham, Mr. Hughes, President Lowell of Harvard, Mr. Hoover and other leading Republicans, recognizing the necessity of saving the party and saving the League, published a statement taking Mr. Taft's view. They try to convince the people that Mr. Harding will accept the treaty and the League with certain changes and submit it to the Senate.

The question is, no longer, shall the treaty and the covenant be ratified, but what shall the voters who want the League do to assure its ratification? Can a Republican or independent voter support Senator Harding with an assurance that he will not scrap the League as he said he would?

This is the vital question in the minds of millions of Americans who want the League, but want to vote the Republican ticket.

These independent and Republican voters, supporters of the peace covenant, with its invaluable guarantees of peace, are taking counsel of their consciences and are weighing Senator Harding in the balance.

Will Mr. Harding carry out his promise to Senators Borah and Johnson to reject and scrap the League, or will he repudiate that promise, if he is elected, and stand with Messrs. Taft, Root, Wickersham for the League?

If Mr. Harding is sincere in his assurances to Borah and Johnson, he will "scrap" the League.

If he is insincere, as his Republican apologists imply, is he trustworthy? Is he a fit man to be intrusted with the presidency and the vital task of shaping the policy of America toward the great movement upon which world peace and civilization depend?

Is Senator Harding trustworthy?

Marshall Stimson of California, Senator Johnson's former campaign manager, having decided that he cannot trust Mr. Harding, put the question in this form:

> Senator Harding is either sincere or he is not sincere, when he says that Senator Johnson's Los Angeles speech shows that Johnson is in accord with the Republican platform and the Republican candidate. If sincere, then Mr. Harding wishes to scrap the League and make a separate peace with Germany, a foolish and shameful policy that I cannot indorse.
> Of course, if he is not sincere on a great issue like this, I could not deem him fit for President.

Mr. Stimson says he will support Gov. Cox, because he knows where he stands and what he will do, because Mr. Cox has courageously and decisively declared he is for the League. Everyone knows Gov. Cox's position. There is not the slightest doubt about him. He is for the peace treaty and the covenant, with satisfactory reservations.

Can supporters of the League afford to take a chance on Senator Harding's insincerity?

Can voters afford to risk the League and the presidency in the hands of a wobbler whose insincerity is the hope and plea of the most eminent leaders of his party?

This is now the deciding question of the campaign.

RAILROAD MEN LOSING THEIR JOBS.

Reductions in railroad employes are reported from many points. Those discharged in railroad shops are said to number a considerable percentage of the total so employed. Lesser numbers among maintenance men and operating force are also losing their jobs.

However, nothing has been more painstakingly impressed on us in recent months than that the roads emerged from Government control in a terribly run-down condition. Tracks had depreciated, we were told, and rolling stock was sadly in need of repairs. The discharges can hardly be due to financial stress. Until August the roads had a generous guaranteed return paid from the taxpayers' money and since then the public has had to bear a heavy burden in increased passenger fares and freight charges, some part of which was imposed with the very idea of providing funds for physical rehabilitation.

Why are one-third and, in some instances, one-half of the shop men laid off, if rolling stock is in such deplorable condition? Why, with traffic continuing large, are other forces reduced, if right of way needs are so pressing?

Or were the roads maintained in much better shape under Government administration than the private managers and owners were willing to admit? Perhaps the roads do not need all that was granted in that late increase in rates.

THE BRITISH COAL STRIKE.

The statement that one of its objects is the abolition of the British monarchy may add to world interest in the strike of 1,000,000 English coal miners, but we may be sure that in the present temper of British opinion no movement will get very far along that line.

Interest enough attaches to the strike as an effort, not merely to add 50 cents to the wages of the strikers, but to bring the price of coal to the consumer down to $3.50 a ton. A walkout that includes any such altruistic aim is sharply differentiated from American coal strikes, is, indeed, unique among strikes in general. If Bolshevism has crept in among the men to any extent, it may be that a change in the form of government is looked on as a necessary preliminary to the introduction of Bolshevist theories, but if assured their industrial demands, the men would not hold out long for political demands. If assured their increase in wages, how long would they hold out for a reduction in the coal price?

The brightest prospect in Europe for recession in the monarchical principle and all it means is found in Greece. In the event of the King's death, the difficulties in the way of choosing a successor are such that a republic seems inevitable, with Venizelos as first President, a statesman the world would like to see so honored. A republican restoration after 2000 years in Greece, where the possibilities of a republic had their first brilliant success, would form one of the dramatic changes in modern history.

WOOL DEALERS' ILL-GOTTEN MILLION.

The report about wool dealers who made excessive profits to the amount of $1,000,000 in 1918 and who are to be required to distribute that amount among the wool growers is a little puzzling. One of the failures of war price fixing was its lack of any provision for keeping cotton as well as wool at a reasonable figure. If no standard was set in price, on what basis are the profits the dealers got ruled to be excessive? If the wool men can be made to disgorge, why not the cotton middle men?

This $1,000,000 came out of the consumers, and it would be interesting to figure up how much the excess had been increased by the time the wool had passed through the hands of the manufacturers, the wholesalers and the retailers. If a refund is to be made, why should it not go to the consumers, who paid the money, rather than to the growers?

MAKING CHECKERS SQUARE.

The Chamber of Commerce has a chance right now to give St. Louis the biggest boost that it has ever had. It has had the chance all along, as a matter of fact, but nobody thought of it, and a chance that nobody thinks of it not much account. But now somebody has thought of it, and opportunity is knocking at the door of the Chamber of Commerce.

The idea is to get St. Louis before the checker players of the country. It has long been felt that what the old town needs, worse than anything else, is to get itself before the checker players, but how to do it was the question. Now comes a checker player with the answer, and it is this: Give them square checkers.

Checkers at present are round. That means that they roll. Rolling checkers are fine things for the baby to play with, but they are all wrong for the checker-playing head of the house. Even if the baby does not lose them, they fall to the floor at the tense moment and roll under the bureau and break Dad's run of luck.

Square checkers are the things the country needs and the Chamber of Commerce will be remiss if it fails to supply the need. As the originator of the idea suggests, some strictly pertinent little thought like "Move for St. Louis" might be put on them, which would be a constant reminder to the checker players of the nation that St. Louis was the town that gave them square checkers.

THE FRONT PORCH AND THE $20,000.

One of many signs that the Front Porch has failed in very important ways to function according to expectations is found in Senator New's admission to the Post-Dispatch that $20,000 has been spent to date in paying the traveling expenses of visiting delegations to Marion. At Democratic campaign headquarters $20,000 probably would be looked on as a very considerable sum of money. And still, with the charges of railroads and hotels at their present high level, $20,000 would not meet the traveling expenses for distances of great extent or for persons in any formidable numbers. A man who had had a ride to Marion from some far-away point free of cost to himself would, of course, show a great spontaneity in outburst of enthusiasm for the old ticket, but with a mere $20,000 such outbursts of enthusiasm would naturally be rather few and disappointingly far between.

Another sign of the insufficiency of the Front Porch and the cost-free but pious pilgrimages is that Mr. Harding has climbed down from the rocking chair and is following Mr. Cox around the country. The mountain having declined to go to Mohammed for $20,000, Mohammed is forced to go to the mountain.

THE AUTUMN LEAVES.

IT seems as if some rainbow bursts,
And scatters all its prismal shades;
As if the soul of nature thirsts
To glorify the year that fades.

How lurid red the leaves will turn,
And lurid colors rich are cast;
With ling'ring life the woods will yearn
To leave some memory of the past.

The falling leaves, like driven snow,
Are flying in the frosty air;
How silently to earth they go,
And lie around us everywhere.

In summer months the verdured trees
Made one vast mantle of their green;
Now Autumn takes from all of these
The beauty of the summer scene.

Tho' dying leaves fall back to earth;
In nakedness the trees appear.
Yet Spring again will bring to birth
The glory of another year.

So Life or Death are but a change—
The Heart of Nature never dies—
What e'er of this that seemeth strange
Is part of Life's great mysteries.

The Republicans admitted spending more than a million dollars before the Chicago convention. What did they do with it? When Gov. Cox got into the West he found whole states in which the newspapers had virtually been bought off. It is not hard to buy little newspapers off in insidious ways during these times when they have such difficulty paying for white paper. The Republicans saw their opportunity and they embraced it. States like North Dakota and New Mexico were without any Democratic publicity. Except for speakers going in there during the campaign, they have been without benefit of the argument for the League of Nations. Latterly there have been posted all over the United States the big Harding and Coolidge sheets which we see all over St. Louis. That is costing a mint of money, all contributed by the people who think we are going to have government again for big business. The Republicans also announce that they are going to show the pictures of their candidates and some of their campaign arguments in movie theaters all over the United States. Another card they are going to play is to put big advertisements in newspapers all over the country in the last week of the campaign. It takes millions to do these things, and they have them. Naturally, they were not going to say they had them. They are not children. This is the only place in the world where millions are being spent to defeat the League of Nations. It is the worst use to which money has been put since Judas Iscariot made his celebrated bargain, and because there is more of it involved doesn't make it a bit better.

Good! Eh?

One of our readers thinks we have been too pessimistic about Democratic chances up to this time, and he advises us to be of better faith. We are of better faith, but it has not been possible for us to keep up a bubbling we didn't feel. We did not feel good about the campaign until Gov. Cox quit talking so much about irrelevancies and got down to the greatest cause with which any party has ever gone before the American people and Senators Johnson and Borah smoked Senator Harding out in his Des Moines speech. Just a Minute hates war, and he believes we can stop it. It has only been in the absence of any restraint upon the part of international society that we have had war in the last hundred years. That is what all the best minds in history have thought, and it is what we all think now. The world war gave us our chance to create such an international society. It would have gone through slicker than a whistle but for Senator Lodge and his fellow conspirators, who foresaw that in rendering such a service President Wilson would put the Republican party out of power in this country for fifty years, exactly as by rendering a similar great service to humankind Mr. Lincoln put the Democratic party out of power for the greater part of half a century. That is all there has been to the fight over the League of Nations, and if the people of this country are beginning to see that and to mean to send war and the Senate to hell together, then Just a Minute can be as blithe and hopeful as anybody. The world has paid terribly for its mistakes. We were not put upon earth to make shambles of it. We were put here to develop in ourselves fineness, exactly as our exquisite ceramics go to the kiln. Dr. Lyman Abbott, who is much riper and wiser than most of us, says we are put here to have our characters made fine by the fires of life. So we said it or thereabouts. What chance is there for this sort of thing if we are going to have war; if we are going to fight like a lot of dogs and cats; if we are going to waste our substance in arms and ammunition; if we are going to abase ourselves and make foul our minds with the canker of hate? Not a chance on earth. You know it. It ought not to appall us that at such a time a lot of half-baked people like Jim Reed are running around warning us that we cannot trust one another. Those same human fire alarms were clanging when we organized domestic society and gave up our individual arms. The insides of their heads know no repose, nor do they differentiate us from the beasts of the field. We know what we ought to do to be worthy of our Creator, to be worthy of this beautiful earth. Christ told us. What we did to Christ is exactly what we have done to Mr. Wilson, whose fate has been what the fate of Paul was, and Galileo, and Christopher Columbus, and Abraham Lincoln—and every other man who has lifted us up out of the slime, wiped our eyes open and pushed us onward to the heights from which we look back now with shame and horror upon what has been. We promise our reader to cheer up. It looks better. It was ever darkest just before dawn.

Judging by the way some people are getting out of the Democratic party, you can't be pro-league and pro-something else at the same time.

Luck is against us. Just at a time when we might have made something on what is left of us bones go down to $30 a ton.

INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE COURT.

EDWIN S. CORWIN in the Weekly Review.

THE so-called Root-Phillimore plan for a permanent court of international justice, once it is formally proposed by the Council of the League of Nations to the members of the league, will fulfill the pledge of Article 14 of the covenant. The thing which has hitherto blocked all efforts at setting up a court of international justice with established personnel and a defined jurisdiction, and vested with the obligation to decide strictly in accordance with pre-existent rules of law—in all of which respects such a tribunal would differ from a court of international arbitration—has been the difficulty of reconciling the conflicting claims of large and small nations in the matter of representation on the court. The court proposed by the second Hague conference was to consist of 15 members, nine of whom were to come from the nine great Powers, while the remainder were to be chosen by the smaller states in rotation; but the plan failed of acceptance, and indeed Secretary Knox's later effort to revive interest in it evoked practically no response. This difficulty is now met by the Root-Phillimore plan in the boldest, and at the same time the entirely logical, way. The proposed court is to be "composed of a body of independent judges, elected regardless of their nationality, from amongst persons of high moral character, who possess the qualifications required in their respective countries for appointment to the highest judicial offices, or are jurisconsults of recognized competence in international law." In short, it is to be a bench of judges, not a congress of states.

LANGUAGE IN PORTO RICO.

HARRY A. FRAUCK in the Century.

ENGLISH is little spoken in Porto Rico. It is indeed the "official" language, but the officials who speak it are rare, unless they come from the States, in which case they are almost certain to be equally ignorant of Spanish. The Governor never stirs abroad without an interpreter. The Chief of Police rarely ventures a few words of Castilian, though there is scarcely a patrolman even in the heart of San Juan who can answer the simplest question in English. To be sure, English is compulsory in all the schools of the island, but few pupils learn it thoroughly enough to retain it through life. Most of them can read it in a parrot-like manner; if they speak it at all, it is to shout some half-intelligible phrase after a passing American. The ear shudders at the "English" spoken even by those teachers who are supposed to be specialists in it; the rest are little short of incomprehensible. Passed on from one such instructor to another, the English that finally comes down to the pupils resembles the original about as much as an oft-repeated bit of gossip resembles the original facts. It might almost be said that there has been no progress made in teaching Porto Rico English in all of the 20 years of American rule, or at least in the last 15 of them. On the whole, the state of education in Porto Rico is a disappointment. The only inducement the country offers to instructors from the States is an appeal to the love of adventure. Those who wish to make a trip to the tropics may be sure of a position at a lower salary than they receive at home, and with the privilege of paying their own passages down and back.

Formerly Miss Charlotte Reyburn. Her wedding took place Wednesday...

WITH so many weddings of social interest in St. Louis during the past fortnight, society has hardly had time to take part in anything else. The October calendar has been crowded with luncheons, teas, dinners and dances for bridal parties. The week just past has witnessed the marriages of Miss Vesta Brown to Eugene C. Tittmann Jr., and Miss Coleen Wrape to Edward Rowan, on Tuesday; the marriages of Miss Charlotte Reyburn to Wilkins Jones, and Miss Jean Armstrong to William Robert Gibson of Montreal, on Wednesday; on Thursday the marriage of Miss Katherine Curlee to William Smith Bryan Jr., and yesterday the marriage of Miss Nancy Bates to William Goeffrey Kimball.

Some of the earlier weddings of the month were those of Miss Edith McCormack and Richmond Dana Moot of Schenectady; Miss Frances Parkman Woods and Frank Edgar Kauffmann Jr., Miss Shirley McDavitt and Richard Henry Lake of Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Anne Block and Hugh Scott, Miss Harriet Edwards and Walker McMillan, and Miss Jane Bemis and Oliver Anderson.

Tittmann-Brown Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Vesta Brown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alanson D. Brown, to Eugene C. Tittmann, was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Warren Brown, 40 Portland place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. P. Greene of Liberty, Mo., in the presence of the relatives and a few friends. Hilgard Tittmann, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the only attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. Tittmann are spending their honeymoon in the East and will reside at 6 Beverly place, the bride's home.

The bride was educated at Mary Institute and Ogontz School in Pennsylvania and is a member of the Junior League.. She is a sister of Mrs. Maurice Obear, who was Miss Ruth Brown. Mr. Tittmann is the son of Mrs. Eugene C. Tittmann of 4256 Maryland avenue. He is a graduate of Princeton and during the war served as a Captain in the army.

Rowan-Wrape Marriage.

St. Rose5s Chuch was the scene Tuesday evening of the wedding of Miss Coleen Wrape and Edward Rowan, the Rev. Father J. J. McGlynn officiating. The guests included members of the families and intimate friends. Mrs. Joseph O'Neil, the bride's cousin, who was Miss Helene Wrape, was the matron of honor and Alfred Rowan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Wrape, 5605 Enright avenue. After a honeymoon in the East Mr. and Mrs. Rowan will be at home Nov. 1 at 729 Westgate avenue.

Jones-Reyburn Ceremony.

The wedding of Miss Charlotte Mary Mercer Reyburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amedee Valle Reyburn, to Wilkins Jones took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 4634 Lindell boulevard. The Rev. Father Alexander Mercer of Kirksville, Mo., an uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a large reception. The bride's attendants were Mrs. Valle Reyburn and Mrs. Ralph Berry Fairchild of Texas, matrons of honor; Misses Juliette Reyburn, maid of honor, and Misses Helen Reyburn, Jane Shapleigh and Mary Rend of Chicago, bridesmaids. The bridegroom's brother, Alanson Jones, was best man, and the groomsmen were John Aid, Elmer Adkins, John Lehmann, Valle Reyburn and Porter Hall of Kansas City.

After Nov. 1 the couple will be at home at 406 Clara avenue. They are passing their honeymoon in the East.

Mrs. Jones made her debut about four years ago, and is a member of the Junior League. She was educated at Mary Institute and Eden Hall in Philadelphia. Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Silas Jones of the Usona Hotel, and a nephew of Charles P. Senter of 1 Beverly place, with whom he has resided. He received his education at Washington University and Harvard, and is a member of the Harvard Club of New York and the University Club. During the war he served in France as a Captain in the infantry.

Gibson-Armstrong Ceremony.

Miss Jean Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Armstrong of 16 Gast place, and William Robert Gibson of Montreal were married Wednesday evening at the King's Highway Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Hulbert. Mrs. Edgar Lennox of Toronto was matron of honor, and Miss Retta Hurry of Toronto was maid of honor. Mr. Gibson was attended by Harvey Doherty of Toronto as best man, and the ushers included Roy McCormack, Oliver Reller and Earl Bennett. Guests at the ceremony numbered about 200, and the reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents was limited to relatives and intimate friends. The couple will make their home in Montreal.

Bryan-Curlee Marriage.

Thursday evening the marriage of Miss Katherine Curlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Curlee of Kirkwood to William Smith Bryan Jr. was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents. About 200 guests were present at the ceremony which was performer by the Rev. J. J. Wilkins of the Kirkwood Episcopal Church. John M. Curlee, brother of the bride, was best man and the only attendant. A reception followed the ceremony, after which the couple departed on a bridal trip and will be at home after Nov. 1 at 203 Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood, the home a gift from the bride's father.

Mrs. Bryan was graduated from Mary Institute and spent a year in Europe. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball the year of her debut. Mr. Bryan has made his home for some time with his sister, Mrs. John Broderick of Kirkwood. He is the son of W. J. Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was here for the wedding. Among other out-of-town guests at the wedding were Miss Grace Allen of Cincinnati, Mrs. Richard Hudson Webber of Detroit and Mrs. Walter Clarke of New Orleans, who was Miss Ella Curlee, a sister of the bride.

Kimball-Bates Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Nancy Maffitt Bates and William Geoffrey Kimball took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bates, 4325 Westminster place, the Rev. Father O'Connor officiating. Because of mourning the ceremony was quiet and the guests included only members of the two families and close friends. The bride's sister, Mrs. Arthur Hiemenz, was matron of honor and Charles E. Kimball Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. After a small reception which followed the ceremony the couple departed for the East. They will reside at the Kingsbury Apartments and will be at home after Nov. 15. Mrs. Kimball is a member of the Imperial and the Junior League. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent and in Europe. Mr. Kimball is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kimball of 18 Lenox place. He is an alumnus of Yale and a member of the University and St. Louis Country clubs.

The engagement of Miss Adele Harris to William S. Ford was made known at a luncheon last Monday, with which the prospective bride entertained for her intimate friends. Miss Harris is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Fletcher Harris of 4953 McPherson avenue. She was educated at St. de Chantel Academy and in Europe, and made her debut about four years ago when she was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball. Mr. Ford is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ford. He resides at 5537 Pershing avenue. The wedding will take place in November.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Cornatzar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Cornatzar of 5535 Waterman avenue, to Brooke Thompson. The wedding will take place in January. Miss Cornatzar and her parents have resided in St. Louis about four years, having come here from Memphis, Tenn. She was graduated from Mary Institute in 1919 and spent last winter in California. Mr. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Thompson of 5960 Clemens avenue. He was educated at Washington University and is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Mrs. G. A. Millbradt of the McKnight road entertained with a luncheon Tuesday for 12 guests in honor of Jan Kubelik and his accompanist, Pierre Augieras.

The wedding of Miss Aimee Ruth Magnus, daughter of Mrs. Jacob W. Loeb of Chicago, and Horace G. Flanigan of New York, which will take place Saturday in Chicago, is of interest here. Miss Magnus is the sister of Edward Magnus of 5074 Waterman avenue and a granddaughter of the late Adolphus Busch. She has frequently visited in St. Louis as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch and Mr. and Mrs. Magnus.

Mrs. Anna Philips Vickers of 302 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves, entertained yesterday at her home with a luncheon at which the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jonne Vickers, to Arthur Winfield Niebling was announced. Covers were laid for 12, the guests including intimate friends of the prospective bride. Miss Vickers was educated at the Washington University. No date for the wedding has been set.

Several society girls are giving active support to the charitable enterprises now under way. A group of them, including the Misses Mary Plant, Sunie Smith, Elizabeth Smith, Ann Hunt, Nancy Bakewell, Marie Baker, Dorothy McBride, Louisita Moser and Yvonne Merrill have established a junior auxiliary to the Catholic Women's League.

The particular object of the auxiliary is to promote the social service activities of the league and in particular the Olympian Circus

A Truly Very Interesting and Timely Sales Announcement

But a few days ago we had no idea of this sale. It just wasn't possible on the standard of quality we demand and distinctive character of Hosiery we sell—and it wouldn't have been possible today were it not for an unusually fortunate buy by our Mr. Singer, secured while in the Eastern markets recently.

Kindly remember also that we do not indulge in empty, meaningless "so-called sales"—nor offer any sort of Hosiery so it suits a sale price—therefore this sale announced should be of very immediate importance to you.

Quality Hosiery at Prices That Were But a Dream Yesterday

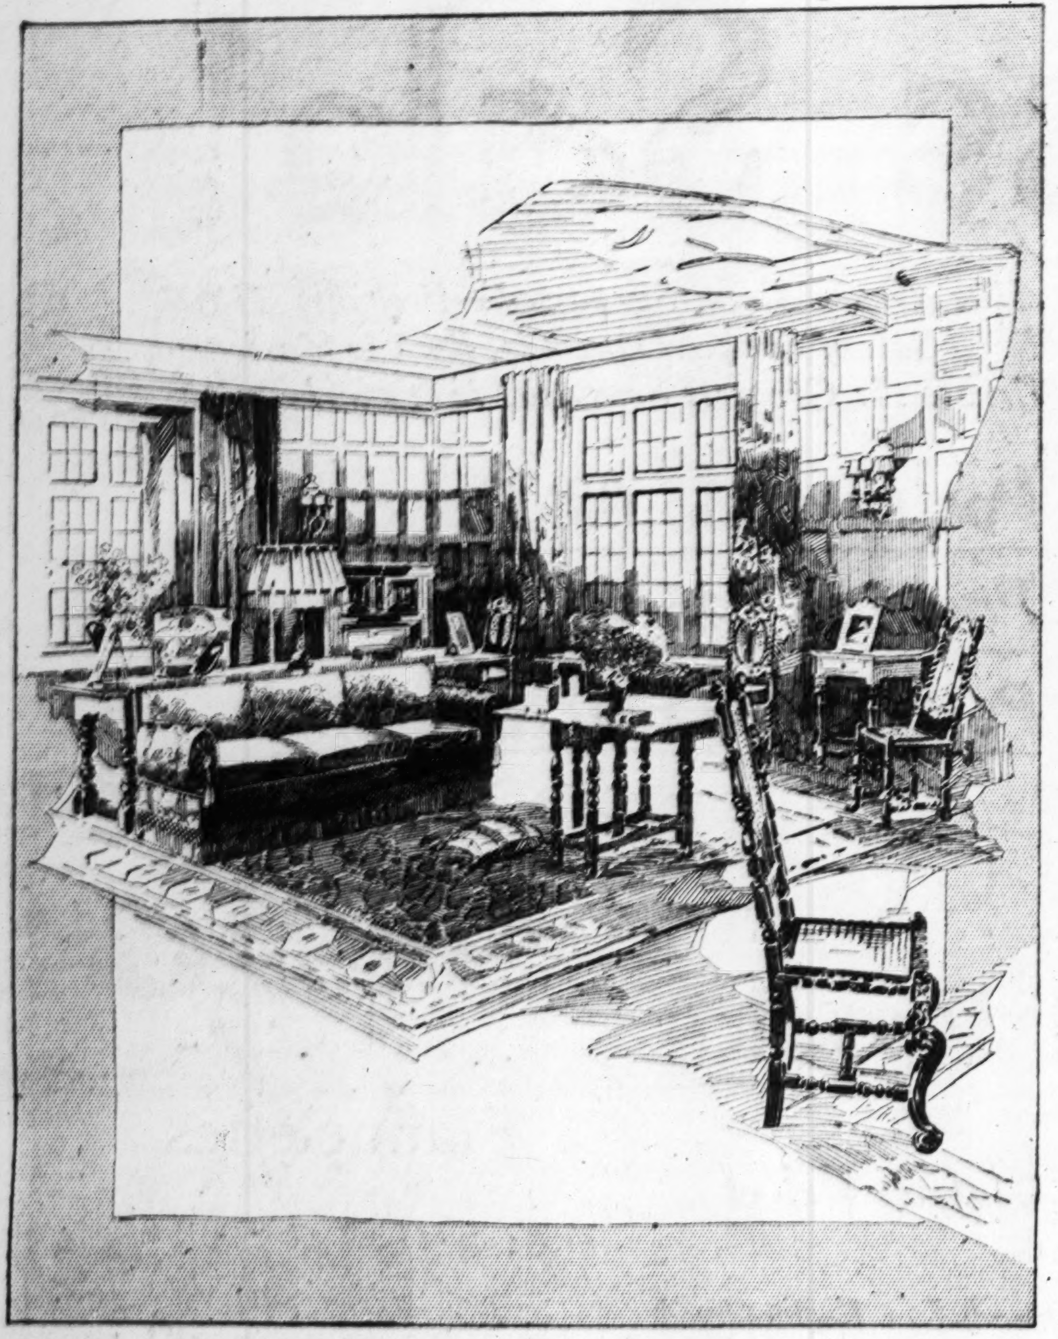
Furniture Announcement Extraordinary

Monday We Shall Place on Sale Our Entire Stock of Furniture (Without Reservation) at a Discount of 20%, This Discount to Prevail Until Further Notice



The Reasons for This Sale

WITH the opening of the new building we planned a greatly enlarged Furniture section. We are now occupying the new Furniture floor (seventh), but are months behind our schedule because of building delays. The result is we find ourselves overstocked. A Sale is the logical relief from this condition.

A second, and no less important reason, is that we anticipate a break in the Furniture market, not from any information that we have received from the manufacturers, but merely from trade conditions. Consequently we consider it good business on our part to offer our entire stock at a liberal discount.

Because of this great price concession, we can consistently urge Furniture buying NOW—Those who purchase at 20% discount are amply protected. The market decline of the immediate future has been fully anticipated. The savings today are real and actual.

Entire Stock of Furniture 20% Discount From Regular Prices

The Plain Facts

The market on Furniture just now is not broken. In fact, we received as recently as October first an announcement of an advance of 10% on the price of steel beds. On the other hand, however, the price of mattresses has gone down.

Our confident conclusion is that a decline in the market is imminent, and this Sale merely anticipates the change.

Meaning of This Sale

Of most stupendous import is this event—an entire stock of Furniture is offered at 20% discount, without reservation. We believe that the public will be appreciative of an opportunity which means the securing of Furniture at such decided savings.

Selections Offered

To say merely "Furniture" is unjust, for this stock far surpasses the ordinary. In extent and variety we are prepared to meet all requirements of taste and expenditure. In beauty of design and superior workmanship do we pride ourselves most.

Purchasing during this Sale is, indeed, a rare chance to gratify one's desires for the possession of the practical and beautiful in Furniture, with the great satisfaction of doing so economically. Without reservation, every piece on the floor may be purchased at 20% discount from the regular selling price.

A Special Selling of Oriental Rugs

OUR representative spent several months this year in Turkey, Asia Minor and Persia, buying direct from dealers and natives, beautiful Oriental Rugs at prices that enable us to offer our customers the best values obtainable at the present time. A comparison of quality and prices will impress those who are interested that the values we present justify buying Oriental Rugs now, as an investment.

Persian Rugs
Are Priced at $49.75

In this remarkable lot of fine Persian Rugs are various kinds, in beautiful designs. They have a soft, silky sheen, and are of a very fine texture. The average size is 5x3 feet.

Greatly Reduced Prices on
Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums

WE are anticipating a change of market conditions in this line of merchandise, and will, for the present, offer our stock at incomparably low prices. The present conditions do not justify the radical action we are taking, for the reason that the only announcement of lowering prices received from the manufacturers was concerning one grade of Rugs, announcing a reduction of 10%, other mills having, on October 1st, made their quotations until the Spring of the year, at the same prices that have been in effect. We, however, consider it good business to dispose of our present stock at reduced prices, and are presenting unusual buying opportunities to the public.

INDIVIDUALITY

"Individuality" is the criterion by which you may judge the relative merits of WEIL Apparel and that shown elsewhere.

Quality may be taken largely for granted at any store of good repute. But it is the "knack" of enhancing one's personality that has so firmly established this shop in the good graces of feminine St. Louis.

An Impressive Display of Dresses

Emphasizing the pronounced vogue of Silk Velvet, Canton Crepe and Duvetyne, as exemplified in models of individuality from

$95 to $245

Our presentation comprises many smart variations for street, afternoon and evening wear.

Style traits apparent are blouse effects, tight bodices and fuller skirts. Navy blue or brown for daytime; American beauty, jade, black or lighter shades for evening.

Found at Last! Real Hair Saver and Beautifier

Quickly Makes Dull, Harsh, Unattractive Hair Doubly Beautiful, Abundant, Soft and Fluffy—Or Nothing to Pay.

Parisian Sage Surprises and Delights—It Positively Does Not Change the Natural Color of the Hair.

When your hair is thinning out, prematurely gray, brittle, lifeless, full of dandruff and your head itches like mad, quick action must be taken to save your hair.

Don't wait until the hair root is dead, for then nothing can help you.

If you want a lot of good-looking healthy hair the roots must be immediately vitalized and kept properly nourished. To do this quickly, safely and most effectively, get from your druggist a bottle of Parisian Sage and use as directed. A little attention now will insure plenty of beautiful hair for years to come.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed to keep away all dandruff, stop scalp itch and falling hair and stimulate a new growth, or money refunded. It's in great demand by women who always "look their best" because it makes the hair so soft, lustrous, easy to arrange attractively and appear much heavier than it really is.

Parisian Sage is perfectly harmless, a clean antiseptic and daintily perfumed liquid—neither sticky or greasy and easy to use.

IBANEZ TELLS OF TRAGEDY OF 2,000,000 FRENCH WOMEN

are condemned to lives of solitude.

The European, the French woman, has one terrible, relentless enemy—the dowry.

In order to marry, a woman must have some money. This is a custom that centuries of paternal thoughtfulness has established. The dowry is a guaranty that the girl will be protected against ruin, whatever the outcome of her marriage.

Dowry System an Evil.

As the wife, in general, has no way of earning an independent living, her parents settle a little fortune on her. And as she brings the income from it into her new home, her husband is inclined to have greater respect for her, for by means of it she is doing her share in meeting the family expenses. Besides, if her husband dies, or she separates from him, she has something to fall back on.

I recognize that the institution of the dowry has much to be said for it. It is a very prudent arrangement, and very attractive also for girls whose parents are rich. But at the same time, when you think of it, how unjust and immoral it really is.

Poor women rarely have a chance to marry. Marriage becomes a privilege of caste.

Not only this. The girl born in a poor family yearns for love and affection as strongly as richer girls.

Personally, I prefer the American system. There young people have a courageous independence in matters of love. They are never made victims of the dowry. People in the United States marry because they love each other, and the boy does not stop first to count the money in his prospective bride's purse. Americans are not afraid of poverty. They have confidence in the future.

In countries where life is orderly and easy-going, the desire for the refined comforts of civilization and the ambition to appear well-to-do, have eventually created a spirit of family selfishness and cowardice. Parents lead lives of the most sordid avarice and privation to make it possible for their children to live like "gentlemen" and be free from the task of earning their livings. And young people, for their part, do not marry until they see a sum of money laid aside which will assure a final escape from poverty.

Carried to Exaggeration.

This is carrying the principle of "safety first" to exaggeration. The principal charm of life, after all, is risk and danger, the risk and danger which carries with it also the chance of unforseen fortune.

If we all knew that our futures were secure, if we could see in advance all that is going to happen to us during the rest of our lives, we would find living an intolerable bore. Many of us would commit suicide out of sheer disgust.

Suppose we were all condemned to eat a $20 dinner every evening! Every evening of our lives! We would finally be willing to start a revolution for the privilege of sitting down to an ordinary meal.

If we knew that all our needs would be attended to without effort on our parts, if we knew that we should always be comfortable and peaceful in very sweet and placid environments, I doubt whether many of us would care to go on. We enjoy idleness only when we have earned it by labor. And the charm of wealth lies in the getting of it.

This is something the French have to learn as a nation. It is something Americans know already.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB IS PAST 10,000 MARK

Result of Week's Membership Campaign to Be Given at Luncheon Tomorrow.

The Automobile Club of St. Louis, which conducted an intensive membership campaign last week, announced yesterday that the membership has passed 10,000.

This figure does not give the final results of the campaign, as reports have not been received from 42 team captains. Plans have been made for a rally luncheon to be held at the Jefferson Hotel at noon tomorrow, when complete figures will be announced and prizes awarded to workers who obtained the largest number of applications.

"With the closing of the membership campaign," said William King, Colonel, in command of the drive, 'the Automobile Club of St. Louis today ranks with the leading auto clubs throughout the country—and from the standpoint of St. Louis, it is the largest civic organization in point of numbers. The actual membership is now in excess of 10,000 and when all the reports are in the office, this figure will be largely increased.

"It is expected that within 60 days the club will have in excess of 13,000, which is the membership of the Chicago Motor Club, at present the largest club of its kind in the United States."

The club has inaugurated personal service to its members through the medium of four garages in various parts of the city for answering hurry-up calls. A garage will also be opened for this purpose in St. Louis County within a few days.

Divorces Numerous in Pomerania.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—A divorce epidemic has broken out in Pomerania, according to the newspapers. The number of divores there in the last six months, it is stated, exceed those before the war by 600 per cent. Wives complain that husbands are lazy, and will not work to support them. Aggrieved husbands charge that wives neglect the home, and are given to spendthrift habits.

IDEALISM OF WOMEN WILL SAVE LEAGUE, SAYS WOMAN LEADER

dent which must be attended to every year or four years and then be lost sight of again in the rush of business I think there will be comparatively few women politicians, just as there are really very few men politicians. But there will be millions of women who will give to public affairs the same persistent attention which they have been trained for generations to give to the matters of housekeeping. And a house-kept nation," said Mrs. Bass, "or a house-kept world is likely to be somewhat different from the present one. And that is the reason," she added, the flicker of fun becoming apparent once more, "why the next President will be a Democrat.

"How could it be otherwise with the League of Nations the paramount issue? This question stirs women very deeply at the present time. As the time for voting draws near, women will demand of the parties and the candidates that they place themselves plainly on record on all questions which affect the public welfare not only of this country but o. every country America has to deal with, as Gov. Cox has plainly recorded himself. They will accept no platitudes and no evasions. They will require full and complete pledges of labor toward a perfectly definite program. And, as matters stand, the Democratic party is the only party which can give such pledges, for the simple reason that it alone has had intelligence and courage to make a program for the immediate future.

"Furthermore," she declared, "the Democratic party is the only one in the shaping of whose policies and choice of whose candidates women can possibly have an effective and equal share. As I have already pointed out, women are directly and equally represented with men in its national committee now. They have influenced the planks dealing with social welfare, social justice and social readjustment questions. As a consequence, there is full commitment of the party to forward action along all these lines. And to the support of such a program women will almost instinctively rally, as they have rallied to the most splendid Democratic conception the human mind can hold, the League of Nations."

Women More Hopeful.

"Why is it," I asked her, "that women seem so much more hopeful of the effectiveness of the league than men are?"

"Because," she said, "being practical idealists and born radicals instead of conservative, they respond less easily than men do to the opposition in the precedent-ridden Senate and because the suppression of war means so very much to them. Women are pacifists by nature; war to them is vile, repulsive, unjustifiable. Women elected Mr. Wilson President in 1916 because he had kept us out of war. They followed him sorrowfully but understandingly every step of the slow and painful way which finally plunged us, too, into the horror. After the armistice came, they followed him to Europe and saw him gain there what he could toward the salvation of social order. What he could, not what or all he wanted or they wanted. They are not visionaries about the League of Nations. But they see it as at least one step forward, as the best deterrent yet proposed against warfare in the future. So they want it tried. Women are more willing to believe and try than men are, and they have little sympathy or patience with the men who are delaying the trial of the League of Nations and the ratification of the peace treaties to cite precedents and point out all the possible dangers of radical changes of policy. They believe that with this war a new world has come, and with a new world the time for radical changes where all old remedies for wrong have proved ineffective.

"Victory for Party Women Back."

"Only the party," she continued, "which gives the voting women of America full partnership in its councils and full recognition in the shaping of its policies can hope for their effective support. And only the party which has their effective support can hope for victory at the polls.

"Wherefore," she ended, "I repeat again that the next President of the United States will be a Democrat and that the vote of the women of America will be the decisive factor in his election—not because they will vote as women, as a sex, but because, like men, they will vote in accordance with their convictions and desires. Women will rebuke at the polls the evil suggestion of a separate peace with Germany. They will uphold Gov. Cox's program for the welfare of women and children, and on his record as Governor of Ohio he will stand firm of purpose as President of the United States. As soon as possible after his inauguration he will call a conference of women in Washington, women representing all lines of public service regardless of political affiliations, whose point of view he will seek. Because I believe that greed, selfishness and heartlessness will make way for generosity, kindness and brotherly love is the reason why I am sure American women will elect James M. Cox President of the United States."

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffing, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

A Home-Made Gray Hair Remedy

You can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look many years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

SPENCER TO GET AT FORD-NEWBERRY CASE 'BEFORE LONG'

Acting Chairman of Committee on Contest Admits He Has Made No Formal Call for Action.

WAITING FOR COURT TO PASS ON APPEAL

Senate Can Act on Unseating of Convicted Senator, He Says, but It Won't Till Court Passes on Plea.

Senator Spencer, acting chairman of the subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, to which was referred the election contest instituted by Henry Ford for the seat of Senator Truman H. Newberry, under conviction and sentence to the penitentiary for buying his election, was asked today by a Post-Dispatch reporter why the subcommittee had not taken up the contest, as it was shown in a dispatch Wednesday from the Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch it had not.

In that dispatch, it was pointed out that, in referring the contest to the sub-committee more than six months ago, the Committee on Privileges and Elections had instructed it to "proceed immediately" to a full investigation of all the charges and counter-charges, and that, notwithstanding that instruction, nothing had been done by the subcommittee except to have the ballots transported to Washington to be counted some time in the future.

Last Meeting on June 2.

It was shown that the last meeting of the subcommittee was June 2, and that, notwithstanding urging by attorneys for Ford, no meeting had been called since that time. It also was shown that the Republican control of the Senate was held by Newberry's vote; that, if Newberry were unseated, the Democrats would be in control of the Senate, and that it was with Newberry's vote that the Republicans were able to organize the Senate and pack the Foreign Relations Committee with Senators opposed to the League of Nations.

Spencer said he had seen the Washington dispatch, and that, while he had not read it carefully, he understood about what it contained. He was too busy today to go over it.

Waiting for Higher Court.

When asked why the committee had not met since June 2, and who was responsible for the delay, Spencer replied:

"We are waiting for the higher court to pass on Senator Newberry's conviction on his appeal. Nothing can be done by the Senate while the case is still pending in court."

"Am I to understand," asked the reporter, "that the Senate cannot take any action regarding the unseating of Senator Newberry unless or until the higher court sustains the conviction?"

"Oh, it can, it can, but it won't," replied Spencer hurriedly. "Of course, the Senate can legally act on the matter at any time, but it would not unseat a Senator under such a condition as long as his case was pending in the higher court."

The Senator was asked whether the other members of the committee, or any of them, had agreed that the investigation was to be delayed until final disposition of the Newberry case in the courts, or during the campaign.

"No, absolutely not," he replied. "There has been no agreement of any kind. There was no resolution adopted making any provision for delay. The last record is that the committee is adjourned subject to the call of the chairman."

No Formal Call Issued.

"As acting chairman, with power to call the committee into session, have you issued such a call?" Spencer was asked.

"No, I have issued no formal call. I have communicated with the members to learn if we could obtain a quorum of the committee, but they have all been so busy that I have been unable to get them together. I think the committee should proceed with the investigation, and I hope to get a meeting before Congress reconvenes.

"There have been delays by both sides in this matter. Before Congress adjourned when one side was ready to go ahead the other was not. It seemed like they were never ready at the same time. This has been true of one side as much as the other."

Spencer was asked whether there had been a request or demand from Ford's attorneys that the subcommittee be called into session to take up the inquiry since Congress adjourned.

Request for Session.

"Yes," he replied. "I received a letter to that effect from Mr. Lucking, one of Mr. Ford's counsel. I replied that I judged he had just returned from his vacation and told him that we, the members of the committee, had not yet had our vacations.

"But, we'll get at the matter before long now. There really isn't much to be done. It may be that a little testimony will be taken, but the principal work is to count the ballots, and that will not take a great while."

In the meantime, the campaign will have ended.

Judge Goode Invited Back to W. U.

Judge Richard L. Goode, who will retire from the bench of the State Supreme Court at the end of this year, has been invited by Chancellor Hall and the board of Washington University to return to the school of law of that institution when his judicial post is given up. Judge Goode resigned the school of law deanship to accept appointment to the Supreme Bench, and is not a candidate to succeed himself.

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN CHILD'S DEATH

Case of Joseph Broddon, Whose Car Hit Cynthia Lambros, Goes to Grand Jury.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned yesterday against Jacob Broddon, 30 years old, a sheet metal worker, residing at the Metropole Hotel, in the case of Cynthia Lambros, 5 years old, daughter of Andrew Lambros, 913 North Nineteenth street, who was killed in front of 1827 Franklin avenue at 6 o'clock Friday night by an automobile driven by Broddon.

Her death was the eighty-eighth motor fatality here since Jan. 1, as compared with 71 in the corresponding period of last year. The case will be certified to the grand jury.

The girl was playing "tag" with several other children and had run into the street after "tagging" a boy. Broddon was driving east on Franklin avenue at about 20 miles an hour. The child, after being knocked down, was dragged about 30 feet. Her skull was fractured, and doctors at the central dispensary said that death evidently had been instantaneous.

Broddon was taken to the Carr Street Police Station, where he furnished bond to appear at the Coroner's inquest. He told the police that the girl had run into the path of his automobile and that he was unable to stop the car in time to prevent the accident. He made no statement at the inquest.

PART TWO. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 17, 1920. PAGES 1—16B.

OMAR of ISPAHAN · by SAX ROHMER

"I HEAR that the harem suite is occupied," said Sir Bertram Collis, bustling up to me as I sat smoking in the gardens of a certain Cairo hotel, which I shall not name because of the matters that befell there. "Daphne is full of curiosity respecting the romantic occupant."

"Don't let Lady Collis be too sure," put in Chundermeyer, "that there is anything romantic about the occupant."

"Your definition of romance, Chundermeyer," I interrupted, "would probably be 'a diamond the size of a Spanish onion.'"

Chundermeyer smiled, but it was a smile in which his dark eyes, twinkling through the pebbles of horn-rimmed spectacles, played no part.

"As a matter of fact," I continued, "the occupant of the harem suite is no less romantic a personage than the daughter of the Mudir (Governor) of the Fayum."

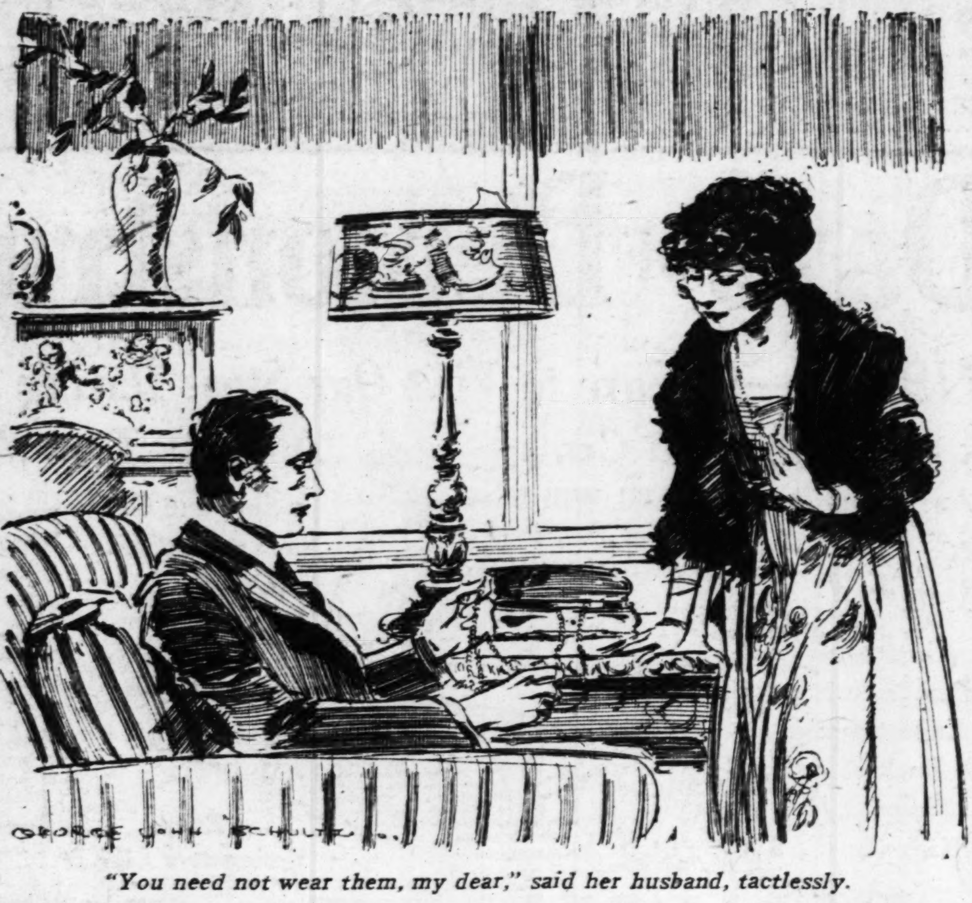
"Really!" said Chundermeyer, with that sudden interest which mention of a title always aroused in him. "Surely it is most unusual for so highly placed a Moslem lady to reside at an hotel?"

"Most unusual," I replied. "Of course, such a thing would be inconceivable in India; but the management of this establishment, who cater almost exclusively to tourists, find, I am told, that a 'harem suite' is quite a good advertisement. The reason of the presence of this lady in the hotel is a diplomatic one. She is visiting Cairo in order to witness the procession of Ashura, peculiarly sacred to Egyptian women, and it appears that, having no blood relations here, she could not accept the hospitality of any one of the big families without alienating the others."

"By Jove!" said Sir Bertram, "I must tell Daphne this yarn. She'll be delighted! Come along, Kernaby; if we're to have tea at Mena House, it is high time we were off."

Of course, Daphne Collis was not ready; and, Sir Bertram going up to their apartments to induce her to hurry, I strolled out again into the gardens for a quiet cigarette and a cocktail. As I approached a suitable seat in a sort of charming little arbor, festooned with purple blossom, a man who had been waiting there rose to greet me.

With a certain quickening of the pulse, I recognized Abu Tabah, arrayed, as was his custom, in black, only relieved by a small, snowy turban, which served to enhance the ascetic beauty of his face and the mystery of the wonderful, liquid eyes.



"You need not wear them, my dear," said her husband, tactlessly.

"I have been awaiting an opportunity of speech with you Kernaby Pasha," he said in his flawless, musical English, "upon a matter in which I hope you will consent to aid me."

"I should welcome an opportunity of serving you, my friend," I assured him, "since your services to me can never be repaid."

"There is to be a carnival and masquerade ball here tomorrow. You shall be present?"

"I hope so," I replied in surprise. "To what does all this tend?"

"Many of your friends and acquaintances possess valuable jewels?"

"They do."

"Then warn them—individually, in order to occasion no general alarm—to guard these with the utmost care."

My surprise increased. "You alarm me," I said. "Are there rogues in our midst?"

"No," answered the imam, fixing his melancholy gaze upon my face; "so far as my knowledgs bears me, there is but one, yet that one is worse than a host of others."

"Do you mean that he is here—in the hotel?"

"If I knew his exact whereabouts," he replied, "there would be no occasion to fear him. All that I know is that he is in Cairo; and since many richly attired women of Europe and America will be here tomorrow night, of a surety Omar Ali Khan will be here also!"

"Omar Ali Khan?" I began.

"Ah!" continued Abu Tabah, "to you that name conveys nothing, but to me it signifies Omar of Ispahan, 'the Father of Thieves.' Do you remember," fixing his strange eyes hypnotically upon me, "the theft of the sacred burko of Nefiseh?"

"Quite well," I replied, hastily.

"It was Omar of Ispahan who stole it from the shrine. It was Omar of Ispahan who stole the blue diamond of the Rajah of Bagore from the treasure room at Jullapore, and Omar of Ispahan"—lowering his voice almost to a whisper—"who stole the holy carpet ere it reached Mecca!"

"What!" I cried. "When did that happen? I never heard of such an episode!"

"Be cautious!" he whispered; "the flowers of the garden, the palms in the grove, the very sands of the desert have ears! The slightest word spoken in the harem of the Khedive, or breathed from a minaret of the Citadel, is heard by Omar of Ispahan! The holy covering for the Kaaba was restored on payment of a ruinous ransom by the Sherif of Mecca, and none save the few ever heard of its loss."

For a time I was silent; words failed me; for the veil of the Kaaba, miscalled "the carpet," is about the size of a bowling green; then——

"In what manner does this affair concern you, Abu Tabah?" I asked.

"In this way: The daughter of the Mudir el-Fayum is here, in order that she may be present on the Night of Ashura in the Muski. For a Moslem lady to stay in such a place as this"—there was a faint note of contempt in the speaker's voice—"is without precedent, but the circumstances are peculiar. The khan near the Mosque of Hosein is full, and it is not seemly that the Mudir's daughter should live at any lesser establishment. Therefore, as she brings her two servants, it has been possible for her to remain here. But"—his voice sank again—"her ornaments are famed throughout Islam."

I nodded comprehendingly.

"To me," Abu Tabah whispered, "has been intrusted the task of guarding them; to you, I intrust that of guarding the possessions of the other guests!"

"But, my friend," I said, "this is a dreadful responsibility which you impose upon me."

"Other precautions are being taken," he replied calmly; "but you, observing great circumspection, can speak to the guests, and, being forewarned of his presence, can even watch for the coming of Omar of Ispahan."

• • • • • • •

The effect of my news upon Lady Collis was truly dramatic.

"Oh!" she cried, "my rope of pearls. Mr. Chundermeyer only told me last week that it was worth at least 200 pounds more than I gave for it."

"You need not wear it, my dear,' 'said her husband, tactlessly.

"Don't be ridiculous!" she retorted. "You know I have brought my Queen of Sheba costume for tomorrow night."

That, of course, settled the matter, so that beyond making one pretty woman extremely nervous, my campaign against the dreaded Omar of Ispahan had opened—blankly. Later in the day I circulated my warning right and left, and everywhere sowed consternation without reaping any appreciable result.

On the whole, I think, the best audience for my dramatic recitation was provided by Mr. Chundermeyer, whom I found in the American bar, just before the dinner hour. His yellow skin perceptibly blanched at my first mention of Omar Ali Khan, and one hand clutched at a bulging breast pocket of the dinner jacket he wore.

"Good heavens, Mr. Kernaby," he said, "you alarm me—you alarm me, sir!"

"The reputation of Omar is not unknown to you?"

"By no means unknown to me," he responded in the thick, unctuous voice which betrayed the Semetic strain in his pedigree. "It was this man who stole the pair of blue diamonds from the Rajah of Bagore."

"So I am told."

"But have you been told that it was my firm who bought those diamonds for the Rajah?"

"No; that is news to me."

"It was my firm, Mr. Kernaby, who negotiated the sale of the blue diamonds to the Rajah; therefore the particulars of their loss, under most extraordinary circumstances, are very well known to me. You have made me very nervous. Who is your informant?"

"A member of the native police with whom I am acquainted."

Mr. Chundermeyer shook his head lugubriously.

"I am conveying a parcel of rough stones to Amsterdam," he confessed, glancing warily about him over the rims of his spectacles, "and I feel very much disposed to ask for more reliable protection than is offered by your Egyptian friend."

"Why not lodge the stones in a bank, or in the manager's safe?"

"I distrust all safes but my own," he replied. "I prefer to carry such valuables upon my person, foolish though the plan may seem to you. But do you observe that squarely built, military looking person standing at the bar, in conversation with M. Balabas, the manager?"

"Yes; an officer, I should judge."

"Precisely; a police officer. That is Chief Inspector Carlisle of New Scotland Yard."

"But he is a guest here."

"Certainly. The management sustained a severe loss last Christmas during the progress of a ball at which all Cairo was present, and as the Inspector chanced to be on his way home from India, where official business had taken him, Mr. Balabas induced him to break his journey and remain until after the carnival."

"Wait a moment," I said; "I will bring him over."

Crossing to the bar, I greeted Balabas, with whom I was acquainted, and:

"Mr. Chundermeyer and I have been discussing the notorious Omar of Ispahan, who is said to be in Cairo," I remarked.

Inspector Carlisle, being introduced, smiled broadly.

"Mr. Balabas is very nervous about this Omar man," he replied, with a slight Scottish accent; "but, considering that everybody has been warned, I don't see myself that he can do much damage."

But Mr. Chundermeyer remained palpably uneasy.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

"Omar of Ispahan"

Is one of the stories in the series of short, original fiction by the most popular authors of today

TWO of the short stories are being printed each week in the Post-Dispatch, one starting on Sunday and being continued on Monday and Tuesday. The other starts on Wednesday and is continued through Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The story that will follow "Omar of Ispahan" is "Kearney," by Elizabeth Jordan. It will begin in the Post-Dispatch next Wednesday.

The writers represented in this great series are George Barr McCutcheon, Ellis Parker Butler, Holman F. Day, Richard Washburn Child, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, George A. Chamberlain, E. Phillips Oppenheim, John Fleming Wilson, Fanny Heaslip Lee, Frederich Orrin Bartlett, Henry C. Rowland, Lowell Otus Reese, Leonard Merrick, Elizabeth Jordan, Holworthy Hall, George Weston, Bruno Lessing, Maude Radford Warren, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Vingie E. AUSTRIAN REPUBLIC ELECTING SECOND PARLIAMENT TODAY

Women Required to Use Special Ballots to Determine Their Party Affiliations.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—The voters of Austria will ballot tomorrow for members of the National Assembly only. No other Federal offices are involved. It will be the second Parliament of the Austrian republic and will come into being in February, 1921.

The present Assembly consists of 81 Social Democrats, 79 Christian Socialists and 26 Grosse Deutsch Deputies. Pre-election estimates of leaders do not indicate any radical change in the proportionate strength of the two dominant parties, but do predict a gain from both by the center or Grosse Deutsch party. The various little parties or groups, of which there are some five or six without representation in the Parliament, seem to have thrown their fate with the Center, and probably will give it from 10 to 20 more seats. This party is classed as bourgeoise, or conservative, as opposed to the Left or Social Democrats.

The Communist party in Austria is almost negligible, according to best information. It is reported to number not more than 12,000 votes, has no representation in the present Assembly, and is not expected to muster sufficient strength to gain a seat in these elections.

Austria, like many of the new States of Europe, has provided in her election laws against the lost vote. A certain number of votes is required to give a "mandate," that is, to elect a member. The surplus vote for a member, if any, is thrown into a general pool. The pool is divided proportionately to the parties and additional members of the Assembly elected through it. It is estimated that the new Assembly will thus be given 15 more members than the present body.

It is provided that the women's votes shall be cast on ballots of a different character this year in order to determine party affiliation.

What the Portable Western Electric Sewing Machine Does.

Sews all day for less than 3 cents worth of current—No treadle pushing—No tired feet—No backache.

Doctors universally agree that treadling the old antique model treadle machines does much to impair a woman's health. The electric machine does away with this injurious practice.

Sews anything from fine, light Georgette crepe to heavy quilting without requiring regulation of tension.

Makes dresses, aprons, dainty waists.

AUSTRIAN HELD FOR KILLING SISTER AT HER REQUEST

Woman With Incurable Ailment Had Begged Doctors for Overdose of Morphine.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANCE, Switzerland, Oct. 16.—Johann Strugger, formerly a Captain in the Austrian Army, has been arrested on a charge of murder for shooting and killing his sister at her own request. The sister suffered a fracture of her spine in an Alpine accident last year, knew her illness to be incurable and had repeatedly begged the physicians of a sanitarium to relieve her of her sufferings by an overdose of morphine.

Strugger delivered an ultimatum to the physicians that if they failed to comply with his sister's wishes within five days he would shoot her himself. This he did with the full consent of the girl.

3500 TEACHERS ASKED TO AID SYMPHONY FUND

Appeals Sent Out by Supt. Withers—$125,000 Sought for Maintenance of Orchestra.

An appeal to 3500 teachers in the public schools of St. Louis for subscriptions to the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's maintenance fund of $125,000 has been sent out by Supt. Withers. The communications, which suggest voluntary donations, are addressed to the principals of the various schools with the advice that their contents be repeated verbally to the teachers. In this way, it is the hope of Dr. Withers, the public schools may show their appreciation for work the orchestra has done for the school over a period of many seasons.

Dr. Withers explained just how the appeal to the teachers came to be made. His action resulted, he said, after the Women's Advertising Club had made an attempt to get permission from the School Board to take up a collection among the children. Permission to do this was refused by the Executive Committee of the School Board.

Women's Ad Club to Aid.

"The Women's Advertising Club," said Dr. Withers, was one among those organizations asked by the St. Louis Symphony Society to appoint teams to aid in the collection of the $125,000 guarantee fund for the maintenance of the orchestra on a plane equal to that of similar organization of other cities. Instead of appointing teams they originated their own plans for aiding the funds.

"Miss Mary Wheat, president of the club, came to me and asked that I present the matter of taking up a collection among the school children to the Board of Education. I took up the matter with the Executive Committee of the board and it was rejected. The School Board stands opposed to any sort of collection among the school children.

"I was anxious to be of assistance to both the symphony orchestra and the Women's Advertising Club. The only method of getting around the matter and yet represent the schools in the symphony fund was to ask the aid of the teachers.

Donations Credited to Teachers.

While such donations will be credited to the public school teachers the Women's Advertising Club will be credited with the collection. Teachers' donations will be received by Miss Mary Wheat, 400 La Salle Building, and turned over to the Citizens' Campaign Committee.

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Society came to the realization early in the week that the campaign for funds, which was to end Saturday night, must be extended another week. Because the drive has been extended so greatly in number of citizens to be reached and area to be covered the teams were unable to cover the whole field in the time allowed and so will continue their quest all week.

TRYING TO KEEP PLANT HERE

The Chamber of Commerce is making an effort to induce the Davis Sewing Machine Co. of Dayton, O., not to remove to Dayton the plant of the Blue Bird Manufacturing Co., which it recently absorbed. The Blue Bird company manufactures washing machines. It recently went through a receivership and is now being operated here as a branch of the Davis company. It is planned to move the plant to Dayton in about 10 months.

R. D. Sangster, industrial commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce has forwarded to the Davis company a letter questioning its published statement that Dayton would afford better railroad and distribution facilities than St. Louis. He also has forwarded freight rate schedules showing the advantages of St. Louis and has asked for a conference.

BUSINESS MEN'S VIEWS SENT TO CANDIDATES

Associated Industries of Missouri Says It Favors Budget System, Open Shop and Tax Revision.

The Associated Industries of Missouri, an organization of business interest of the State with headquarters in St. Louis, yesterday made public a letter sent several days ago to candidates for State and legislative offices, outlining its views on several public questions in which it is interested.

The letter states that no effort has been made to pledge candidates in advance of election by means of questionnaires, believing that system to be unfair because, it says, a questionnaire represents the views of particular interests without regard for general public interest.

Stating that the organization has reached an agreement with representatives of the Missouri State Federation of Labor on amendments to the workmen's compensation law, which will be voted on under the referendum Nov. 2, the organization urges in the letter that all can support the law.

On the question of legislation to minimize or abolish strikes and lockouts, legislators are asked to study the Kansas experiment of a Court of Industrial Relations.

Legislation, which the organization states it favors, includes a budget system for State and national finances; the open shop; revision and reduction of taxes, State and national; the making of labor unions legally responsible for the keeping of their contracts of wages and working agreements, and the prohibiting of employes of the State or any political subdivision from affiliating with any labor union which does not consist exclusively of their co-employes in the same kind of employment.

Here Is the Best Tire Opportunity for Ford Owners That We Have Seen for Many Months

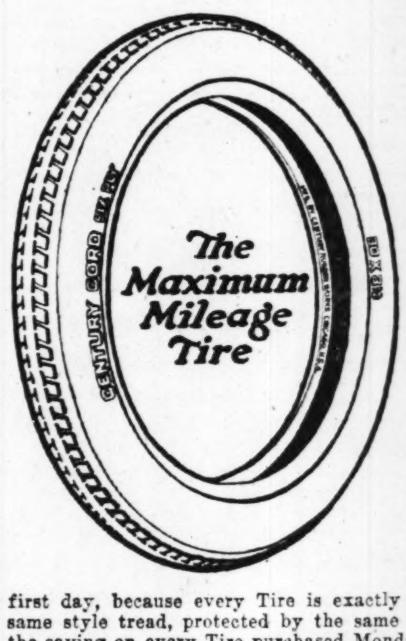
The Sale of 1214 Century Cord Tires

Size 30x3½, Regular Price, $40; Sale Price,

$19.95

(Including War Tax)

Guaranteed for 10,000 Miles



ALL adjustments made on basis of regular factory price. Every Tire new, fresh stock in the original wrapping, bearing the factory serial number and fully protected by the factory guarantee.

A Tire built of super-quality, constructed to give extra long service and to stand extra hard wear. Exceptionally desirable for Ford Sedans, trucks or any cars using this size tire.

The sale started Saturday with a tremendous response, but there are still enough Tires to supply all who may come tomorrow and there is presented exactly the same opportunity for the second day's selling as was offered the first day, because every Tire is exactly the same fine quality, the same style tread, protected by the same binding guarantee, so that the saving on every Tire purchased Monday will be exactly the same as was made on Tires purchased Saturday. Be sure to buy Tires for future needs in this event. Plenty of extra salespeople to give prompt and efficient service.

MORONEY APPEALS FINE FOR BARRING TWO INSPECTORS

Democratic Committeeman From Sixth Ward Objects to $50 Penalty for Preventing Canvass of His Premises.

John J. Moroney, Democratic Committeeman from the Sixth Ward, was fined $50 yesterday by Provisional Judge Matthews in police court on a charge that on Oct. 8 he refused to admit two building inspectors to his home at 517 Walnut street.

The inspectors testified that their desire to inspect Moroney's home was to determine how many persons made their home there, which would determine, they said, whether the city was entitled to collect a rooming house license.

The registration books for the general election show 18 men registered from 517 Walnut street. Democrats have charged that the canvass by building inspectors is a Republican move to strike Democratic voters from the registration lists.

George H. Frederick, chief building inspector, and Arthur R. Brunk, a subordinate, testified, in response to questions by Moroney's counsel, former Circuit Attorney Harvey, that the registration had no influence on their motive in seeking to inspect Moroney's place of residence.

Frederick said that Director of Public Safety McKelvey some time ago had directed that he make inspections to establish whether all rooming houses were listed as such and whether the city was obtaining all the licenses to which it is entitled.

Harvey appealed the fine and declared his intention to carry the case as far as need be to establish whether building inspectors had a right to enter homes for any purpose other than to establish the safety of the occupants. "A man's home is his castle," Harvey declared. "Building inspectors have no constitutional right to enter it to determine how many persons live there."

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

INQUIRY IN LONG'S CAMPAIGN EXPENSE BEGINS TOMORROW

Spencer Says He May Not Sit With Committee and Expects His Own Fund to Be Gone Into.

TESTIMONY LIKELY ON GOLTRA'S ACTIVITIES

Democratic Candidate for Senator Says He Welcomes Any Investigation of His Expenditures.

An inquiry into the primary campaign expenditures of Breckinridge Long, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, will be begun in St. Louis tomorrow by the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, of which Senator Kenyon of Iowa is chairman, and Senators Reed and Spencer of Missouri, Pomerene of Ohio and Edge of New Jersey, are members. The hearings will be in the Federal building.

Senator Spencer said yesterday that he did not expect to sit with the committee in St. Louis, and would not sit unless his presence was required by the chairman to make a quorum. He said he expected his campaign expenditures would be gone into and that he would be a witness before the committee.

However, there has been no announcement by the committee of the issuance of subpenas for persons connected with the Spencer campaign, while there have been seven witnesses summoned for the Long inquiry and four others who apparently are wanted to testify regarding the activities of National Committeeman Goltra in his pre-convention campaign for Attorney General Palmer.

Witnesses for Long Inquiry.

The witnesses called for the Long inquiry are Long, Charles P. Higgins, who aided him; Thomas J. Fisher, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, who was manager of the Long primary campaign; W. R. Hollister, executive secretary of the Democratic National Committee, and principal owner of the Missouri State Journal, a Democratic weekly published in Jefferson City; William T. Gray, editor of the Journal; A. T. Dumm of Jefferson City, a lawyer, who represented Hollister in the purchase of the Jefferson City Capital News, and Robert E. Holliway, Long's publicity representative in the primary campaign.

There have been political rumors that Long was the financial backer of the Journal and of the Capital News, but he issued a statement several months ago to the effect that he was not financially interested in the publishing company.

Witnesses summoned presumably on the Goltra inquiry are Mrs. W. W. Martin of Cape Girardeau, who was active in the opposition to Senator Reed at the San Francisco convention; Luther M. Wilson and J. K. Hill of Nevada, and Peter Gunn of St. Louis. Gunn is a representative of the Con P. Curran Printing Co.

Long's Statement.

Long, in a statement issued after the calling of the witnesses had been announced, said he welcomed any investigation of his expenditures, but said that he was the only senatorial candidate in the United States to be singled out for investigation and pointed out that Senator Spencer, his opponent in the campaign, was a member of the committee.

Senator Reed, who arrived in St. Louis yesterday, said he expected all the members of the committee would be present tomorrow.

BUY $1203 WORTH OF STAMPS

Total of $4770 Since Public Schools Opened in September.

Pupils in the public schools purchased $1203.94 worth of Thrift Stamps during the week which closed yesterday. This makes a grand total of $4770.54 purchased by them since the schools opened in September.

Waste paper collections in the schools last week amounted to 54,291 pounds. Since September a total of 256,745 pounds has been collected. The revenue from the sale of paper goes to the Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association. Last year a net profit of $17,308 was realized through the sale of waste paper.

Bankruptcy Suit Filed.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court yesterday against R. E. Laidley and R. L. Watson, doing business under the firm name of the R. E. Laidley Lumber Co., with offices in the Wright Building, by the following creditors: Price Veneer and Lumber Co. of Columbia, Miss., with claim of $1028.27; Danner Veneer Co. of Mobile, Ala., with claim of $2177.13, and Dotham Milling and Manufacturing Co. of Dotham, Ala., $500. They allege that the company committed an act of bankruptcy in preferring other creditors.

NEW YORK DOCTOR URGES INHALATION TREATMENTS

For Head, Nose and Throat Ailments

Claiming That the Swallowing of Medicines Is Often Impracticable and Impossible, Physician Advocates "Breathing It In"

Evidently believing that the cure is often more detrimental than the disease, P. David Schultz, M. D. of New York, has published a strong article in the New York Medical Journal Magazine, indorsing the "Medicine by Inhalation" method of treatment.

He is, apparently, opposed to the swallowing of drugs that might impair the digestive organs in order to reach a cold in the head, bronchitis, hay fever or the onset of influenze, pneumonia, tuberculosis, etc. His reasoning seems sound that the ailments affecting the nose, throat and lungs are more easily reached and overcome by breathing in the remedy in the form of medicated vapor.

"Nearly twenty years ago I was asked to examine a man who could scarcely walk about and who had been condemned by two physicians, one saying he could live no more than three months and the other that he could not live thru the Winter. I undertook the task of relieving his suffering and if possible lengthen his life. In six weeks he returned to his work and he is alive now. He says that he has gained twenty years of life and is in better health now than he was for years before treatment.

"The method of inhalation treatment is simplicity itself.

"In the inhalation treatment we have one more aid in overcoming disease. It may be used by itself or in conjunction with other methods. It has the advantage of direct influence upon the system. The stomach is spared for the normal function of digestion. Persons who can not be given medicine by any other means can be treated in this way. It is an ideal method."

One deep inhalation of the healing, soothing vapor given off by Victory Vapor Balm and the stuffy head, clogged nose or tight chest becomes clear and free at once. Use it daily. Bathing the entire respiratory tract each day with this medicated vapor kills all breathed-in germs and guards against colds, grippe and flu.

Our new sun-lighted plant where the successful men and women of the future are being developed.

GIRLS and WOMEN WANTED

The Home of Rexall Products

New Plant

The above picture shows our beautiful new plant at 3901 North King's Highway, located away from the smoke of the city. Note the countless large windows that admit air and sunshine. They do much toward making this one of the healthiest as well as one of the most attractive places in St. Louis to work. Here you will find a complete plant—under one roof—with all the latest improvements in machinery, ventilating systems and sun-lighted rooms. Intelligent and morally fit employers, together with ideal working conditions, make employment here a real pleasure.

Clubs

We want you to want to work here and have provided everything for your pleasure and comfort. Social clubs have been organized to plan dances and entertainments. Girls' drum corps and bands are being organized. This Winter we will have bowling teams which will hold tournaments between departments. There is an up-to-date cafeteria in the plant, where good food is served at low prices, and an employes' store, where our products may be purchased at cost. Each employe is an individual part of our organization, where the spirit of good fellowship prevails. You will like your fellow workers.

Opportunity

New plants always offer more opportunity for advancement. Efficient girls can become foreladies at very good salaries in a short time. To the girls who wish to learn a well-paying trade we can offer unusual opportunities in our candy department. Frequently girls earn as high as $50 per week in this profession. It is clean, light work and a business in which one can soon become independent. Uniforms are furnished which means a saving in clothing. Seats are provided throughout the plant. Superintendents are fair and square and always ready to hear your side of the story. Good work is rewarded by rapid advances in positions and salary.

Parents

Are your girls engaged in profitable employment? Are they working in sunlighted rooms, breathing washed air? Are you sure of their associates? Are they progressing in their work, learning a trade or business that will pay them well and lead them to independence? Do you not want them to work for a company with a world-wide reputation for fair dealing? A visit to the new Rexall plant will convince you that it is an ideal working place for your daughters.

MILK FUND PASSES $7100 MARK AND SETS NEW RECORD

Campaign Formally Closes Today—Largest Previous Total in Last 16 Years Was $6700.

$1000 FROM ELKS PUTS FUND OVER GOAL

$4000 of Amount Will Be Used to Provide Ice for Babies, Balance for Milk for Children of Poor.

1911	4,972	1919	6,700
1912	2,976	1920	7,178

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Contribution	Amount
Previously acknowledged	$6089.00
Elks' Club entertainment and dance	1000.00
Viola Detter Dancing Class benefit, Cinderella Hall	81.00
Carnival, 5400 Ruskin	5.00
Eight friends of the babies	3.60
Total	$7178.60

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund yesterday passed the $7100 mark, breaking all records for 16 years for the amount of money raised in a single season. The campaign formally closes today, but contributions may still be made. The fund's largest previous total was approximately $6700 last year, and $5100 the preceding year.

The new record was established when a check for $1000 was received from the Elks' Club, the amount being the proceeds to date of the entertainment and dance which members of the club sponsored on September 24 at their club house, 3619 Lindell boulevard. Jules Bertero, secretary of the Elks' Club, states that complete returns for all tickets have not been made and it is expected that the final check will put the total contribution beyond the $1100 mark.

Further substantial assistance was received from Miss Viola Detter, 2744A Chippewa street, who turned in $81, the amount raised by a show which was given some weeks ago in Cinderella Hall by 27 pupils of her dancing class. The use of the hall was donated by the owner, Eugene Freund, so the expense was kept at a minimum.

Children's Carnival Nets $5.

Five children reported a carnival at 5400 Ruskin street which netted $5. They are Ruth Gieske, Lola Menown, Grayce Wilcox, Ernestine Rensch and Evelyn Stahr.

A money order for $3.60 was received from eight friends of the babies who failed to state how they earned that amount and did not include their addresses with their names. The names follow: Nona and Margery Gentry, Margaret Buddy, Meliss, Betty and Dorothy Burgdorf, Clementine Thomasson and Max McMahon.

Increasing costs in all directions have created a need for more money in the work for the babies than ever before and the fund of $7100 this year would be about equivalent to a fund of $6500 in purchasing power compared with former years. Practically 80 per cent of the fund this year was raised by children with their entertainments and other affairs.

$4000 Goes for Ice.

Virtually $4000 of the amount raised will be used to defray the expenses of furnishing free ice to families in which there are small children, and the balance will be used, as in former years, to purchase milk for the tenement children.

The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission through which the Post-Dispatch Milk and Ice Fund administers its milk, is a year-round organization supported by charitable citizens of St. Louis, distributing certified milk at cost.

During the summer months the bills for free milk are met through the fund, and this year because of the new record established, the fund will be able to finance the work of distributing free milk for at least two months longer than in any previous year. It is hoped that next season a fund sufficiently large will be raised to make the work of distributing free milk a 12-month proposition. For this a fund of at least $10,000 would be necessary.

Through a typographical error the contribution of $10 from the Relatives' Auxiliary of the St. Louis National Guards was recorded in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch as $3.

35,000 ATTENDED "Y" MOVIES

There Were 3000 Men at Noonday Industrial Meeting.

A recapitulation of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association during the last few months shows that 35,000 persons, composed of 30 nationalities and all creeds and races, attended the outdoor moving pictures of the Industrial Commission.

Three thousand men attended the noonday industrial meetings at manufacturing plants last month, and the two citizenship classes, where the history of America, its laws and Government are taught, were attended by 110 men. Six additional English classes were formed during the last week.

A campaign is now on to open a $5000 Benton-Maplewood Community Y. M. C. A.

MILK PRODUCERS BUY TRACT AT HIGHLAND

Plan to Build Bottling Plant and Enter St. Louis Market as Distributors.

The Highland branch of the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association yesterday purchased a tract of ground 200x250 feet in Highland upon which it proposes to erect a plant for the pasteurization and bottling of the milk produced by its 700 members for retail distribution in St. Louis and East St. Louis.

This is the first definite step toward the fulfillment of the threat of Southern Illinois producers to enter the St. Louis market as distributors if the St. Louis distributing companies did not accede to the price demanded by them for their raw milk.

For three weeks St. Louis producers, who for many years have obtained their milk from Southern Illinois, have been buying it in distant States rather than pay $3.60 per 100 pounds, as demanded by the producers.

The 700 members of the Highland branch normally produce 70,000 pounds, or approximately 10,000 gallons of milk daily. They have been disposing of their milk to the Helvetia Milk Condensing Co. in Highland, but that company recently ceased condensing milk and has been diverting its milk to the St. Louis market.

The producers protested against this and declare that the receipts at the condensery have dwindled to about 6000 pounds a day as a result.

The amount of stock offered members in the new project is $175,000. It is said that enough has been sold to indicate subscription of the full amount.

DISCOVERED A CURE FOR ASTHMA

Chemist Discovers a Simple Home Remedy for Asthma and Makes a Generous Offer.

Mr. D. J. Lane, a chemist located at 375 Lane Bldg., St. Mary's, Kansas, has discovered a simple home remedy for Asthma. To test it he sent some to people who had been suffering from Asthma for years, and to their delight they state they were easily cured. Mr. Lane is so proud of his discovery and has so much confidence in its ability to cure that he will send a $1.25 bottle postpaid to any one who will write for it. His offer is that he is to be paid for it if it cures. The one taking it is to be the judge and report its effect within ten days after using the remedy. If you suffer from Asthma write for a bottle at once. Send no money. Just your name and address.

HELLRUNG & GRIMM

$25 Worth of Pathe Records Free

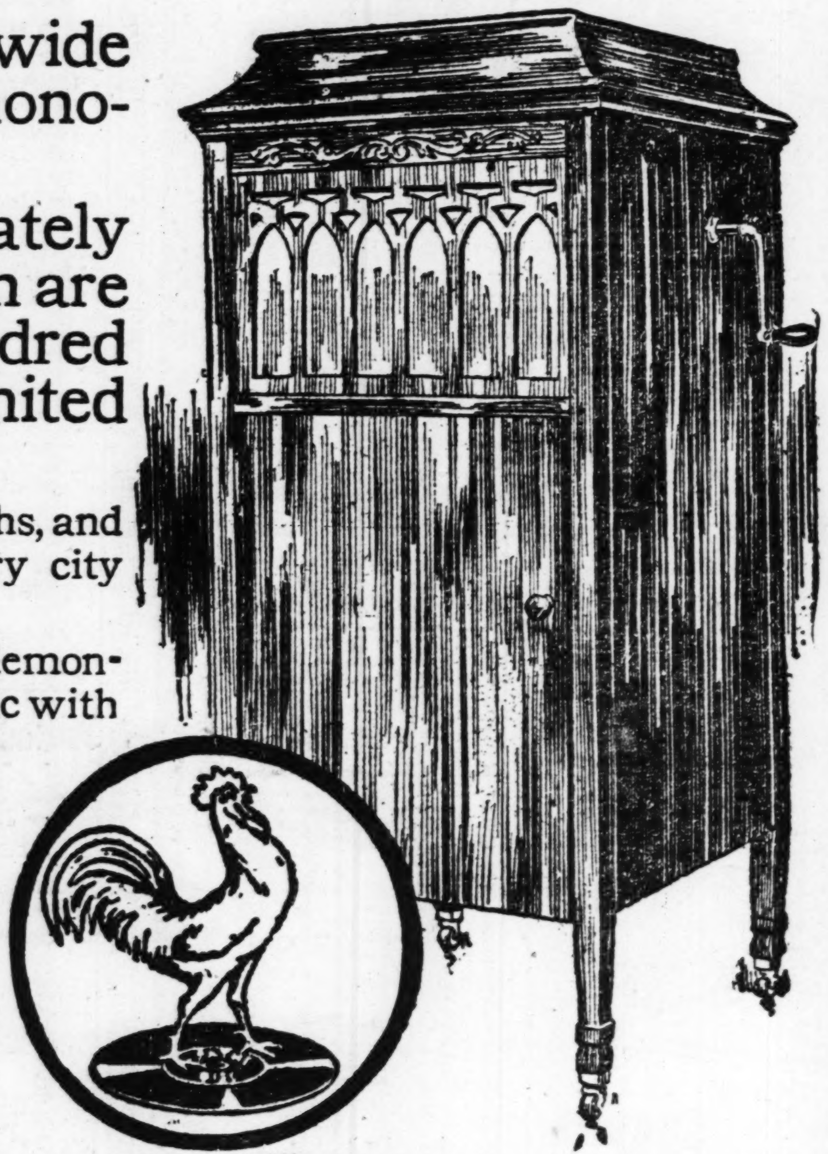
1. This is a co-operative nation-wide demonstration sale of Pathe Phonographs and Pathe Records.
2. The sale is one of approximately one hundred similar sales which are planned to be held in one hundred of the principal cities of the United States.
3. The plan, advertising, price of the phonographs, and general conditions of sale are identical in every city where the sale will be held.
4. The reason back of this great nation-wide demonstration campaign is to better acquaint the public with the merits of Pathe Phonographs and Pathe Records by letting the people see and hear them direct rather than to reach them indirectly through magazine advertising alone.
5. The outfit offered through this special publicity campaign consists of:

One genuine 1921 Pathe Phonograph, regular model 10, as illustrated.

One Universal tone arm and sound box for playing all makes of records.

One indestructible Pathe Sapphire Ball (full-tone), and one Pathe Sapphire Ball (half-tone), for playing Pathe Records.

6. And $25 worth of Pathe Records of your own selection.
7. The price for the full equipment is $150—the price of the Pathe Phonograph alone.
8. Your first or initial cash payment may be as little as $5.00.
9. The balance you may spread out over a period of one year.
10. Every Pathe Phonograph sold during this sale is guaranteed in writing for one (1) year, both the manufacturer and ourselves agreeing to replace any defective parts without charge should any appear within that time.



Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Why you should own the Jeweled Pathe

There are five distinct and definite reasons why you should own the genuine jeweled Pathe in preference to all other Phonographs. And this great nation-wide Demonstration Sale is to prove the superiority of these points, beyond the question of a doubt.

1st.—Because the full, clear tone of each individually toned instrument is reproduced by the pure tone chamber and the famous Pathe sapphire ball. The music flows from the records. It isn't scratched off.

2d.—Because there are no needles to change on the genuine Pathe. The sapphire ball never wears out, neither does it wear out the records.

3d.—Because the Pathe plays all makes of records, and plays them with more natural and lifelike tone than any other Phonograph. The entire wealth of the Phonograph world is available to you, if you own the Pathe.

4th.—Because the Pathe is always ready to play. Just slip on a record and the Pathe is ready.

5th.—Because the Pathe Controlla enables you to play any record loudly or softly with the same sapphire ball.

Tear this out, fill in and mail to us at once

CITY SANITARIUM IS CRITICISED IN REPORT BY SHUTT

Hospital Commissioner Says Institution Is Only Storage House for Insane and Should Be Completed.

SAYS KOCH HOSPITAL CONDITIONS ARE BAD

Declares New Isolation Building Is Needed and Assistant City Hospital Superintendent Should Be Provided For.

Descriptions of the city sanitarium as "only a storage house for insane people," and of the Robert Koch Hospital as "the tag end of the department," are samples of the caustic phraseology employed by Hospital Commissioner Cleveland H. Shutt in his report for the fiscal year ending last April. It was submitted to Director of Public Welfare Schmoll on Sept. 30, and made public last Friday.

Dr. Shutt declares that both himself and the heads of the various institutions have come to regard the making of annual reports as a waste of time and energy, since they are never read except by the official one step superior to the writer.

"During my experience as Hospital Commissioner since 1911," says Dr. Shutt, "I have never had any official other than my immediate superior officer make any remark about my reports, and only two have been printed for distribution. Those who have to do with the finances and the decision of important policies see but little of the reports."

Koch Hospital Criticised.

"The Robert Koch Hospital," writes the Hospital Commissioner, "has always been the tag end of the department.

"Although three new buildings for incipient patients and a home for nurses have been erected," he says, "the grounds have been in a most unsightly condition; the smallpox patients have been housed in old frame buildings, and the two leper patients have been subjected to almost solitary confinement, in addition to their disease."

The title, "Koch Hospital," should be eliminated at the earliest moment, says Dr. Shutt, and an attractive title chosen for the colony.

All that saves the City Sanitarium from being crowded far beyond capacity, according to the Hospital Commissioner, is the fact that the influenza epidemics of the last two years resulted in the deaths of about 250 patients. The institution has virtually reached its limit with a daily average of 2351 patients. The "population" is also kept down by a strict enforcement of the law that no patient may be admitted permanently who has not for a year been a resident of the city.

"I have again," the report continues, "to emphasize the necessity of completing this institution along modern lines. In all my reports for the last eight years I have pointed out that the institution is not complete, and is, in fact, only a storage house for insane people. In order to have a real sanitarium there should be buildings for properly housing employes; separate buildings for physicians and their families, so that they will be encouraged to remain as long as possible under reasonable living conditions; an entertainment and industrial pavilion for employes, and a special building for the feeble-minded.

Children Need Special Care.

"At the present time there are more than 500 feeble-minded children in the higher grades in this city, who need institutional care and training. We are able to accept only the lower grade cases; and these we have should not be in an institution where they have to mingle with the adult insane.

"It is necessary that something be done to provide more room for the insane, and I do not histate to add that it would be a crime to erect any more buildings on the present site. The municipal farm is an absolute necessity, and it is to be hoped that in the coming bond election this project will not be voted down.

"Many inmates from the sanitarium could be placed on this farm and would be benefited beyond measure, at the same time producing—provided the ground is of the producing kind—enough farm products to supply not only themselves, but a number of the other city institutions. The ground should be of such character that it would react to action. If these mental defectives contribute their care and attention to some particular activity they should be able to see results of an encouraging character; otherwise, depression will result instead of inspiration."

Buildings required for the sanitarium farm, according to Dr. Shutt, would include one for 300 to 400 white and negro male adults; another for about 250 white and negro female adults, and others for from 250 to 300 feeble-minded patients, ranging in age from 4 years to 21.

58 Cents Per Day Per Patient.

However, the Hospital Commissioner reports, a survey of the sanitarium was made during last year by Dr. W. S. Hamilton of the National Society of Mental Hygiene, with the result that he classed it as "the best public insane asylum in the State." The yearly per capita cost was $212.83, or 58 cents per day. Paying patients, cared for at the rate of $20 a month, yield from $12,000 to $15,000 revenue each year.

Dr. Shutt uses vigorous language in speaking of the difficulties suffered during past years from the interne staff of the city hospital. The problem was solved last year, he says, by importing 17 internes from Rush Medical College, in Chicago, which requires its students to put in one year of satisfactory hospital service before obtaining their diplomas. "This had a steadying effect upon the entire corps," relates the Hospital Commissioner. "The other half of the crops knew well that the hospital could run, in case of necessity, with 17 men, and, therefore, we had practically no disturbance."

"It is with great regret," Dr. Shutt proceeds, "that I have to record my impression, after 15 years' of experience in the department, to the effect that too many young men graduating from medical colleges seem to have a very loose or false impression concerning their written and moral obligations.

"Many of them come into the hospital with the idea of doing complicated operations and examinations for which only those are fitted who have had years of training and experience. They frequently become dissatisfied and criticise everything in general and the management in particular.

"One of the first obligations of the management is to secure proper medical attention for the patients, and in order to do this we require internes to sign agreements as to a term of service. Only too frequently, after signing the agreements, the men, without any apparent regard for the obligations either in writing or to the patients, leave the hospital without warning or on some flimsy excuse, thus reflecting most seriously upon themselves and injuring the unfortunate sick of the hospital."

A tribute is paid to the graduate nurses of the city hospital training school who voluntarily left their private work to care for the nonpaying sick at the city hospital during the second influenza epidemic; and to the physicians of the visiting staff, for the promptness and attentiveness of their care for patients.

During the past three years it has been necessary constantly to increase the wages of employes at the city hospital, says Dr. Shutt. The per capita cost of maintaining patients rose to $1.77 as against $1.08 in 1916; and yet, "due to shortage of help, we have not been able to give the same quality of service as before 1914." During the year 13,031 patients were admitted, with 276,375 days of treatment. The mortality rate was 10.9, which is 1 per cent less than in the previous year.

CITY SANITARIUM IS CRITICISED IN REPORT TO SHUTT

Needs an Assistant.

As a vital point regarding the city hospital is emphasized the necessity of engaging an assistant superintendent. "No other hospital of this size in the United States," declares Dr. Shutt, "is conducted by one man alone." When the manager fell ill with typhoid fever, the Hospital Commissioner himself had to discharge his duties.

Many cases of cross-infection during the year at the Isolation Hospital, Dr. Shutt avers, "due to the fact that we now have only one building, the other one having been let to the Government under a lease which extends to 1924." During the year 1337 patients were treated here, of whom 98 died.

"I trust," the report continues," that a new isolation building will be erected without fail during the coming year. It would provide for isolation and observation of cases in which the diagnosis is still in doubt Such conditions may last from one to several days, and if these doubtful cases are placed with other patients cross-infections are bound to and frequently do occur.

"It is perfectly evident that there are too many different diseases being treated in the same building. The new structure would also provide much needed room for the nurses, who are now required to live in the same building with the patients. I attribute part of our difficulty in obtaining nurses to this unsatisfactory method of housing them."

Poor House Inadequate.

The city infirmary, or poor house, can accommodate only 425 inmates, acording to the report, whereas 750 is about the average that should be handled. It has been found necessary to send negro inmates to city hospital No. 2, and during the winter months many persons who ought to be in the infirmary must be sent to the municipal lodging house.

"I wish here to call attention," says Dr. Shutt, "to an observation made after years of experience, that there is a most distressing lack of facilities in this city, as in most communities, for the care of unfortunate aged persons. They have no means of earning a livelihood and no friends or relatives to come to their aid. Many of them have been honorable citizens, and deserve better in their old and declining years. It is not due to any fault of their own that many have to apply for care at the hands of the city.

"I most sincerely urge that the Chamber of Commerce, the Provident Association and other interested bodies make an effort to increase the facilities in our private institutions for aged people who are partially destitute, yet who are not lacking in character or spirit."

Report on Negro Hospital.

City Hospital No. 2, for negro patients, was opened Nov. 25, 1919, and up to the following April had treated 1353 patients, a daily average of 165. The resident and associate visiting staffs are composed of negro physicians, and several negro nurses were trained at the city hospital for service here. "The colored people," says Dr. Shutt, "now have ample hospital accommodations with the care of physicians and nurses of their own race, advised by white physicians, and with the white superintendent and assistant and superintendent of nurses to start, until satisfactory colored nurses can be trained for these positions."

Regarding the city dispensaries, Dr. Shutt asserts that the one disappointing feature is the fact that this service is still housed in the old building at Eleventh and Market streets, which is unfit to be used for any purpose, and has been condemned several times. The new clinic building at the city hospital should have been completed long ago, says he, but unfortunate conditions concerning material and labor have prevented.

The Municipal Nurses Board reports a great shortage of nurses both among pupil and graduate staffs. Many graduate nurses entered the Red Cross service by way of the war; others have married; and pupil nurses have not enlisted owing to better employment fields in industry, at higher wages than nurses usually receive.

VAUDEVILLE BY WORKERS AT ST. LOUIS RAILWAY EXPOSITION

Affair to Be Held Week of Oct. 25 at Railroad Y. M. C. A. Building.

Vaudeville features from the offices, shops and lines of the railroads entering the St. Louis gateway, will constitute most of the entertainment during the week of the St. Louis Railway Exposition which opens at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. Building, Twentieth and Engenia streets, Monday, Oct. 25, and closes Saturday night, Oct. 30, with a dance and Halloween carnival.

All of the display space was assigned three weeks ago. The displays will cover a wide range, and include most of the equipment and supplies used by a modern railway.

The public will be admitted free to all of the exhibits and entertainments. Among the out-of-town speakers expected are R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway Association; Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age; B. M. Jewell, grand chief of the Shopmen's Brotherhood; W. G. Lee, president Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; H. O. Williams, secretary of the International Railroad Y. M. C. A. J. Bell, secretary National S. Council; J. Hardin Smith, Railroad Y. M. C. A., and officials of some of the principal railway supply companies.

Mayor Kiel will speak on the opening day, and during the week there will be addresses by B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific; J. M. Kurn, president of the Frisco; J. M. Herbert, president of the Cotton Belt; Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Railroad Association; N. S. Brown, vice president of the Wabash; Clarence H. Howard, president of the Commonwealth Steel Co.; W. E. Williams of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and L. G. Scott, vice president of the Wabash.

MACKEREL SCHOOLS REPORTED

By the Associated Press

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 16.—Mackerel have appeared in big schools off the Cape Breton Coast, between North Sidney and Louisburg, according to a telegram posted by the Board of Trade today. The news caused a flurry among fishermen here, and every available boat was made ready to get away before night.

UNION FURNITURE CO., 805-7-9 FRANKLIN AV.

A MAMMOTH FURNITURE PURCHASE
To Be Sold in Double-Quick Time at Unheard-of Low Prices!!

GIGANTIC MANUFACTURERS'

CANCELLED ORDER SALE

Through this gigantic purchase, the Union delivers a smashing blow at high furniture prices. This is another triumph for this new and totally different furniture store. Here are the reasons that make these low prices of years ago possible: Since the wave of price readjusting has struck the country, manufacturers everywhere received cancellations from practically every retailer who was loaded to the guards with furniture bought at the old high prices of a year ago. These retailers wanted to dispose of their high-priced stocks before receiving any further goods, with the result that manufacturers found themselves heavily overstocked, with no outlet for their merchandise. This establishment was one of the few stores in position to take advantage of this situation. We bought thousands of dollars' worth of quality furniture at amazing discounts. Now, this tremendous stock must be sold at once. You can actually buy here now at prices at which retailers bought this merchandise wholesale a few months ago. If you need furniture, you need hesitate no longer. Come here Monday.

$850,000,000 WAR LOANS OF FRANCE AND ENGLAND PAID

Redemption in Cash of Obligations Maturing in America Called Noteworthy Achievement in Finance.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The paying off in cash of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan of 1915 is one of those events whose far-reaching significance is apt to be obscured by minor circumstances. Its good effect on financial sentiment, it is commonly argued, has been prejudiced by the placing of a new loan for $100,000,000 here by France in order to complete the payment. But this contention overlooks the perfectly well-known fact that in a normal money market, domestic and international, such virtual refunding would in 99 cases out of 100 have been adopted, not only for one-fifth of the maturing debt, but for all of it. The reason why Wall street disliked the $100,000,000 borrowing was that it came as an unexpected and inconvenient requisition in a difficult investment market and that it really represented the refunding of 5 per cents into 8 per cents. But our own Government, if it had chosen to put out a new long-term loan this autumn would have had a similar experience.

"When the Anglo-French loan was floated in this country, five years ago this month, there were a good many people, even outside of 'German sympathizers,' who insisted that it could never be repaid. Some well-known financiers explained to their colleagues in October, 1915, that with six months more of war, England and France would both be bankrupt. There were three years more of war without any sign of insolvency in either Government. Nevertheless the problem of redemption seemed more insoluble after the war was over than it had seemed in 1915.

Loans Paid Off.

"It has been solved, however, and on the whole with great simplicity. It has cleared away almost the last of the European loans which will mature in the 'transition period.' The United Kingdom 5½s of 1921 are amply secured with collateral which will itself pay off the loan; otherwise, for a couple of years from now, there remain only one or two minor indebtedness. Deducting the $100,000,000 raised by France as part provision for this week's payment, something more than $850,000,000 of war loans maturing in America have now been paid off in cash by France and England. This is a very noteworthy achievement in the history of finance; its influence on the foreign credit of both Governments ought to be very great.

"Judging from the somewhat hysterical phase into which the decline of commodity prices and the current discussion of it have passed, the panicky part of the episode ought to be nearing its end. Commodities do not, like stocks, move in unison; there will be downward readjustment of prices in some commodities while others are regaining part of their losses. Apparently steel and iron, for instance, will be losing ground when in other staple products which have had their turn at readjustment has been checked. Even with cotton, the fall in price could not possibly have progressed so far and so rapidly this week, had it not been for the unpardonable recklessness with which Southern markets and some Southern banks staked their resources on 40-cent cotton weeks after the change in the conditions of supply and demand had become visible to everybody. But there will be an end to the consequences even of this.

Optimistic Over South.

"A South which was not ruined by 8-cent cotton in the war panic of 1914 is not going into insolvency because of 20-cent or 25-cent cotton in 1920.

"The panicky state of the commodity markets this season has come so suddenly and has been so different in scope from what most people had expected, that it is not easy to forecast their immediate future. What usually follows just such an episode, however—as was certainly the case after the stock market had ended its period of panicky collapse last spring—is, first, an irregular recovery and then a fairly long pause in any movement of the markets, while buyers as well as sellers are getting accustomed to the new level of values and making their plans accordingly."

SHARP DECLINES IN COTTON GOODS; MORE EXPECTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Following the trend of lower prices in other commodities, the cotton goods markets for the last week have registered declines running far beyond anything ever known in the history of the trade. As low as 10c was accepted for 38½-inch 64x60s, that sold as high as 26c in April.

Today a new price of 20c is announced on Fruit of the Loom bleached muslins, which is 20c a yard down from the high price on agents' hands during this year. Hope 4-4 muslins were cut to 17½c a yard, the top price having been 34c early in the year.

It now is expected that the large printers of percales and prints will abandon the policy of protection on their goods, and a wide-open market is predicted when new prices are finally decided on, which may not be until later this month. One line of denims at 32½c, down from 47½c, is not expected to mark the low points, as other manufacturers are yet to be heard from.

Trading has been very light in finished and unfinished cloths and much curtailment of production has occurred in cloth and yarn mills, as well as in knit underwear mills.

Jobbers have done little, but reports from retail centers still show a fairly steady business at prices relatively much higher than those prevailing in mill agency circles.

Cotton yarn markets have continued dull and weak, with prices at the lowest points yet reached this year.

COMMODITY PRICES OFF IN ENGLISH MARKETS

Purchases of Securities by Americans Taken as Favorable Turn.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The outstanding feature of the present situation is a moderate fall in prices of commodities, especially in the Mincing Lane Markets. There is much agitation in the press, either prophesying or demanding a still lower level. If conditions are allowed to follow their natural course the process of decline will be simply gradual and for the present moderate, with very small credit embarrassments among business firms.

There is a danger, however, that the agitation will result in frozen markets, with consequent financial troubles. Our purging of loans by banks to carry commodities has been less drastic than on your side. Hence there is sensitiveness to the present influences, which are accentuated by the cancelling numerous orders from the East, owing to the fall in prices.

Problem of Floating Debt.

Another peculiarity of the situation is, that while the world's demand for goods is still great, many nations are unable to make the necessary payments. Our monetary situation is also highly peculiar. The key is to be found in the size of the floating debt. Thus, a week ago the nonrenewal of Treasury bills by the banks caused the Government to borrow £60,000,000 at the bank on Ways and Means advances. Then followed fictitious ease ultimately restrained by fresh purchases of Treasury bills by the bank, but during the interval, the borrowing at the bank set fresh inflationary influences in motion.

It must be remembered that while our Government provided all the exchange facilities for the redemption of our share of the Anglo-French loan yesterday, the redemption did not really mean the cancellation of that amount of British debt, but simply its transfer from external to local form.

Additional Inflation.

There will probably be considerable further inflation in the next few weeks, which will reach the maximum in the first week of December, when the Government disburses £50,000,000 in interest. Strenuous efforts will be made, however, to avoid an 8-per-cent bank rate, unless increased stringency develops on your side, when we should advance the rate to that figure immediately.

In spite of the present spurt at New York, however, it is believed that your monetary position is permanently better and your recent purchases of securities on this side attract attention as possibly denoting not only confidence in the improvement of your monetary position, but a belief that the maximum depression in sterling has been nearly reached.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The foreign exchange market all through the past week showed an extremely heavy tone with about the only support in rates on leading centers representing sales of foreign holdings of stocks. A large part of this selling came from Amsterdam and was effective in steadying the rate for guilders after the decline at the beginning of the week, but did not create any display in strengthening and the market for Dutch exchange was regarded by those active in dealings on Amsterdam as being heavy for various reasons, for which many statements have been published.

Sterling exchange was in supply from the beginning of the week, and yesterday the market became one almost wholly of offerings without bids and the pressure forced the rate for demand down to $3.45¾, a new low since it ranged above $4. Sentiment expressed by banking dealers was of a disquieting character, many of them attaching the highest importance to labor disturbance now regarded as a menace in England. German exchange was in steady supply, moving down day after day a small amount of the time. Italian at times showed a steady tone partly as a result of support from the institute, but lire checks also yielded materially, selling down to $3.91. A feature of the South American exchange markets was the weakness in Brazil, milreis yesterday falling to the new low of $16.98.

The following table gives the week's high and low sight rates for foreign exchange:

	High	Low
London, sterling	$ 3.49¾	$ 3.45¾

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The thing which must impress the observer in a review of this week's financial movement is the increasing divergence between the course of prices on the Stock Exchange and the course of events in outside trade. The deflation in general business is still going on. Commodity prices are still on the downward path.

The copper market is the latest to feel the force of the process of readjustment. It has fallen this week to a level well under the cost of production. Most of the copper companies now face the prospect of doing business at a loss. They will have to curtail their output and in some cases, like in the Anaconda, will have to borrow money to carry their present stocks.

The sugar companies are not as badly off, but their margin of profit has been cut to a minimum. Cotton growers are bewailing their lot and claiming at present prices for their product, they would, if compelled to sell, suffer a heavy loss.

The farmers of the West engaged in wheat and corn growing are more insistent than any in their protestations against the decline of prices. They contend that grain is far below the cost of production.

These and many other incidents of the sort make up a picture of the industrial situation which is certainly anything but pleasing. Yet the security markets so far from being depressed, have been, except in a very few quarters, steadily forging ahead. It might seem to the ordinary person on the outside an anomalous state of affairs. Yet the explanation is perfectly simple to everybody familiar with the teachings of the past. The security market never moves abreast of current business; it always moves far ahead of it. Stock prices started downward nearly a year ago and it was at least six months before any signs appeared of a letup in trade. What is true of the downward movement must also be true of the recovery. The stock market must logically start upon its upward swing six months ahead of outside business.

Credit Situation.

Regarding the credit situation and the efforts that are being made to keep down bank loans there are conflicting tendencies at work. On the one hand it is distinctly encouraging that there is such an active demand for new securities. Quite a part of these new security issues represent the refunding of bank loans and the shifting of these loans from the banks to the investing public.

On the eve of possibly the greatest industrial struggle that England has ever gone through, the markets abroad have preserved a surprising calmness.

Our much more sensitive community over here was inclined to have misgivings when it learned of the vote for a British coal strike. But even the most pessimistic could hardly refuse to see that it was quite illogical for our market to get excited when London was taking the situation so complacently. Back of the steadiness of the English investment list during the last few days probably lies a feeling of relief that the issue so long threatening is at last to be tried and a feeling also of confidence that with public sentiment overwhelmingly against the miners, as it undoubtedly is, the English coal strike will go the way the railway strike did a year ago and the way our own steel and coal strike as did last autumn.

The Bond Market.

The feature in bond trading today was the Reading general 4 per cents. These bonds had jumped yesterday 4½ points. They had another similar jump today following the directing of attention to their possibilities under the segregation plan. Holders of these bonds are in a position if not to block, at least to hold up the entire deal by prolonged litigation. Hence there is every inducement to get them out of the way. Inasmuch as they are not retirable until 1997, a special court order would have to be secured to abrogate the maturity date on the ground that the bonds belonged to a company that was under the ban of the law. In this event it would be possible to call the bonds in. It was evident that this morning's price of 86 for the Reading generals was altogether too high for a 4-per-cent issue that did not mature for 77 years. The only justification for this price was the belief that the bonds would be paid off at their full value under the new financial plan.

French Government 8s maintained their advance of a point and held the 102 level. The Belgian 7½s were off a fraction at 99¾ and the Belgian 6s of 1921 were unchanged at 99⅜. So were the Swiss 8s at 104.

Liberty Bonds varied very little from yesterday's final. The tractions were in some demand and among the industrials the rise in Wilson & Co. convertibles continued. These bonds have risen over 2 points since the declaration of the regular dividend on Wilson stock. In the equipment group the Pennsylvania 7s were the feature, getting up to 104⅞.

Steel Rail Prices.

It is expected in some Wall Street quarters that the Steel Corporation will set its 191 price for rails at $10 higher than the present level, or at $55 for Bessemer and $57 for open hearth rails. Orders are reported to have been taken by some independents for rails for next year's shipment at $62.50 a ton.

TRADE IS ACTIVE ON CURB MARKET AND TONE FIRM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—There was more business in the two-hour session on the curb today than there has been on any previous session on Saturday since Spring. The tone was strong in the early dealings and some good advances were recorded. Toward the end of the first hour, however, profit-taking sales caused recession, but the demand continued fair and rallies from the lowest prices were recorded, so that the tone throughout the session can be described as firm.

General Asphalt made a moderate advance at the start, but ran into selling pressure which caused a reaction of more than a point. When this pressure was removed the stock rallied quite sharply.

Submarine Boat was a shade higher. United Profit Sharing was steady. Acme Coal scored a fractional advance on buying, by some of the leading commission houses.

Oil shares generally were firm, but business was not quite as active as in the other departments. Guffey-Gillespie held strong, and Carib syndicate was active around yesterday's high mark. International Petroleum, new, was steady.

Practically all the trading in the mining list was confined to the low-priced stocks. The tone was steady.

Bonds were less active, but held about steady.

Coffee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The market for coffee futures opened at a decline of 10 to 23 points in response to lower cables from Brazil and further liquidation. There appeared to be a better demand around the 6c level for December, however and after selling at that figure the price rallied to 6.25c on covering, while some trade or investment buying was also reported during the morning. Closing prices were net 3 points lower to 2 points higher—October 6c, December 6.22c, January 6.48c, March 6.97c, May 7.24c, July 7.52c, September 7.72c.

Spot coffee was reported in light demand at 6⅝c for Rio 7s and 11c to 11¾c. Quotations in the cost and freight market were irregular. It was reported that some Brazilian shippers had accepted bids of 8¾c for well-described Santos 8s and 5s, but that other shippers have refused to sell at that figure and had named 9c, American credits.

HIGHER PRICE TREND TO WHEAT IN WEEK'S TRADE

Demands on Part of Growers One of Chief Factors in Market.

Organized efforts of farmers to withhold grain and to agitate for higher prices have gone hand in hand this week with a big ascent in values.

Rapid developments, indicating that the producers' struggle announced as aiming to force the wheat market up to $3 a bushel was an energetic one, had an immediate strengthening effect, despite assertions of Former Wheat Director Barnes that war prices on everything were becoming things of the past. His position was widely assailed on the ground that grain was being sold below cost. Subsequently, report of serious adverse crop conditions in India counted as a further bullish influence. At this state, the United States Government report on farm reserves led to a sharp setback in prices, but was more than offset afterward by action of President Wilson ordering an investigation of charges from Gov. Allen of Kansas that the wheat market had been artificially depressed and that there was urgent need of an embargo on imports of wheat from Canada. Prices reacted several cents yesterday.

Export buying of corn gave independent strength to corn and oats. Big clearances of lard and meats for Europe lifted provisions.

HEAVY TRADE IN WHEAT, GENERAL RUSH FOR CORN

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The bull raid of yesterday placed the market for grain in an overbought condition today, and the attempt on the part of longs to even up uncovered this fact. Buying orders were insufficient to absorb the offerings which came mostly from longs and partly from hedgers in wheat. At the finish wheat was 4¼c to 6c lower, with December $2.13 to $2.13½ and March $207 to $2.07¼; corn was unchanged to 1⅝c lower; oats were off ⅝c to ⅝c and provisions ranged from unchanged to 75c down.

Talk of investigation of charges on which Gov. Allen of Kansas recently called for an embargo against imports of wheat from Canada and which affected wheat prices yesterday when word was received that President Wilson had taken up the matter, seemed to have been forgotten today, and the market as under pressure. Leading buyers of yesterday were on the selling side today. A local mill bought 235,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to come to this market, and around 20 per cent of the receipts at Minneapolis were said to be from Canada.

Corn was firm early, but broke sharply. Much of the selling was said to be the result of a report that a number of leading corn industries shutting down because of a slow demand for their product. Country offerings were somewhat larger, and there were some sales for the seaboard.

Oats followed other grains, the trade being small and prices easily influenced.

Provisions were unsettled, but held within comparatively narrow limits, the semimonthly report on stocks showing a larger reduction in lard than expected.

Trade in live cattle at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week was parallel in many respects to that prevailing on dressed meats at Eastern centers, notably New York and Philadelphia, where near-demoralization existed late in the session. Market opened here about steady in practically all departments and continued on this basis up to late Wednesday, when decided weakness was manifested. Selling Thursday and Friday was extremely dull and at materially lower rates.

Receipts were not especially large, about 35,000 head, and as there was but a small sprinkling of range steers, buyers had to fill most orders from native consignments. Movement, which was not especially active on any time during the week, was especially difficult after noon Wednesday.

Offering of steers included about 13 cars of steers that sold from $16@17 per cwt., the latter price going for a load of 100-lb. baby beeves, highest mark received for any cattle so far this year. Bulk of all steers sold from $10@13. As compared with selling at the close of the previous week, steer trade closed on an average of 50c lower, extremes off more.

Butcher stock finished right at 50c off, 75c down in many places, this reduction putting general trade the lowest of the season. Canner and cutter cows, in fact, equaled the lowest since 1915. Most canners were selling Friday at $3.25@3.50, with only best up to $3.75. Cutters extended from $4@5 and a range of $5@6 took a fair sort of cow. Only good butchers sold from $6@7. Beef and bologna bulls sold late right at 25c off for week.

Demand tightened still further on stocker and feeder cattle and trade was weak on best kinds, lower and semi-demoralized on the plainer sorts.

Veal calves topped for the week at $16.50, 50c under the previous week's high mark. By Friday best veals had dropped down to $15.50 and market finished $1 under week's best time or $1.50 under high point the previous week. Southern canner yearlings finished right at 25c lower.

Hogs Closed Lower.

Price fluctuations were narrow in the hog trade the fore part of the week but hit the toboggan later and at the close were quotable 50c lower than a week ago. Saturday's top price at $15.90 represents the low point of the week and compares with a top of $16.40 the preceding Saturday. Packers received liberal direct shipments all during the period and made comparatively few purchases, waiting usually until the late market, when they were able to make savings. City butchers and shippers, however, were fairly active contenders, the latter despite the fact that low Eastern markets do not warrant much buying this far West. Strong weight hogs were scarce and brought the best prices. Bulk of the good 180 to 260 pounders are quotable from $15.75@15.90 with lighter than 180 pounds from $15.50@15.75. Pig market is little changed with best grades bringing $15@15.75. Rough hogs a quarter lower, selling from $13@13.75 largely.

Lambs Off, Sheep Steady.

Receipts at the sheep house for the week just closed aggregated 11,500 head, or an increase of 2000 over the preceding six-day period. As best lambs sold at $11.50 on the late market, prices are quotable 50 cents lower for the period. The bearish feeling was accredited by some to the fact that another liberal consignment of New Zealand dressed lamb and mutton was received in this country just a few days ago. Culls remain unchanged, selling from $6.50@7 largely. Good light yearlings were ready sale and several decks ranged in price from $9.50@10. Heavier stuff was slow and sold from $8@9. Fat sheep went at $5.50, showing no change from a week previous, while canners and choppers also remain unchanged, the former bringing $1.50 and choppers and bucks $4.

Values Low on Horses.

Receipts of commercial horses were light in volume, but market showed no improvement. About 300 head were disposed of at auction and values remained at the low level of last week. Orders from the East were again missing, and Southern operators bought sparingly. Restricted credit in the South is holding many operators back and probably not until cotton is marketed will financial conditions be improved. In the meantime, shippers are urged to exercise extreme care is not sending in more supplies than necessary.

A feature of the week's trade at the horse market was the sale of speed horses, about 150 trotters and pacers being available. Selling was in progress Thursday, Friday and Saturday and market in this department, also, showed a lower trend, values being materially lower than those during the last big sale in August. Among the consignments for the sale was A. B. C., the California sensation, with a pacing record of 2:07¼ and Vera Hall, the champion racing pacer of the Pacific Coast with a credit of 2:05.

Another Poor Mule Demand.

Mules again sold poorly; in fact, it was necessary to send some supplies back to the country at the close of the week for lack of satisfactory bids. A few good mules, 15 to 16 hands high, moved, also some pitters, but on the whole trade was limited. Dealers here are not encouraging shipments until market shows improvement.

Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—There was no further sales reported in the local raw sugar market today, and while prices were nominally unchanged at 7c for Cubas cost and freight, equal to 8c for centrifugal, it was believed that operators would pay above this level for prompt shipment, while offerings were light.

The demand for refined sugar continues of fair proportions, and prices are steadily held at former levels of 11c for fine granulated.

There was only a quiet trade in sugar futures, but prices were higher, reflecting the steadier feeling in the spot market, and closing quotations showed advances of 23 to 65 points, October showing the maximum gain.

COTTON MARKET WEAK AT DECLINE AT THE CLOSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—There was a further and severe break in the cotton market today, with all deliveries making new low records. December contracts sold as low as 18.60c and closed at that level, with the general list closing weak at a net decline of 62 to 140 points.

Nervousness over the British labor situation was increased by rumors that railway workers were likely to strike in support of the coal miners following a conference scheduled for Wednesday.

This doubtless contributede to the weakness of the market, which was also influenced by reports of continued or even greater depressions in the goods trade at home and abroad. The main factor, however, according to local brokers, was the continued pressure of offerings from the South. There were larger spot sales in the Texas markets yesterday at new low record prices, with middling quoted below the 20-cent level at one of the largest interior points, and much of the hedge selling reported this morning came from that quarter. At the start orders were not badly divided, although first prices were 18 to 30 points lower on most months, and there were slight bulges right after the call. Recent buyers for a reaction appeared to have lost what little confidence they may have had, owing to the continuance of unfavorable general conditions, and when slight rallies ran into increased Southern selling, liquidation became active. Brokers with Wall street connections, were particular active sellers on the break, which extended to 19.48c for October, 18.28c for January, and 18.35c for May. Last prices were at the low point of the day. Sales of print cloths at Fall River for the week were estimated at only 5000 pieces, and curtailment of production there was reported the heaviest so far this season.

WOMEN'S ADVERTISING CLUB

Educational Program Proposed for Coming Year.

An educational program for the coming year will be submitted to the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis, tomorrow, at 12:15 o'clock, in the Daniel Boone room of the Hotel Statler. Miss Mary Powell of the Central Public Library, who is chairman of the Educational Committee, will present the plan for the members' approval.

The committee proposes to devote two of the weekly meetings a month to its program instead of holding night sessions, as was done last year. The work will consist of practical talks on advertising with discussions conducted by well-informed persons on various phases of newspaper and magazine advertising. These meetings will be open to visitors.

Thought Man Was Crazy

"I have suffered from stomach and liver trouble for years; the last two years people have been calling me crazy. The doctors could not do anything for me. The awful bloating of gas seemed to press against my brain and I could not think clearly. Three months ago a friend advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and it has worked wonders in my case. All my bloating and suffering is gone and I feel as though newly born." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (3 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (5 stores), Cloughly-Koppenbrink, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., H. J. Col. Repington's Book Records Rivalries and Jealousies That Beset British Leaders During the War

Blend of War Office Political Stories and Society Gossip During the Nation's Crisis Is Amusing and Shocking London.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

COL. REPINGTON has written the most talked-of book of the London season in his "The First World War." Col. Repington began the war as the military correspondent of the Times; his exposure of the "shell scandal"—the lack of high explosive shells on the western front—and his subsequent difference with the Times because of his information as to the man shortage in 1917 not being published were among the most interesting journalistic events of the war. He was a great partisan of Lord French, of Sir William Robertson, Chief of the General Staff, and an intense admirer of the French Generals.

At one time or another he had access to everybody of note in the British, French, American and Italian armies and Governments and, judging by his diaries, was the recipient of their most "Hush, hush!" confidences. In addition to or perhaps because of this he was much sought after in "smart" society, so that his book is a melange of War Office, General Staff, drawing room and dinner table gossip. His life was one unceasing round of lunches, dinners, week-end and theater parties, interspersed with visits to the various fronts and to Paris. How he found time to write his articles is somewhat of a mystery, but he certainly had the advantage of not being compelled to make bricks without straw.

War View of "Smart Society."

The impression of thoroughly enjoying himself in the midst of the worst war times is left very clearly by these volumes. He also conveys the idea that "smart society" looked upon the war very much as he did himself—as an interesting and exciting game, not exactly, but almost callously. Withal he shows himself a master of his own particular line of expertry. His knowledge and grasp of military affairs and technique are unquestionable. It must be said for him, too, that on the respective qualities of the different armies he expresses no inflamed opinions, but is fair and considerate.

His criticisms are chiefly expended on the British War Cabinet, and toward the end are pretty well concentrated on Lloyd George, of whose personality and capacity in war matters he leaves a distinctly ignominious picture. He is reticent about Lord Haig in a suggestive way, and mentions that Lord Derby as Ambassador in Paris conceived it to be be his chief duty to maintain the confidence of the French Staff in Lord Haig. He tells much of Lloyd George's contentions with Clemenceau, who had all Col. Repington's sympathy and who made no secret of his patronizing contempt for the British Premier. The most serious military questions are leavened with entries such as:

"Had tea with Mrs. Leeds. We had a great talk about Tony Drexel's affairs. Lady Strafford came in and took part in it. The muddle is greater than ever and neither side will give way, but when two American citizens decide for one to get his divorce in Paris and the other to get hers in London, when both should and would get it in America, there is bound to be trouble."

Talk American Politics.

Or again, in August, 1916, when recounting the talk at a luncheon of Lady Paget, at which Mr. Montagu Beck, Mrs. Leeds and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid were among those present:

"Beck did most of the talking—all upon Wilson and the presidential campaign. He thinks that Hughes will get in on account of the shame of the Americans of the figure Wilson has made America cut in the war. * * * Beck speaks well and is worth listening to about American politics. The trouble is that all our friends here seem to be Republicans and we only hear their side. Mrs. Leeds thinks that he (Beck) will not become Ambassador here. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid told us a great many interesting things about America. She appears to keep the Tribune going for the sake of her boy and for the political influence it will give him."

At a week-end party at Coombe, Lady Paget's place near London, Mr. Balfour was of the company, keen on tennis as usual. Word came from the Admiralty that the German fleet had put to sea, but "I admired the coolness with which the First Lord (Balfour), emulating Drake, decided to go on with his game, though the armada was at sea." Then again a few days later at Mrs. John Astor's (now Lady Ribblesdale), Lady Cunard tells him how "Asquith is very disgusted with some of his colleagues and complains he is not being properly supported by many of them * * * She told us about the house that had been lent to the Prime Minister at Bognor. It holds eight people and Mrs. Asquith thinks nothing of putting in 18 and they sleep where they can."

In Conflict With Censor.

He was in constant conflict with the censor for mishandling his articles, while he was not at all satisfied with the way they were often edited by the editor of the Times. Sir William Robertson, chief of the staff, had a blunt way of dealing with Lloyd George when the latter became War Minister. Robertson shared Repington's hostility to the "side shows"—Saloniki, Palestine, Mesopotamia, etc.—which Lloyd George advocated, and Robertson, talking about Lloyd George in this connection, said that he found it impossible to teach the politicians "strategy" and had told Lloyd George that the latter must take his (Robertson's) opinions without long explanations, because Lloyd George to understand" would have to have had Robertson's experience, and no amount of explanation could make up for the want of it." It was not surprising that so imperious an individual as Lloyd George soon got at loggerheads with Robertson, a blunt soldier.

Lady Cunard is represented as something of an enfant terrible by Col. Repington, and he says that at a party of hers she occasionally threw in her usual impromptu and startling observations, such as that Balfour was an abstraction and not a man and that the upper part of his face was like Christ—which made Balfour laugh consumedly." At another time he speaks of her raising the most terrible questions in conversation to the visible discomfort of Mrs. Winston Churchill.

Americans Best Bridge Players.

Reginald McKenna, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, spoke very frankly about Lloyd George. "He told me many things of great interest about Lloyd George. McKenna thought Lloyd George was out for power. The greatest defeat he had sustained was when on taking over the War Office he tried to make terms and was beaten by Robertson. McKenna knew Lloyd George well and thought he would never forgive this defeat. What Lloyd George loved was to be always in the limelight. For this reason he never rested until he had undermined Lord Kitchener. Lloyd George's object was to pose before history as the organizer of victory."

Repington makes the interesting announcement that the Duchess of Roxburghe (Miss May Goelet) and the Countess of Granard (sister of Ogden Mills) are the two best lady bridge players in London. Bridge was a very important avocation during the war and a rival to it in interest in those circles apparently. He repeatedly mentions the absence of any liaison between the army and the navy and has this remarkable entry on Nov. 11, 1916:

"The navy still refuses to give any assurance about stopping an invasion between the Wash and the Medway. If the Germans came there the navy say they would have 28 hours in which to do anything they liked, and consequently the army problem was how many troops the Germans could put ashore in 28 hours. England would not have slept so comfortably in its bed of nights if it knew this!"

COL. REPINGTON'S STORIES OF ENGLISH JEALOUSIES IN WAR

Again he reports Arthur Balfour—then First Lord of the Admiralty—as saying shortly afterward, "The public are under the impression that the Straits of Dover are mined and netted, but the currents and storms swept all away, and the marvel is that the Germans have done so little at this time."

Story Told by Mrs. Asquith.

He tells a good story of Mrs. Asquith, who said "that if she had been Christopher Columbus and had discovered America she would have taken very good care not to tell anyone." He tells of a big party at the Ritz, given by Lady Strafford (Mrs. Colgate), at which Lady Constance Stewart Richardson danced, whereupon "many fled, including Sir William Robertson, who, when asked whether she hadn't a very fine leg, replied, "It is just like any other damned leg.'"

He is very severe on Sir Eric Geddes, who succeeded Gen. Stuart Wortley as Director of Railroad Transport in France in the fall of 1916. "Sir Eric Geddes is building a regular village near Montreuil for his new branch. He is taking over 1000 clerks and has 72 motors for his staff. The soldiers call the town Geddesburg." About this time, too, the disputes between the War Office and the Cabinet about strategy reached an acute stage and all the time Lloyd George is stated by Repington to have preserved in his plan of diverting men from the weakened French front to Salonica. "Robertson says," Repington relates, "Lloyd George wants a victory quickly—a victory while you wait. He does not care where. Somewhere where opinion will be impressed, like Damascus. Lloyd George didn't fancy that Beersheba would catch on, but Jerusalem might!"

Finally, Repington arranged that Northcliffe should see Lloyd George and in the result Lloyd George gave way. He lunched with Lloyd George in February, 1917, and had a general talk with him. "Lloyd George said," he relates, "that the Admiralty had been awful and the present submarine menace had been the result. We had scarcely any mines even now and those we had were bad. * * * I asked him why he didn't hang somebody. He said that at the time of the French revolution the heads of the incompetents would have fallen.

Question of Man Power.

"We then went into the man power question and I was thoroughly alarmed by the Prime Minister's attitude. He seemed to be influenced by prejudice and sentiment rather than by a reasoned view of the military requirements and, although he had been head and front of the demand for men under the Asquith leadership, he now seemed to me to be adopting an attitude which threatened danger for the success of our arms. He said he 'was not prepared to accept the position of a butcher's boy driving cattle to the slaughter and that he wouldn't do it.' In making this sort of statement he assumes a kind of rage, looks savage and glares at one fiercely. * * * We then branched to Ireland and the Prime Minister said he himself shared some of Ulster's prejudices. I said yes, the Ulster folk are mostly dissenting Radicals like the Welshmen. The Prime Minister agreed and said they weren't Irish any more than he; that he would never consent to Ulster being dragged into a settlement against its will and had so informed the late Cabinet. He said there was no need to worry about a revolution in Ireland as the people were all so well off."

Sir Lionel Earle told him "that 1,500 German prisoners did as much work as 3000 Canadian lumbermen and the latter did as much as 7000 soldiers."

Thenforward he and Robertson were engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with Lloyd George on the man power difficulty and when the Germans broke through in March, 1918, they attributed it to Lloyd George's disregard of their appeals and warnings. At that time Robertson had been displaced by Sir Henry Wilson as Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who had been intriguing against Robertson for a long time.

The Kaiser's Pet Ladies.

At another luncheon at the Ritz Repington's guests were the Prime Minister, Northcliffe and some others. "We discussed some light subjects," he says, "including the Kaiser's pet ladies, of whom he seems to possess types in Norway, Venice, etc. The Prime Minister much enjoyed this gossip, and his eyes twinkled as he listened to it."

There are also many entries referring to "E" and Doris Keane, of whom he was apparently a great admirer. "E" is understood to be Miss Emilie Grigsby.

Much bad blood was created between the French and British Governments by the latter's championing of Nivelle and Lloyd George's interference to prevent his being superseded by Petain after his terrible defeat in the Champagne offensive. "Painleve is having a hard time to induce his Cabinet to accept Petain, and is furious because Sir Henry Wilson came to see him uninvited, supporting Nivelle and criticising Petain severely." And in another place "Painleve is rabid with Gen. Wilson for opposing Petain and interfering in French political affairs."

Another interesting item from Baron Wedel, the Norwegion Minister: "Wedel told us that when the French Government fled to Bordeaux he and the American Ambassador were asked to go out to the Germans to try and arrange terms for the peaceful surrender of Paris. Fortunately the victory of the Marne rendered the mission unnecessary."

Clash With Kitchener.

He tells an illuminating story about Lloyd George and Kitchener early in the war. Kitchener complained that when he gave confidential information to the Cabinet it leaked, and when he was asked for the facts about the expeditionary force he refused to give them. Asquith decided that he should give the facts and Kitchener, agreeing, read them out and the members of the Cabinet took notes. Soon after, Gen. Von Donop gave the Munitions Committee figures on the same subject, whereupon Lloyd George, who was a member of the committee—on which were some officials not of the Cabinet—exclaimed that they did not agree with what Kitchener had given the Cabinet.

"At the next meeting of the Cabinet Lord Kitchener opened a furious attack on Lloyd George and others, accusing them of violating Cabinet secrets, upon which Lloyd George, white with rage, tore the figures to pieces. Kitchener gathered up his papers and walked to the door, whereupon several Cabinet Ministers dragged him back by the coat tails and made him sit down again. Asquith and Grey spoke calming words and the thing blew over, but Kitchener told his colleagues that no one in the War Office knew the real figures, as he kept everything in his own hands." This must have been about the time that Lloyd George told the late John Redmond that Kitchener "only has a barrack room mind."

Robertson in December, 1917, told Repington, after the dismissal of Jellicoe, that he (Robertson) would soon be dismissed for the same reason. "Jellicoe was a pessimist," he said, "but had always been right; for instance, when he told Lloyd George that the output of ships couldn't possibly amount to the figure that had been given. Jellicoe was always pouring cold water on Lloyd George's fervent imagination and Lloyd George didn't like it."

Repington also recounts an interesting talk he had with Gen. Hackett Pain, the Commander in Chief in Ulster—where he still is—who told him that all the navy coast watchers are Sinn Feiners. He also said all the Ulster Volunteers had their rifles still, and he was redistributing them to guard against a Sinn Fein raid. The Ulstermen knew that all was well while he was in command, and so kept quiet. Pain, of course, was Carson's man, and at the time he told Repington that the Ulster Volunteers still had their rifles, Chief Secretary Shortt had solemnly as-

HYOMEI INHALER

ADVERTISEMENT

Best Treatment for Catarrh, Croup, Coughs and Colds

Guaranteed by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.—No Stomach Dosing

Breathe HYOMEI for all diseases of the breathing organs. It is guaranteed.

In case of croup, which is very common in children, send for a doctor at once. In the meantime pour 30 drops of HYOMEI into a bowl of boiling water and hold the child's head over it; covered with a towel or cloth so that only the air filled with HYOMEI vapor is breathed.

This treatment has saved many a child's life and mothers of croupy children should always have HYOMEI on hand.

For coughs, colds and catarrh, breathing HYOMEI through the inhaler is usually sufficient.

Many people, however, use the HYOMEI vapor treatment in conjunction with the inhaler.

The vapor treatment is best taken just before going to bed; it only takes about five minutes time. Pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI into a bowl three-quarters full of boiling water, cover head and bowl with towel, and breathe the vapor that arises deep into the lungs. By this method many a hard cold has been broken up over night. A HYOMEI outfit consists of a bottle of HYOMEI and a hard rubber pocket inhaler. At Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

Diabetes Sufferers Should Not Give Up in Despair

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy has brought health and happines to many who thought themselves beyond aid.

Diabetes is a peculiar and baffling disease which the medical profession seems to be unable to cure despite the many years of experimenting and research by foremost physicians throughout the world.

Diabetes is invariably the result of impaired nutrition—this results in an excess of sugar in the blood and failure of the food to nourish, hence a gradual wasting away while eating well.

Symptoms of the disease are, increased thirst, excess of urine, emaciation and dry skin, often with sweetish odor.

Following are a few voluntary words of praise from a man who has used Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure with gratifying results. Perhaps you may be benefitted in a like manner.

"I had been troubled with Diabetes for 8 years. I heard about Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy and I tried some of it and got myself in good condition and went to work again. One man said he doctored for 2 years and that one bottle of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy did him more good than all the doctors. I am much pleased and so thankful for your life-saving remedy that I cheerfully recommend it to anyone troubled with Diabetes and I hope this will be the cause of helping many sufferers." (Signed) James Platt, Nat'l. Military Home, Dayton, Ohio.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from a formula tried and tested and used with remarkable results during the past 40 years. As the name indicates, Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is absolutely safe and is made solely from herbs and other beneficial ingredients.

Sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. Sample sent on receipt of ten cents. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

Now then—about these belts

The workman on the job out in the shop, along with his superintendent, are the men who know at first hand the exact performance of plant equipment.

The Purchasing Agent who relies upon their recommendations will be right—right because practical experience and actual results dictate their choice.

The expert machinist has one all-absorbing objective in his work—the number of pieces turned out every day. His wages are measured by the total of these pieces each week; so he watches his machine.

He knows its every sound and "feel" but above all, he watches the belt that delivers the power which drives his machine; for the belt is the vital element.

Imperial Inner-Locked Ibeco Belts are the unvaried choice of every workman and superintendent who know them. They are built upon principles which are the result of years of study and experience.

They are so constructed that the commonly accepted and unusual shortcomings of competing types have been definitely eliminated.

Every machinist served by Imperial Inner-Locked Ibeco Belts has found his production substantially increased over previous experience with other makes.

He knows that stretching, slipping and breaking have ceased—that he is insured a steady flow of power at greater speed and with many additional months of life per belt.

In this trying period of production problems, industry is beset with many difficulties. That which offers a quick and positive solution to efficient plant operation is a welcome ally.

In many factories throughout the manufacturing world, the problems of transmission and conveyance have been settled for all times. It is in these that mechanics, superintendents and Purchasing Agents alike are unanimous in their emphatic opinion that Imperial Inner-Locked Ibeco Belts are indispensable.

Can Women Bear the Strain of Business Life Without Breaking Down?

Physician says long hours of concentration and hard work of business life quickly age many women, undermine their health, wreck their nerves, and make them sallow, wrinkled and careworn because they let the vitalizing iron in their blood run low—

Says There Can Be No Healthy, Red-Blooded Women Without Iron

Tells how organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, helps build pure, rich, red blood, and repair weakened nerve-force, restore wasted tissue, and put new force and power in tired bodies.

THE WOMAN WHO WINS IN BUSINESS

The woman in the center has the red blood, rich in iron, which helps her to get the big salaries and the best positions. But the tired women in the smaller pictures need more iron in their blood. A physician explains below how organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, helps give women increased strength, energy and endurance.

The Worn-Out Business Woman
The Tired, Run-down Saleswoman
The Exhausted Worker In Shop Or Factory

While business is a severe strain on a woman's vitality, the woman with plenty of pure, rich, iron-filled blood is seldom harmed by the strain of business life. But the woman who neglects to keep her blood pure and rich in iron cannot expect to stand the rigorous conditions of business life without undermining her health and running the risk of a complete nervous or physical breakdown. The woman who sits long hours at a typewriter, until her fingers seem a bundle of quivering nerves; the woman who stands wearily behind a counter, forcing a smile to greet the impatient customers who have no thought of her long hours of toil; the woman who watches the flying fingers of a machine, glancing from minute to minute at a clock which never seems to bring the hour of release; these are generally the women whose blood is thin, pale, lacking in the iron that helps refresh the tired nerve cells and build new strength and endurance. If they only knew the importance of keeping plenty of iron in the blood, they might, in most cases, readily pull themselves out of this weakened physical condition and keep fresh and unwearied through the long day's work by feeding the starving blood with organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

"Long hours in stuffy offices and shops, nerve-racking hurry and worry, and the constant struggle to keep pace in business, all quickly leave their imprint on the woman whose vitality has been lowered by lack of sufficient iron in the blood," says Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service.

"Her complexion often becomes sallow, the flesh flabby and sagging, the figure gaunt and slack. Her face is strained and careworn, showing the burden she is putting on her run-down system, and she becomes wretched, cross and irritable. Her run-down condition is probably due to the fact that the strain of business life is using up the iron in her blood more rapidly than it can be replaced by natural means. She should build up her strength with organic iron, such as Nuxated Iron, which by enriching the blood and increasing its power to carry oxygen, helps repair depleted nerve force, restore wasted tissue and put new strength and power in tired bodies.

"There can be no healthy, red-blooded women without iron, but since anaemia—lack of iron in the blood—is so common among business women today, I strongly recommend to them a trial of Nuxated Iron, which is prepared with the best quality of pre-digested organic iron and is easily assimilated by the blood."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows N̲C and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

UNION OF ENGLISH-SPEAKING NEWSPAPER MEN PROPOSED

Sir Harry E. Brittain Says It Would Result in Powerful Support for the League of Nations.

Special Cable to the Chicago Evening News.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Sir Harry E. Brittain, M. P., founder of the Empire Press Union, has returned from the imperial press conference in Canada more enthusiastic than ever about the desirability of the newspaper men of the world getting together in the interests of world peace.

"This is no longer an experiment," he said. "When we had our first conference in London 11 years ago Lord Rosebery addressed the conference in one of the most prophetic speeches ever delivered by a British statesman. He spoke of the solemn hush pervading Europe. He said that this hush, in his view, was the calm before the storm. Clear as seemed the air at the moment, he could not blind himself to the gathering clouds and he warned the British empire to steady itself for the threatened shock.

"Every editor who heard that speech was deeply impressed. Its effect spread throughout the empire. Returning home, the delegates preached the doctrine of imperial solidarity. So effectively did they do so that when the storm burst five years later it found our scattered nations psychologically better prepared for the strain than ever before. Such was the practical effect of the first imperial press conference in the history of Britain.

"We are just at the end of another such conference. It was held in Ottawa and had collateral meetings from the Atlantic to the Pacific, attracting an amount of popular interest and enthusiasm that surprised its most sanguine supporters.

"Our pleasantest interlude in Canada arose from the visit to us of a score of representative newspaper men from the United States. They came in the spirit of our enterprise—a spirit of harmony born of real acquaintanceship. I was especially glad to see them, for I have long been a champion not only of a press union within the British empire, but of a press union throughout the English-speaking world. Enlighten the press of all nations by inducing its leaders to travel and commingle and you will get for the League of Nations the most powerful support it can have."

10,865 Rats Killed in Week.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—A communique issued by Prefect of Police Raux at the close of the first week's fight against rats, states that 10,865 rodents were killed. According to the report of the experts, Paris had a rodent population of 8,000,000 when the drive started. This is one instance in France where the birth rate is quite superior to the death rate.

COL. REPINGTON'S STORIES OF ENGLISH JEALOUSIES IN WAR

sured the House of Commons that their rifles had been taken from them. Lloyd George also fell foul of Haig, who told Repington that Lloyd George had charged him with inciting journalists to attack him; Haig asked him what journalist, and Lloyd George mentioned "S." (evidently Steed of the Times), whereupon Haig said he would write to him, but Lloyd George implored him not to do so. Lloyd George went on to threaten a counter offensive against Haig, whereupon the Field Marshal said that if he did not like his leading he should remove him. Haig, by the way, at one time strongly pressed to have American recruits taken into the British army to make good the man shortage, but Repington "thought this dangerous, as, if anything went wrong, it might cause the old American antagonism against England to revive."

He speaks very favorably throughout of the American Generals and troops and found he had to defend them a good deal in London society, which was very hostile. To turn to the lighter side of the diaries he mentions that at a luncheon party where he met Lady Randolph Churchill "she and I agree that if we began again at 17 we should do the same as we had done, only more so. Then we decided that we could not have done more so if we had tried."

Praise for Americans.

The meetings of the Versailles War Council seem to have been a series of quarrels between Lloyd George and Clemenceau. At one time Foch disagreed with Lloyd George, when the latter got up "in a furious rage, saying he wouldn't remain in the Council if his acts were to be criticised by a foreign General."

Repington says that Sir Bryan Mahon, Commander in Chief in Ireland, told him in May, 1918, that he disapproved of Lord French's proclamation on Sinn Fein and "that there were no proofs of the German Sinn Fein plot and it was quite unnecessary to drag it in." This was the "plot" unfolded in the House of Commons by then Chief Secretary Shortt on the strength of which hundreds of Sinn Feiners were arrested, though no proof of the "plot" had then or ever since been produced. He also says Lord Granard charged Lloyd George with trying to start a "No Popery" cry.

There is a great amount of interesting matter about the Americans in France, but one excerpt must suffice. "The Americans," he says, "while keeping their eyes and ears open and accepting our own and French instructors, are set on having their own code of tactics, and these are neither French nor British but American. They are half way between the French and ours and, as they are different, the Americans fight better by themselves. Everything has to be, and so is, American. The pride of race is very strong. The Americans are earnest, serious people, even the privates, who have nothing of the devil-may-care lightheartedness of our men. They have come here to do or die and are as keen as mustard, but still very quiet and serious about it all. They are in truth crusaders."

Good Advice to a Dyspeptic

Give the Stomach Help to Digest Food and to Offset the Tendency to Acidity. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

The wholesale advice to starve your way to stomach health is mighty poor judgment. Only the most robust constitution can stand such a strain. If you cannot eat, if what you eat sours, if your indigestion follows, certain foods that cause heartburn, sour stomach, or gassiness try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. And if there is a feeling as if your stomach had turned into concrete these tablets help digest the food and thus bring relief. Many physicians write "Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as directed" on a prescription blank when patients are distressed with frequent attacks of indigestion.

They furnish the alkaline effect to offset acidity of the stomach and also pancreatin to aid intestinal digestion of starchy foods.

Get a 60-cent box at any drug store, eat what you enjoy, take a tablet or two after meals and thus avoid the distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia.

SUB CHASER SOON TO GO INTO WINTER QUARTERS

Craft Used by Naval Reserves Makes Frequent Training Trips on River Here.

Subchaser 330, stationed at the armory at Bissel's Point since last July as a training ship for the Missouri Naval Reserves and Naval Militia, makes several trips weekly from the armory down the river 16 or 17 miles, as far as its six-foot draft will allow it to go. It is manned by naval reserves, who are occasionally allowed to take their wives or friends with them.

The subchaser, a 110-foot craft, with triple screw propulsion and a power plant of three 250-horsepower gasoline motors capable of developing a speed of more than 20 miles an hour, made the round trip last Wednesday from the Market street docks almost to Jefferson Barracks in an hour and 33 minutes. It has never been run at full speed since it was brought from New Orleans to be used here as a training ship, because of the dangerous channels about St. Louis. The boat carries 2400 gallons of fuel, and consumes about 40 gallons hourly at average cruising speed and 70 at top speed.

It is equipped with a wireless apparatus with a receiving range of more than 900 miles. The member of the crew who acts as radio operator says he has listened in on stations as far away as New Orleans. A 3-inch aircraft gun is mounted on the forward deck. In war times another gun, for placing bombs, was carried aft. The boat then carried 50 depth bombs, each charged with 600 pounds of TNT.

Best Anti-Submarine Craft.

During the war these boats of the "Wasp" type, with their high speed and short turning radius, were found to be the most effective means of combating the U-boat. The "Wasp" was sent out with 10 submarines, the submarines 10 miles apart in a straight line and the subchaser loafing in the rear, all in telephonic communication. They would cruise ahead slowly for 40 minutes, then stop and listen with the delicate under-water sound detector. If a submarine was heard, they would pounce on it with depth bombs. If it escaped them it fell a victim to the fleetness of the subchaser. In this way the seas were literally swept of enemy submarines.

The normal crew of boats of this type includes 16 men and two officers. Yesterday's crew included 16 men and four officers, Commander G. F. Schwartz of the Missouri Naval Militia and Reserves, Lieut. Walter Jost, executive officer, Lieut. John Frier, chief engineer, and Lieut. W. E. Hennrich, medical officer.

The crew sleeps on the boat while on a cruise. Twelve bunks for the men are forward, three for the officers are under the pilot-house, and four for petty officers are aft. Food is prepared on board in a well-appointed gallery. There is even a refrigerator on deck by the galley hatch. Every possible bit of space is utilized for lockers, under the bunks and about the men's and officers' quarters for personal property, and in the other compartments of the hold and on deck for apparatus used in handling the ship. The boat is protected against sinking by six water-tight bulkheads.

Above the pilot-house, in the center of the boat, there is a conning tower from which the commanding officer, who, during the war, was usually an Ensign, may personally direct his boat in the presence of an enemy vessel. Attached to the mast above the conning tower are the radio aerials, stretching to each end of the boat, and on it is an electric light which may be operated for signaling from a telegraph key in the pilot-house.

Service in All Parts of Atlantic.

Sub-Chaser 330, according to entries in the log dating from early in 1918, has since that time seen service in all parts of the Atlantic. The log shows entries made in Hampton Roads, the North Atlantic, the Azores, along the French coast, and a series of entries made in a port on the north coast of England indicates that the "Wasp" was laid up there for several weeks. It was attached for a time to Submarine Hunting Squadron No. 2, whose hunting ground was the mine-infested waters off the coast of Ireland.

This year the boat was used by such of the 2000 St. Louis reserves as cared to go, for short week-end cruises up and down the river. It soon will be taken to winter quarters, which have been in a slough on the Missouri side a few miles south of Alton, but will have to be changed unless the slough, which is now only two feet deep, is dredged to a depth that will admit the subchaser.

To Be Used in Training Cruise.

Next year it will be used for the yearly 15-day cruises required of second-class reserves, who must have two months of active service in each enlistment for four years. Reserves who have been three months at sea, are in this class. They receive two months' pay for their rating in the regular navy for each year of the reserve enlistment.

Commander Schwartz intends to have several additional sub-chasers stationed here next year. He says that then he can have 500 officers and men in active service at one time and keep all the St. Louis reserves in good training.

Specimen of Horned Dinasaur.

CALGARY, Canada.—In the old days the Ceratopsian or horned quadruged dinosaur, provisionally named the Eo ceratops, roamed the Red Deer Valley, and at Steveville, some 125 miles southeast of Calgary, W. E. Cutler is excavating a very fine ossified specimen of this huge creature. One side is almost intact. Mr. Cutler had to cut through 12 feet of rock to clear away the skeleton. He has been excavating on this specimen for eight months.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

MODERN BRITISH POETRY, Edited by Louis Untermeyer. A companion volume to Mr. Untermeyer's Modern American Poetry. Over 75 poets are represented, ranging from Thomas Hardy, born in 1840, to Robert Graves, born in 1895. The editor in the introduction discusses new influences and tendencies in the poetry of today.

TRACK ATHLETICS UP-TO-DATE, by Ellery H. Clark. This book contains up-to-date detailed discussions of every form of track athletics and is written from the standpoint of the practical instructor. It is illustrated with excellent photographs.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FRENCH WRITERS, by Mme. Mary Duclaux. A brilliant and scholarly volume; one that will be most useful to readers unacquainted with contemporary French literature. Mme. Duclaux writes chiefly of the last 14 years and characterizes in her studies the personalities and work of Maurice Barres, Romain Rolland, Rostand, Claudel, Barbusse, Dukamel and others.

OUR NORTHERN AUTUMN, by Harriet Keeler. A study of autumn's characteristic flowers, its brilliant foliage and conspicuous fruits. Very fully illustrated, both in color and black and white.

MODERN PULP AND PAPER MAKING, by B. G. S. Witham Sr. A practical treatise describing the equipment and processes used in pulp and paper plants today. Designed to be of service not only to paper makers, but also to technical men not intimately in touch with the pulp and paper industry who might desire to know the salient facts about it.

DALMATIA AND THE JUGO-SLAV MOVEMENT, by Count Louis Voinsvitch. A very complete book on Dalmatia, past and present, historic and political. The author is a Jugo-Slav diplomat and politician, and his work is characterized by a profound love for his people and country.

NEW WORLD ORDER, by F. C. Hicks. An analysis of the league covenant and treaty of Versailles, designed for college classes in political science and international law. The author is law librarian at Columbia University.

OUTSTANDING DAYS, by C. A. Herrick. A handy volume supplying the main historical facts as to why special days, such as Lincoln's birthday, Good Friday, Thanksgiving, etc., are observed. A collection of nearly 100 literary selections is presented in connection with the several studies.

DAISY ASHFORD: HER BOOK.

A collection of stories by the author of "The Young Visiters." Some of these were written before, some after, "The Young Visiters" was completed, but all, according to Irvin S. Cobb, who wrote the preface, are as interesting as Daisy Ashford's first publication. The collection also includes a novel by Angela Ashford, Daisy's sister, written at the age of 8. The preface, aside from the fact that it shows some of Cobb's keenest wit, is important for facts concerning the writers of these stories.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION OF GIRLS AND WOMEN. By Albert H. Leake.

Directed chiefly to those who get no farther than the grammar grades, in an effort to awaken a greater interest in education. The author claims that the vocational side of our educational system is the weakest, and it is his aim to give concrete methods for improving it. The book is in two parts; one devoted to education for the home, and the other to women in industry outside the home. The author has studied school conditions in England, Germany and Sweden, as well as the United States, and at present is inspector of manual training and household arts in Ontario, Canada.

CONSTRUCTIVE DICTATION. By Edward Hall Gardiner.

The author states that there are two objects to his book; first, to develop shorthand speed, and second, to give all shorthand and business correspondence pupils an opportunity for learning the principles of good business letter construction. According to the author the plan of the letter should be the first object of study, and with that purpose in mind he has analyzed each letter minutely, and given the reason for each statement made. The material is arranged by subject and contains a shorthand vocabulary of approximately 3000 words, arranged alphabetically. The author is associate professor of business administration at the University of Wisconsin.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT; ITS INFLUENCE UPON CIVILIZATION. By Marion Luckiesh.

Written in language simple enough to be understood by the general reader, and as devoid as possible of intricate details. Traces the history of the development of artificial light and describes its influence upon human progress. The first chapters deal with primitive artificial light, and are generally historical. Several chapters are devoted to the science of light-production and brings the development of artificial light up to the present time, and several more are devoted to the various economic influences of artificial light and with some of the ways in which it is serving mankind.

The author is director of applied science in the Nela Research Laboratory of the General Electric Co.

MEMOIRS OF LIFE AND LITERATURE. By W. H. Mallock.

Intimate views of Swinburne, Carlyle, Jewell, Bulwer Lytton and others written by one of England's foremost novelists. The writer is a born observer and an accomplished satirist, yet writes his reminiscences of men and events fairly, sympathetically and humorously. Some of the chapter headings are Winter Society at Torquay; Experiences at Oxford; From the Highlands to New York.

BRICKLAYING IN MODERN PRACTICE. By Stewart Scrimshaw.

A textbook in bricklaying in which the author attempts to do more than give a mere outline of the subjects essential for skill in the trade. His purpose is to show the bricklayer how to become an intelligent mechanic. He states that the book should form a basis for study in the apprenticeship schools for this trade. The diagrams included are clearly drawn and should prove of use. Also contains a glossary of words used in the trade. The author is supervisor of apprenticeship for the State of Wisconsin.

BALL FOR HOSPITAL OCT. 27

Rosa Ponselle Also Will Appear at Charity Affair.

The annual charity ball for the St. Louis Children's Hospital will be given under the auspices of the auxiliary board at Moolah Temple, Wednesday evening, Oct. 27. In addition to the ball there will be a program with Rosa Ponselle, prima donna, as the artist and a children's ballet under the direction of Miss Fay Bates. The ball is given to raise funds for caring for the charity wards of the hospital.

The ballet will consist of a solo with William Brown, supported by a group of small girls; "The Ballet of the Butterfly and Roses," with Martha Albert as soloist, and the "Waltz Trio," with Madge Rosenfelder, Viola Wood and Lucille Guhne, supported by a ballet of small children.

Lives to See the Prescription He Wrote in 1892 Become the World's Most Popular Remedy for Constipation

Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, long past Biblical old age, but hale and hearty—Still sees patients daily—Wonderful achievement of a "country doctor."

WHEN I started to practice medicine, back in 1875, there were no pills or tablets or salt waters for the relief of constipation, and no artificial remedies made from coal tar.

The prescription for constipation that I used early in my practice, and which I put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid remedy, and I have never had reason to change it. I intended it for women, children and elderly people, and these need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

I am gratified to say that under successful management my prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that over eight million bottles were sold by druggists last year proves that it has won the confidence of mothers whose chief interest is the health of their children.

It is particularly pleasing to me to know that the biggest half of those eight million bottles were bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for grownups. The price of a bottle holding 50 average treatments is sixty cents; such a bottle will last a family several months.

I have never made a secret of what is in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. These ingredients are endorsed in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia. I consider Syrup Pepsin today in the serious 82nd year of my age, as I did in 1892, the best remedy a family can have in the house for the safe relief of constipation and its accompanying ills, such as headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and I believe if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

"C. G. B." writes: "Your rheumatism prescription completely helped me, and now can you give me a remedy for dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair?"

Answer: I have one unfailing treatment to recommend. It is plain yellow Minyol. Comes in 4-oz. jars.

"Merchant" writes: "Please inform me of the best obesity treatment you have ever known."

Answer: Arbolone tablets—in sealed tubes with directions.

"Uneasy" writes: "I am uneasy about my health. My kidneys and bladder are not well. Have spells of depression, do not sleep well, have to arise frequently. My ankles puff and under my eyes I have 'bags.' Please prescribe."

Answer: Your symptoms indicate you need treatment to tone up the functions of kidneys and bladder. Obtain in sealed tubes Balmwort Tablets and take as per directions for several weeks, or until relief is experienced.

"A. J. C." writes: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves, but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will [illegible] any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2½-oz. bottle of essence of Mentho-Laxene, mix it with a home-made sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

"Nerve wrecked" writes: "Am forty-five and feel myself declining and am in bad nervous condition. Am weak, irritable, forgetful and sleepless. Food does not digest and stomach, liver and bowels are not doing their duty."

Answer: The lack of certain elements in your blood causes the symptoms. Take Cadomene tablets a few weeks to restore the depleted system. Druggists supply in sealed tubes.

"Busy Clerk" writes: "I am a hard-working clerk and have nervous indigestion. I am so thin and pale that I appear to be an invalid. Please tell me what to do."

Answer: You nervousness may be due to overwork and to mal-nutrition. Take a rest after the noon meal, and begin at once using Hypo-Nuclane tablets, as per directions on sealed package. They enrich the blood and increase the weight.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Conserve the Coal Pile with a CAHILL Furnace

THERE is a secret back of the economy and heating qualities of Cahill Pipeless Furnaces. This secret is found in the castings—the parts of a furnace that count for most when the fire is laid and started. The Cahill castings are unusually heavy, thick, and carefully fitted and finished, and when once heated they retain heat longer than most furnaces, thereby saving fuel and throwing off a greater and more uniform heat. Moreover, the heavy Cahill castings will withstand wear better than castings less sturdily made, which means less replacing of parts is required in a Cahill Furnace than in ordinary furnaces.

The modern and sanitary method of heating homes, churches, schools, factories and stores. One register heats the whole house. Simple to install, economical and easy to operate. Uniform heat in every room, constantly circulating.

Discolored, Wrinkled Skin Easily Removed

Since brown or yellow, over-red or blotchy complexions are decidedly not the fashion, it is difficult to understand why so many continue to wear them. Surely every woman has heard of mercolized wax. This will positively banish every unsightly tint. The wax really takes off a bad complexion. It gradually, harmlessly absorbs the thin layer of surface skin, with such defects as liver spots, pimples, freckles, blackheads. Just as gradually the discarded skin is replaced by the clear, white, youthful skin underneath. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is applied nightly like cold cream and erased mornings with warm water. One ounce will produce the loveliest girlish complexion in less than a fortnight.

It is hard to understand, also, why folks will be bothered with wrinkles, since the famous saxolite formula has become public property. One ounce of powdered saxolite dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel, makes a wash lotion that will quickly efface every line, even the deepest.

THEDA BARA A TALKING "VAMP" IN NEW PLAY

Screen Siren Here Tonight in "The Blue Flame"—Minstrel Show at American.

Theda Bara, who made Kipling's poem famous and enriched the English language with the verb transitive and intransitive, "to vamp," will be heard as well as seen tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. The famous celluloid siren has temporarily forsaken the films for the speaking stage, and will appear in a three-dimensional melodrama, "The Blue Flame," which ran all of 48 performances in New York last spring. It was written to her measure by George V. Hobart and John Willard.

Her role on the stage as well as the screen is that of a temptress. "The Blue Flame" is described by the press agent as "a strong, man-size play," which "throbs with thrills." The same authority gives assurance, however, that "the millions of people who like to believe that Miss Bara vamps out of sheer wickedness, are bound to be terribly disappointed." The play, in four acts, is an A. H. Wood production.

The Neil O'Brien Minstrels, now in their ninth year, return to the American Theater tonight. The program is in three parts. In the first the singers and comedians operate without restraint; the second consists of two features, "Playmates" and "Hopping the Atlantic Ocean," with Lew Wilson in a line of songs and jokes; and the third part, an act in three scenes entitled "Americanization," was written and staged by Neil O'Brien. Many black-face favorites, old and new, are in the company.

"Apple Blommoms" Next Week.

The popular new operetta, "Apple Blossoms," of which the score was composed by Fritz Kreisler and Victor Jacobi, arrives at the American next Sunday night with a stellar cast, including John Charles Thomas, Wilda Bennett, Percival Knight and Fred and Adele Astaire. Another of the sex farces, "The Girl in the Limousine," will be seen the same week at the Shubert-Jefferson.

Annette Kellerman, returning to vaudeville after several years in the films, is headliner at the Orpheum this week with a big act which comprises singing, ballet dancing, wire walking, monologues, swimming and diving. Other participants on the same bill are Elsie Ruegger, 'cellist; Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin, in a humorously prophetic sketch called "Visions;" Duffy and Sweeney, comedians; Ned Norworth, composer and eccentric singer, and the Curzon Sisters, aerial performers.

At Other Vaudeville Houses.

Headliners at other vaudeville houses are: Columbia, "Ship Ahoy Girls," a miniature musical comedy; Grand, the Century Serenaders in "A Cowboy Musicale;" Rialto, Hope Eden and Frescott, known as "the miracle girl," and "the master mind;" Empress, "Thunder Mountain," a miniature drama by Langdon McCormack, author of the successful play, "The Storm," and Loew's Garrick, the Royal Harmony Five. The Gayety's announcement is "Bankers and Brokers," with Watson, Cohan and the "Girls de Looks;" the Standard's offering is "Puss Puss."

Smoke Prevention Convention Here.

The 1921 convention of the Smoke Prevention Association will meet here, according to the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau. It is expected that the St. Louis convention will have an attendance of 500 to 900.

ST. LUKE'S EVANGELICAL CHURCH IN GOLDEN JUBILEE

Pastor From 1878 to 1881 to Preach at 10 This Morning—Special Evening Services.

St. Luke's Evangelical Congregation will celebrate its golden jubilee today at the church on Tennessee avenue, between Shenandoah avenue and Sidney street. Services will begin at 10 a. m.

The Rev. William T. Jungk, who was pastor from Oct. 28, 1878, until April 4, 1881, will preach the German service and the Rev. Henry Walser, the pastor who has served the congregation since Aug. 7, 1881, will preach in English.

In the evening at 7:45 o'clock a special service will be held in connection with the neighboring congregations. The Rev. Henry Drees of St. Matthew's Evangelical Church will serve at the altar and Rev. E. H. Eilts of St. Mark's Evangelical Church and the Rev. William F. Simon, Ph. D., pastor of Jesus Evangelical Church, will deliver addresses.

The first church building was erected in 1870 and is still standing, at Scott and Jefferson avenues. The congregation sold this property in 1906 and erected its present church.

CUSTOM OF GIVING BADGES TO BRITISH WARSHIPS REVIVED

Insignias Designed to Represent Name of Vessel Pictorially When Possible.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Since the days of the elaborately carved figureheads, now only seen in naval museums, no British warship has carried an official badge, but now an Admiralty committee, with an "heraldic adviser," has revived the ancient insignia in another form.

Each British man-of-war has now been granted a duly authorized badge, to be fixed in wood or brass on the quarter deck, and on either bow of its boats. Badges have been designed to represent the name of the vessel pictorially, or, when that was impossible, to embody some device connected with its history.

The Venturous sports a badge representing two dice; Sportive has a butting goat; Tactician, a chess knight; Tormentor, a flea; Spitfire, a cat with arched back; Inconstant, a butterfly; Sesame, a key; Sterling, the pound mark (£), and Watchful, an eye.

Maj. Charles Foulkes of the Royal Marines acts as heraldic adviser.

Cleveland Rabbi to Speak.

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland will speak on "Whither?" under the auspices of the Palestine Restoration Fund at the Columbian Club, Vandeventer avenue and Lindell boulevard, at 7 p. m. Tuesday.

George Loane Tucker's statement
"There is a message in 'Earthbound' that the wide world is greatly and deeply interested in. I sincerely hope that everyone who liked my production of 'The Miracle Man' will go to see 'Earthbound.'"

Maurice Tourneur's tribute—
"The most interesting subject that has ever been screened. The production of 'Earthbound' marks a distinct advance in the art of motion pictures."

Gouverneur Morris deeply moved—
"That astounding drama which yesterday passed with unutterable dignity before our astounded eyes! Dignity, power, passion, drama—my heart almost stopped beating! No great work of art has ever held me more spellbound."

IT LIFTS THE VEIL BETWEEN THIS WORLD AND THE NEXT

"Earthbound" Is a Powerful Domestic Drama of Ideals and Frailties, of Love and Marriage, of Passion and Weakness, of Sin and Forgiveness.

SEVEN ENTERTAINMENTS AT ODEON THIS WEEK

Farrar, Sousa's Band, Pavley and Oukrainsky and Scotti Grand Opera Co.

The entertainment season proceeds with a great rush this week, there being scheduled no less than seven performances, all of them at the Odeon, on five evenings and two afternoons. The offerings range from recital to ballet, and from band concerts to grand opera.

Mme. Geraldine Farrar, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, begins the series tomorrow night, with the first song recital she has ever given in St. Louis, if memory serves. On Tuesday afternoon and evening Lieutenant-Commander Philip Sousa and his band will give two concerts. On Thursday night Andreas Pavley and Serge Oukrainsky, first dancers and ballet masters of the Chicago Opera Company, will give an elaborate program of dances and music. On Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night the Scotti Grand Opera Company will offer three performances, presenting "La Boheme," "L'Oracolo," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Il Trovatore."

Mme. Farrar's recital will be notable, among other things, for her reinstatement of German lieder in the concert repertory. The taboo was upon them during the war. The three great masters of song, Schumann, Schubert and Franz, will be represented on her program, but their works will be given in English instead of the original tongue.

German Lieder Reinstated.

The Schumann songs will be "Dedication," "Rosebuds" and "Messages;" Schubert will be drawn upon for that beautiful and vivid picture of a mood. "Impatience" and Franz will contribute his "In May." The German group will be completed by the "Serenade" of Richard Strauss, another composer exiled from symphony concert and recital during the war.

The diva's single operatic number will be the recitative and aria, "Batti, batti, o bel Masetto" ("Chide me, chide me, dear Masetto") from "Don Giovanni." This aria is one of Mozart's gayest and most winsome melodies; in it a flirtatious bride, Zerlina, wheedles and coaxes her boorish husband out of a jealousy which is only too well founded.

Mme. Farrar's second and final song group, all given in English, will consist of "I Love Thee," by the Norwegian, Grieg; "None but the Lonely Heart" and "The Snowdrop," by the Russians, Tschaikowsky and Gretchaninoff; "Songs My Mother Taught Me," by the Bohemian, Dvorak, and "The Gardener," by the German, Wolf. The prima donna will be assisted by Ada Sassoli, harpist, and Edgar Schofield, baritone, with Claude Gothelf at the piano.

New Music and Sousa.

At Tuesday afternoon's concert Lieut. Sousa will present a suite of his own composition, entitled "Tales of a Traveler." It is in three movements—"The Kaffir on the Karoo," "The Land of the Golden Fleece," and "Grand Promenade at the White House." Other Sousa works will be a new march, "The Outpost;" a humorous skit, described as a "mixture" and entitled "Showing Off Before Company," and "Who's Who in Navy Blue." Hosmer's "Northern Rhapsody," Gershwin's new Humoresque, "Swanee," and Massenet's heroic scene, "Szabadi," will complete the band program. Solos will be given by Ellis McDiarmid, flutist; Miss Mary Baker, soprano, and Miss Florence Hardeman, violinist.

Another suite by Sousa, and a new one, will be heard at Tuesday evening's concert. It is called "Camera Studies," and the movements are entitled: "The Teasing Eyes of Andalusia," "Drifting to Loveland" and "The Children's Ball." "A Study in Rhythms," also a new Sousa work, is a manipulation of a group of classics. Sousa marches will be "Semper Fidelis," "Her Majesty at Westminster" and "Comrades of the Legion," the last being a new work. In addition, the composer-leader figures as the author of a vocal solo, "The Crystal Lute," to be sung by Miss Baker. George J. Carey is to give a xylophone solo of his own composition, "The March Wind," and John Dolan, cornetist, will play "Scintilla," by Perkins. Miss Hardeman is to contribute the first movement of Vieuxtemps' violin concerto in F minor. Additional band numbers will be a new rhapsody, "The American Indian," by Orem, and "Dale Dances of Yorkshire," by Wood.

Fine Program of Dance and Music.

A lavish program of 15 dance numbers is announced for the Pavley-Oukrainsky evening, besides four selections by the Philharmonic Orchestra of Chicago, directed by Charles Elander. All the dances, set to music by classic composers, were invented and arranged by Pavley and Oukrainsky; the scenery and costumes are from the studio of Leonidas Orlay de Garva.

The featured offering of the program is a grand ballet, "Samson and Delilah," to the music of Saint-Saens. It will be performed by Messrs. Pavley and Oukrainsky, and Mlles. Shermont, Ledowa, Nemeroff, Dagmara, Elisius, Reinert and Milar. Then will come the following divertissements, listing the composer whose music is used and the dancers taking part:

"Danse de Printemps," Beethoven, Mlles. Ledowa, Shermont and Milar; "La Camargo," Haydn, Mlle. Reinert; "Bohemian Dance," Grossman, Mlles. Nemeroff, Dagmara and Elisius; "Pastorale," Kreisler, Andreas Pavley and Mlle. Shermont; "L'Ephemere," Kreisler, Mlle. Ledowa; "Siamese Dance," Rimsky-Korsakoff, Serge Oukrainsky; "Dutch Dance," Grieg, Andreas Pavley and Mlle. Nemeroff; "Flying Leaves," Rubinstein, Mlles. Shermont, Ledowa, Nemeroff and Ellisius; "Pierrot's Shadow," Arensky, Mlle. Milar; "Adagio Classique," Chopin, Oukrainsky and Mlle. Dagmara; "Bacchanale," Liszt, Andreas Pavley; waltz from "Faust," Gounod, Oukrainsky and Mlle. Shermont; "Ball Game," Rameau, Mlles. Dagmara and Reinert; "Habanera," Chabrier, Mlle. Nemeroff, and "Torch Dance," Rubinstein, by Pavley, Oukrainsky and the entire company.

The orchestral numbers listed are the overture to Massenet's "Phedre;" Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" Suite, No. 2; the finale from Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony; and the prayer from Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna."

Scotti's Choir of Songbirds.

The Scotti Grand Opera Company, headed by the redoubtable actor-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Co., Antonio Scotti, is paying its third visit here, and the second within the present year. As before, the casts comprise mostly Metropolitan singers, the orchestra is recruited from that of the Metropolitan, and the costumes and scenery are from the Metropolitan's wardrobe and ateliers.

Friday's night opera will be Puccini's "La Boheme," which the Scotti company has never given here. The characters are assigned as follows: Rodolfo, Orville Harrold; Schaunard, Louis d'Andelo; Benoit and Alcindoro, Paolo Ananian; Mimi, Marie Sundelius; Parpignol, Giordano Paltrinieri; Marcello, Antonio Scotti; and Musetta, Anna Roselle.

A double bill, consisting of "L'Oracolo" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," will be given at the Saturday matinee, Scotti appearing once more in the former in his renowned and favorite role of the Chinese opium-monger, Cim-Fen. Leon Rothier takes the place of Charles E. Galagher as the oracle of Chinatown, Uin-Sci; Marie Sundelius replaces Francesca Peralta as Ah-Yoe, and Mario Chamlee, the young American tenor who made such a sensation last spring as Cavaradossi, in "La Tosca," will have the part of Uin-San-Lui. For the rest, the cast is the same as in the two previous performances of this work in St. Louis.

For the presentation of "Il Trovatore," on Saturday night, the following cast is announced: Leonora, Francesca Peralta; Azucena, Jeanne Gordon; Inez, Mary Kent; Manrico, Morgan Kingston; Count di Luna, Greek Evans; Ferrando, Giovanni Martino; Ruiz, Giordano Paltrinieri; and a gipsy, Eugenio Marino. Carlo Peroni will conduct all the performances, and the productions will be in the hands of Armando Agnini, stage manager of the Metropolitan.

MANY NEW FACES IN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Albin Steindel Advances to First Desk; Leaders of Some Sections Replaced.

Although the numerical strength of the Symphony Orchestra will remain at last year's figures, 81 men, several important changes in personnel are announced.

Arno Waechtler, for many years assistant concertmaster, has resigned to devote his time to teaching, and will be succeeded by Albin Steindel, who came to the local organization last year from the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, as a member of the first violin section. He is a brother of H. Max Steindel, leader of the 'cello section. The second violins will have a new leader in Samuel Laskowitz, a former member of the orchestra, who returns after an absence of several years.

Rocco M. Zottarelle, a St. Louisan, who has been playing and studying in Cihcago for the last three seasons, replaces Tony P. Saril as first clarinet, the latter being now in charge of an orchestra of his own. David Glickstein, who attracted much attention last year in the position of first trumpeter, has been seized upon by a rival orchestra. His place will be taken by Joseph Gustat.

Four New French Horn Players.

Four of the five players in the French horn choir will be new. Pellegrine Lecce remains as first horn. Frank Henniger, a St. Louisan, comes in as assistant first horn. The other new players will be Frederick Schaub and Julius Gardner, both of Pittsburg, and Carl A. Schinner, who comes from the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Eugene Kiefer, for many seasons bass trombone player and librarian of the orchestra, will be replaced in the first capacity by Charles F. Meier. Elmer Gesner, leader of the percussion battery, takes over the duties of the librarian.

Anton Kellersberger will succeed the late Jacques Wouters as second oboe and English horn player; and Samuel Wagner of Pittsburg takes the position of third oboe. There will be three new men among the double bass performers, Fred Votapek of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, S. Hochman and William Soehnlin Jr. Newcomers in the 'cello section will be Raymond Hamilton of Denver and three St. Louisans, Ewald Graul, Ninnian Waerner and Abe Kessler.

New Men Among First Violins.

New men among the first violins will be Maurice Speyer, former leader of the Orpheum Theater orchestra; David Eisenberger, Jascha Selwitz, Joseph Curto and Frederick Claiborne. Harry Mandel of Chicago will be a recruit to the second violins.

Leaders of sections who retain their positions are: Michael Gusikoff, concertmaster; H. Max Steindel, first 'cellist; Hugo Olk, first viola; John F. Kiburz, first flute; Robert Buhl, first double-bass; Frederick Fischer, first bassoon; Adolph Bertram, first oboe; and Oscar Hallbach, first trombone. Mme. Ida Delledonne remains as solo harpist, and Otto Kristufek again will command the kettle drums.

Director Zach will arrive in the city next week, and it is planned to begin rehearsals on Nov. 1.

Organ Recital at Graham Chapel.

The first of eight free organ recitals at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University campus, will be given this afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, by Charles Galloway. The program will include Fugue a la Gigue, Bach; "Rhapsodie," opus 30, Rosseter G. Cole; Sonata No. 5, Mendelssohn; "Claire de Lune," Kargs-Elert; Theme and Variations, Bossi; "Romanza" in D, Horatio Parker; and "Marche de Fete," Eugene Gigout.

Tailors' Banquet Thursday Night.

The Master Tailors' Association of St. Louis will hold its first annual banquet at the American Hotel Annex Thursday evening. Among the speakers who have been asked to attend are Gov. Gardner, Senator Reed, Mayor Kiel, Circuit Attorney McDaniel, Arthur Hyde and John M. Atkinson, Republican and Democratic candidates, respectively, for Governor, and Jesse W. Barrett, Republican candidate for Attorney-General.

Address Before Ethical Society.

"What I Found in Austria, Germany and England," will be the subject of the address before the Ethical Society this morning. The speaker will be Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott of New York, who has recently returned from a mission on which he was sent by the American Ethical Union to report upon conditions in Europe. At 8 p. m. James Gutmann of New York will speak about his mission to the young people abroad, on which he was sent by the Y. P. A.'s here.

1600 EXPECTED HERE AT PAINT CONVENTION

Thirty-Third Annual Session of National Association Opens Tomorrow.

The thirty-third annual convention of the National Paint, Oil and Varnish Association will open here tomorrow at the Statler Hotel and close Friday. The organization comprises 41 clubs, with a joint membership of 1300 manufacturers and jobbers in the principal cities of the United States and Canada. This will be the third time the association has met in St. Louis.

The formal opening will be at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Mayor Kiel will deliver the address of welcome on behalf of St. Louis and Gov. Gardner will welcome the delegates on behalf of Missouri. S. Marshall Evans of Chicago, vice president of the central zone of the association, will respond to the addresses of welcome.

Tomorrow morning the annual men's golf tournament will be held at Ridgedale (Glen Echo) Country Club. The women's golf tournament will be held Tuesday morning.

About 1600 delegates and visitors are expected.

In conjunction with the convention, Casper P. DeLore, chairman of the Committee on "Developing St. Louis as a Paint Center," has engaged an artist of national reputation to depict in oil, and an editorial writer of more than national reputation in the paint trade to tell the "Story of Barytes."

The Barytes industry is probably the least known of all the important industries in this vicinity. Missouri produced in the 10-year period ending 1919, 40 per cent of the entire output in the United States, while prior to 1915, Missouri produced 65 per cent of the domestic barytes of the entire country.

Barytes is an important factor in some and a necessary factor in limited quantities in others of the following list of manufacturers: Artificial marble, asbestos products, blanc fixe, colors, explosives, fireworks, glass, insulating material, linoleum, lithopone, oilcloth, paints, paper, peroxide of hydrogen, phonograph records, printer's ink, rubber, sealing wax, shade cloth, and other textiles, soap, tiles, ceramics and titanium pigments.

For the purpose of graphically telling the story Oscar E. Berninghaus, whose oil and pen sketches of the barytes fields and industry will be exhibited in suite 208, Hotel Statler, during the convention, spent more than two months in and around the old town of Mine au Breton, now Potosi, Mo.

Many of the paintings and sketches from life in the baryta fields are reproduced in the brochure which will be distributed during the convention and which contains the "Story of Barytes."

Allen W. Clark, who prepared the text for the story, is a leading authority among the paint trade journal editors, being editor of the American Paint Journal and also the American Paint and Oil Dealer.

CONSULAR AGENTS IN EUROPE WATCH SHIPS FOR BLACK SHEEP

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Many of Europe's black sheep are hoping to reach America while the volume of emigrant traffic continues at its present abnormal flood. To prevent these undesirables from crossing the Atlantic the greatest vigilance is being exercised by all United States consular officers, who recently received additional instructions from the State Department to examine most closely all foreigners going to America, whether as passengers or as members of the crews of foreign vessels. In the last few weeks several vessels leaving London could not obtain their clearance papers until suspected seamen were landed from them.

The United States consuls are also vigorously enforcing the order by Surgeon-General Blue of the Public Health Service, that no steerage passengers be permitted to sail without first being vaccinated. When the Aquitania sailed last week 30 passengers were left behind because they had not been vaccinated. When the Caronia departed Wednesday American physicians, in the presence of a consular officer, vaccinated 80 late arrivals and this staff was at the pier also when the Saxonia sailed.

The North Atlantic passenger conference has asked Surgeon-General Blue, who is in Paris, to attend an urgent conference at Liverpool, hoping to obtain the concession that late arrivals may be vaccinated at sea within 48 hours after sailing.

Capable domestic help is easily and quickly secured through Post-Dispatch WANTS.

Liquid or Plaster

©B&B1920

They end corns
now in this scientific way

People who know—millions of them—now end all corns in this way.

They apply Blue-jay, either in liquid or in plaster form. It means but a touch and takes but a jiffy.

The corn pain stops. Then the Blue-jay gently undermines the corn so it loosens and comes out.

The modern way

Blue-jay was invented by a chemist who studied corns.

It is made by a laboratory of world-wide repute.

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure.

Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pare and pad them is folly.

You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop.

Blue-jay has proved these facts to millions. It will prove them to you—and tonight—if you let it.

Quit the old methods of dealing with corns and see what this new way means. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

Hudson Super-Six Endurance Means Economy

ALL men—if they have the facts—know the Hudson Super-Six has led the trend from less durable types. When it came, with practically doubled efficiency and endurance over conventional types of is size, it established a new basis of economy reckoning.

Today more than 100,000 Hudson owners know, too, all the other desirable things men seek in a car. Hudson also adds the triumph of true economy.

The exclusive Super-Six motor accounts for all Hudson has done. The proof is that no other car, notwithstanding all the improvements that have been made in motor building, has ever been able to equal its world famous stock car records.

FAMOUS OLD RECIPE FOR COUGH SYRUP

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

MISSIONARY TELLS OF HIS WORK IN SUDAN

Dr. A. P. Stirrett Here to Arouse Interest in African "Land of Darkness."

Dr. A. P. Stirrett of Toronto, Canada, field secretary of the Sudan Interior Mission, an interdenominational organization which supports 55 missionaries at 18 stations among the pagan and Mohammedan tribes of Nigeria, Africa, spoke at religious centers of St. Louis and neighboring towns last week, telling of his 17 years in the Sudan, to arouse interest in that mission field.

Dr. Stirrett entered the Sudan—"The Land of Darkness"—in 1902, and returned last Christmas to take up his present work. In 1902 there was only one mission station in the Sudan. This was at Patigi, 350 miles up the River Niger from the coast of the Gulf of Guinea. He was the fifth missionary to enter the field.

Religion of Pagans.

He found the country thickly inhabited by 20,000,000 Mohammedans in three large tribes in the middle northern section, and a like number of pagans in 41 tribes scattered over the rest of Nigeria. The religion of the pagans is a network of superstition. Twins are believed to be an ill omen, and at birth are abandoned to the hyenas. The bodies of brave enemies are fed to the Kings' wives, that the Kings' sons might be brave. They worship a god represented by a hideous idol, whose emissary is the witch doctor, corresponding to the Indian medicine man, with a power greater than the King.

Previous to the British occupation of Nigeria in 1900, the Moslem Emir of Sokoto, then ranking in the Mohammedan world next to the Sultan of Turkey and the Shah of Persia, ruled the entire region. He recruited slaves from the pagan tribes to such an extent that their population was at a standstill for five years after the British entered the country and stopped the practice. This menace now takes another form, according to Dr. Stirrett, as the Mohammedans gain converts from the pagans, and a Moslem rarely becomes a Christian. Missionaries have been working in Algeria and North Africa 30 years, he says, without getting one convert from Moslemism.

2000 Converts in 19 Years.

Since 1901, when the first missionaries reached the interior, approximately 2000 pagans, all of eight tribes, have become Christians. One tribe, which practiced cannibalism four years ago, now has a church of several hundred members, and a class which is learning to read the Bible from New Testaments with the English alphabet in a phonetic spelling of their own language, printed at the mission shop in Nigeria. Each tribe has a different language and the missionaries, when they learn the tongue, send a manuscript to the printing shop for a supply of Bibles.

In a Christian village, often the largest building is the church. All the buildings are of sun-dried brick, with walls 16 or more feet in height, on account of the heat of the sun, and are thatched with long grass. As the buildings will not support a bell, church bells, brought from the coast, are suspended from trees.

The Sudan formerly was called the "White Man's Grave," because Europeans were unable to withstand the intense heat and humidity of the lowlands. Dr. Stirrett was commissioned in 1912 to find a suitable place for a rest camp on the high plateaus in the mountainous part of the country. He found a fit location at Miango, 4000 feet above sea level, but it was a three weeks' journey from Wushishi, the nearest mission station. Tin mines were later discovered near Miango, however, and a 150-mile spur was built from the British Nigerian Railway to within 15 miles of the rest camp. Now missionaries coming to the camp ride the 15 miles over a mining road in a Ford automobile owned by the mission. There are about 25 children with the Sudan missionaries, and they are put in charge of a nurse at the rest camp as soon as they are old enough to leave their parents. The missionaries spend six weeks at the camp each year.

Porridge Main Diet.

The native diet consists mainly of a porridge made from Guinea corn, a Nigerian grain, ground into meal between flat stones. This is supplemented by yams, buttermilk, and the flesh of wild animals—and sometimes, but now very rarely, human flesh. Dr. Stirrett had many disconcerting experiences with the native cooks, such as finding that his cocoa was prepared with bath-water. He tells of one native cook, who, instructed not to chop up a chicken, as she usually did, cooked it whole, feathers and all.

Notwithstanding these and other disagreeable features of the service, Dr. Stirrett intends to return to Nigeria next spring when his work here is done, and spend the rest of his life, he says, "fighting the menace of Mohammedanism."

SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT URGED

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Teachers of Missouri schools have been asked by Sam A. Baker, State Superintendent of Schools, to call the attention of the Community Teachers' Associations and others "to the importance of stressing the amendment providing for the levy of 100 cents on the $100 valuation for school purposes in rural schools." The amendment to the State constitution is No. 5 on the ballot which will be voted upon at the November election.

The amendment, Baker said, will enable rural schools to obtain more money. The present levy is 65 cents on the $100 valuation, Baker said, while the levy in towns is $1.

Blood-Iron Phosphate For Weak, Thin Folks

Weak, thin, nervous people almost invariably owe their condition to lack of phosphate in the nerves and lack of iron in the blood. One of the surest, quickest and safest ways in which to make up the deficiency is to take with each meal a five-grain tablet of digestible phosphate and iron known among druggists here as Blood-Iron Phosphate, because it supplies iron to the blood as well as phosphate to the nervous system. People who have tried it say that one five-grain tablet taken with each meal quickly restores depleted nervous energy, enriches the blood, increases strength, vitality and endurance, and those who are too thin usually put on pounds of solid stay-there flesh in a short time. Inasmuch as Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson, Johnson Bros. and all other druggists are authorized to sell Blood-Iron Phosphate under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, every thin, weak, nervous or anemic man or woman should give it a trial without delay.

Important—Blood-Iron Phosphate is sold only in original packages, containing enough for three weeks' treatment, at $1.50 per package—only 50 cents a week.

HONEY MUSHROOMS TOO STRONG FOR THE AVERAGE AMERICAN

Collectors of the "Delicacy" Usually Are Poles, Bohemians and Italians.

By the Associated Press.

WHEATON, Ill., Oct. 16.—This is the season of the honey mushroom. To this delicacy and those who go in quest of it Dr. W. S. Moffatt of Wheaton, one of the experts in this field, calls attention. A professional man, Dr. Moffat long ago took up the study of mushrooms for the love of it, became a member of many learned societies, and frequently lectures before nature clubs in Chicago. Dr. Moffat writes:

"Every pleasant morning in autumn several hundred men, each carrying a coarse gunny sack, board a train or an electric car and journey from their city homes to some tract of woodland. These men, all foreigners, go in quest of mushrooms.

"The species which they collect is known as 'honey mushrooms' (Armillaria mellea). It differs from the mushroom of the shops (Agricus campestris) in that it has a scaly top of a dull brown or honey color, white or greenish gills, and a very thick ring around the stem. Also, it grows in clusters around stumps and over buried roots in the woods, while the Agaricus grows singly in open fields.

"In my woodland rambles I often meet these collectors. Each is provided with a stout stick with which he pokes away from stumps and logs the dead leaves that may hide buried treasure. Having found the mushrooms, he pulls off the caps, which he places in the sack. Occasionally a single stump may add a peck to his collection. These collectors, often Poles, Bohemians or Italians, are genial, friendly people, ready to give an inquiring stranger any information they can regarding their work. They have told me that after sorting over the mushrooms at home the good ones are spread out thinly before a fire or in the sun and dried. In the winter they are used for seasoning soups or meats. The surplus product is sold to grocers.

"The flavor of the honey mushroom, even in its fresh state, is strong and not liked by the average American. When dried, it is still less agreeable."

Woman in England Seeks Cousin. A letter has been received from Mrs. Caroline Fox, 144 Hornby street, off Scotland road, Liverpool, England, asking the Post-Dispatch to help her find a cousin whom she has never seen. According to the letter, the missing cousin is Rose, the daughter of the late John O'Hara, and she was born in St. Louis about 1872.

That Look of Health
How we long for it!

You see it all about—and wonder. That look of health. That picture of happiness. How you crave it for yourself!

You need not. Millions now know the secret of health. Millions follow a simple, basic rule. Medical science recognizes this rule as the foundation of health. Physicians everywhere now prescribe this way to keep well.

Ask your doctor the underlying cause of most human ills. He will tell you constipation. Most men and women, it is true, have known this for years. But what they have not known is the need for quick and complete results from a physic.

Ask Your Doctor

Ask your doctor, when your system becomes clogged, how quickly the waste matter should be removed. His answer will be—"at once." The reason is plain to those who know. Germs multiply by millions in a clogged intestinal tract. Poisons are rapidly absorbed by the blood.

Foul breath, coated tongue, lassitude, muddy skin often manifest themselves in surprisingly short time. Worse than that, this condition is the common forerunner of colds, headaches, high blood pressure, rheumatism, influenza, pneumonia, and other dread diseases.

When you need a physic, time is the first consideration. You cannot afford to wait a day—or even half a day—for a physic to act.

That is where old-fashioned cathartics failed. They were slow in action, and uncertain of results. Eminent physicians today recommend a harmless mineral water, because it is quick and certain in action. This water is known as Pluto. It acts unfailingly—and it works fast. Its efficacy is due to the minerals it contains.

Due to Minerals

These minerals soften the waste accumulation. The water helps to flush it gently away. The action is pleasant and gentle—entirely free from the griping effects of old-fashioned cathartics. Results are sure, prompt and complete.

Get from your druggist today a bottle of Pluto Water. Try it in your home. Use it first thing in the morning, or before meals. Learn for yourself its prompt, complete results. Note its pleasant, harmless action. See how quickly it restores normal, healthy activity. You will feel like a new person!

Thousands of men and women take Pluto Water at regular intervals, regardless of whether they are constipated. In this way they avoid dangerous constipation.

Pluto water is equally effective for children and grown-ups. As a laxative take ¼ tumbler of Pluto; as a cathartic, ⅓ tumbler; as a purgative, ½ tumbler—add hot or cold water to fill glass. Pluto Water in your home at all times is the best of health insurance. Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

Your physician prescribes it

WOMEN'S WORK TO BE SHOWN IN EXPOSITION

25,000 Representatives of Local Churches and Societies Are Interested in Enterprise.

Hundreds of prominent church women of the city are to be trained as saleswomen for the Women's Exposition, which will be held at the Coliseum, Nov. 15 to 20, at a public meeting at 3 p. m. Friday at the Vandervoort auditorium. Thomas Q. Dix will address the women on salesmanship, and give them practical pointers on selling the "exposition idea" to the public prior to the show in order to arouse interest and co-operation. Women who are to take part in the various displays and concessions are urged to attend.

The Women's Exposition will be one of the first attempts in the United States to adequately represent women's work, progress and activities along educational, social service, recreational and religious lines. Twenty-five thousand women of 200 St. Louis churches and societies are concerned in the enterprise, and the exhibits will include displays gathered from all parts of the world in the last six months of preparation. Mrs. David McWilliams is chairman of the Exposition Committee, Mrs. Harry Plagler, vice chairman; Mrs. N. A. McMillan, chairman of the Entertainment Committee; Mrs. F. V. Dubrouillet, treasurer and secretary, Mrs. J. Alex Goodwin, Music Committee; Mrs. F. H. Dodge, Ticket Committee; Mrs. Fred English, Program Committee; Mrs. C. E. Bascom, Publicity Committee; Mrs. M. A. Goldstein, Public Health Exhibit.

Chair of the various concessions are as follows: Mrs. Charles Demuth, Evangelical Federation; Mrs. Frank Kauffman, Baptist Auxiliary; Miss Ada Winston, Episcopal Unit; Mrs. Clay Jordan and Mrs. E. M. Treat, Presbyterian Unit; Mrs. Al Rubelman, Baptist Unit; Mrs. Frank L. Scott, Christian Church Unit; Mrs. Nelson Gunliff and Mrs. W. T. Midlam, Methodist Unit; Mrs. Joseph Calfee and Mrs. J. C. Handy, Southern Methodist Unit; Mrs. A. A. Tucker and Mrs. C. E. White, Congregational Unit; Mrs. Sam Spiegel and Mrs. Henry Wolfner, Jewish Unit; Mrs. E. Dicke, Ethical Unit; Mrs. G. R. Dodson, Unitarian Unit; Mrs. Arthur Ewing and Mrs. Newton Wilson, Unitarian Mission Free School; Mrs. Carl Reed Taylor, Grace-Holy Gross Settlement; Mrs. J. F. Shoemaker, Epworth School for Girls; Mrs. Franklin Pierce, Neighborhood Association; Mrs. Edmund Brown and Mrs. Walter Marx, visiting Nurse Association; Mrs. Sam Conant, Girls' Industrial Home; Mrs. Murray French and Mrs. Charles Pope O'Fallon, Kingdom House; Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, St. Louis Children's Hospital; Mrs. Clark McAdams, St. Louis Art Exhibit; Mrs. Sam Conant, Girls' Industrial Home; Mrs. Payton Carr, Quilt Exhibit.

Ministers of all denominations have united in commending the objects of the expedition, and social service leaders and city officials emphasize the need of funds for the purposes the proceeds of the exposition will be used. This will include the salaries of trained workers to direct voluteers of churches and organizations in their efforts to extend a helping hand to all women in need and distress, to provide workers among young girls in the city courts and to do protective work among young girls of the city. Americanization work in many foreign districts of the city will also be pushed and community center activities established.

$15,000 Estate for Missing Man.

An estate worth $15,000, left to Robert L. Beatty, is in the hands of John C. Mask, chief of the fire department of Lima, O., as administrator. Mack wrote to the Post-Dispatch saying he could not trace Beatty except that it is understood he went West.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN ON B. & O.

In an effort to stop loss of life and injury to the men on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, a No-Accident Campaign will begin tomorrow morning, at 12:01 o'clock, and will continue until midnight of Nov. 16. During this time it is proposed to try and prevent injuries to employes and accidents to trains.

To prepare the employes for the drive, the railroad's safety department, of which J. T. Broderick is superintendent, has for several weeks been arousing interest in it. The divisions will be in competition, one against the other. The final standing of the divisions, the big shops and some special departments, will be determined by their rate of reducing accidents, as compared with the same 30-day period last year. The division winning first place on the Eastern lines of the railroad and the division winning first place on the Western lines will each receive a big pennant to be flown at division headquarters. Eighty-five men selected from each of these divisions will be guests of the railroad company at a banquet. Fifteen men from certain separate departments in competition also will attend.

HOOSIER

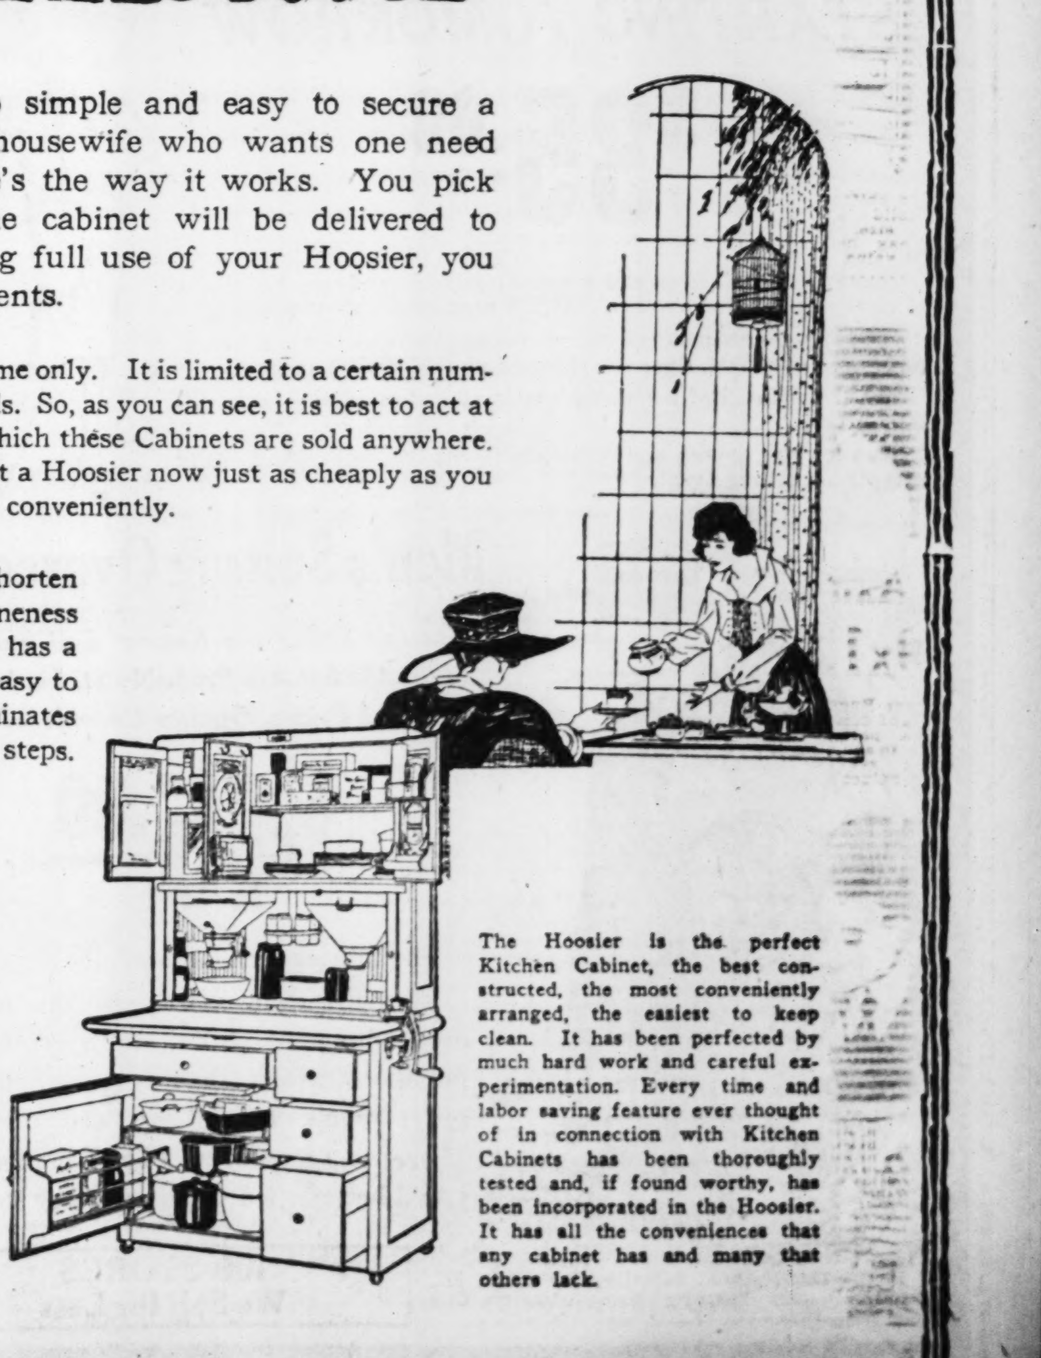
Club Plan Sale

$1.00 Delivers Your Hoosier

THIS Club Plan Sale makes it so simple and easy to secure a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet that no housewife who wants one need wait any longer to get one. Here's the way it works. You pick out your Hoosier. You pay $1.00. The cabinet will be delivered to your home at once. Then while enjoying full use of your Hoosier, you complete paying for it in convenient payments.

This Club Plan Sale will be in force for a short time only. It is limited to a certain number of Cabinets. When they are gone, the sale ends. So, as you can see, it is best to act at once. The sale price is the lowest cash price at which these Cabinets are sold anywhere. The Club Plan Sale gives you an opportunity to get a Hoosier now just as cheaply as you could in any other way—and you pay for it more conveniently.

Put a Hoosier in your kitchen and you not only shorten your working day, but you also take all the tiresomeness and drudgery out of kitchen work. The Hoosier has a place for every kitchen utensil—makes each one easy to find, easy to reach, easy to put away. It eliminates bending and stooping and saves you hundreds of steps.



The Hoosier is the perfect Kitchen Cabinet, the best constructed, the most conveniently arranged, the easiest to keep clean. It has been perfected by much hard work and careful experimentation. Every time and labor saving feature ever thought of in connection with Kitchen Cabinets has been thoroughly tested and, if found worthy, has been incorporated in the Hoosier. It has all the conveniences that any cabinet has and many that others lack.

COMPULSORY FARMING PROPOSED IN ARGENTINA

Economic Army of Youth Not Called to Army or Navy Aim of Bill in Assembly.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 15.—Compulsory farming is provided for in a bill just introduced in the Chamber of Deputies with the idea of forming an economic army of the youth of Argentina who are not called into the army and navy under the conscription law. If this measure becomes a law every young man in the country who does not take up a rifle or go to sea will be set to raising wheat and doing other farm labor.

Although compulsory military service is in force in Argentina, only a small part of the young men actually go into the service at present, these being selected by lot, and as a result, according to La Nacion, there is some dissatisfaction because of the exemptions. If the new law is passed, says the newspaper, it will result in the cheapening of foodstuffs and some of the vast tracts of uncultivated public land in Argentina can be put to producing food.

CHERRY TREES BLOSSOM TWICE

Second Blooms of Year on Farm Near Poplar Bluff.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 16.—Two cherry trees, full of blossoms on the farm of J. E. Owens, near here, are thought by local horticulturists to have bloomed for the second time this year because of the mild summer.

Farmers said they thought the excessive rains, a cool spell following and then warm weather formed a short cycle similar to the return of spring.

OVE TO SUPERVISE EALTH IN HOMES BEGUN

uberculosis Society Seeking to Better Environment of Open Air Pupils.

A new line of endeavor to im- ove the general health of this mmunity, thereby lessening the ead of tuberculosis, has been ned by the Tuberculosis Society St. Louis through its social serv- department. This is a supervi- n of the home environment of ldren attending the open air ools of the city with the idea of ucing families of these children adopt good health habits where h are not practiced, and to invoke aid of municipal authority where ong conditions are the result of nobservance of city regulations.

Points considered in this supervi- n, according to officers of the so- ty, are adequate housing space, oper sleeping conditions, proper ntilation, proper and nutritious d, training and supervision given open air school children in their mes, general health of all mem- s of the family, moral standards the family, kind of recreation and formation as to whether employed embers of the family have health- l and satisfactory jobs.

Obstacles in Way of Health.

Families who fall short of a nor- al standard of living are regarded obstacles in the way of permanent alth for the children in whom the uberculosis Society—through its nnection with the open air schools is interested, and these families e given special attention. Other social agencies are enlisted in situations the Tuberculosis Society is not equipped to handle. Adjustments as to employmnet are made, relief problems are referred to their proper agencies, matters of sanitation are taken up with the city health authorities, and evils which can be cured by teaching the families simple heatlh rules are given direct attention.

This supervision is exercised in a friendly way by a trained social service worker of the Tuberculosis Society's staff, and is conducted in families of children who have been discharged from the open air schools and sent back to the grade schools, as well as those now attending the open air schools. Regular follow-up visits for the former children are made, and records kept of each, in the effort to discover if the improvement derived from attendance at the open air schools has been permanent. In a large majority of the cases of former pupils of these schools permanent good health has been established by the open-air system of education.

Pays for Meals of Children.

Follow-up work for former pupils and paying for meals of those pupils in the schools who were unable to afford the price of their own food, has until recently been the part the Tuberculosis Society has taken in the conduct of the two open air day schools of the city, the Board of Education having entire charge of all other matters. The new plan of home supervision is supplementary to these two functions and is done as another line of co-operative effort with the Board of Education. At present the Tuberculosis Society pays for the meals of about 70 per cent of the pupils in the two open air day schools, that number being unable to pay for their own food, at a cost of 25 cents per day per child.

The society also maintains a residential open air school for little girls in connection with its Night and Day Camp for self-supporting girls and women. The Board of Education provides teacher and schoolroom equipment and medical supervision for this school, and the Tuberculosis Society furnishes housing, food and nursing, at a cost of about $2.30 a day per child.

GALVESTON NOW A CLEAN PORT

Rat-Proofing Ordinance Will Cost City $1,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 16.—The war of extermination against the rat, instituted with the discovery of the first case of bubonic plague here, has resulted in making Galveston one of the cleanest ports in the country, according to United States Public Health Service officials here. A rat-proofing ordinance, adopted by the Board of City Commissioners on recommendation of Surgeon-General Cumming of the health service, will cost the city in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, it has been estimated.

To date, 15 cases of bubonic plague have appeared in Galveston, of which nine were fatal.

Preventive measures along the water front include the use of rat guards on all hawsers from ships to shore, and the blocking out of ships a sufficient distance from the docks to eliminate the possibility of rats leaping ashore. All ships, in order to get a clean bill of health, must undergo fumigation before clearing for other ports. In order to prevent spread of the disease inland, all freight cars are fumigated before loading.

Removes the Roots of Superfluous Hair

(Entirely New Method)

"Seeing is believing!" When your own eyes see the roots come out, you know the entire hair is gone, not merely the surface hair.

Yes, it is really true that the new phelactine method removes superfluous hair completely—roots and all—without the least injury, leaving the skin soft, smooth, hairless. You do the work in a jiffy, in your own home, without assistance. It does away with numerous and expensive visits to the electrolysis expert. Does away with depilatories or shaving at frequent intervals. Nothing like it ever known before. Perfectly harmless, odorless, non-irritating. Get a stick of phelactine, follow the easy instructions and have the surprise of your life.

BUNIONS!
Pain Stops Instantly—
Hump Vanishes
TRY IT AT MY RISK

New, marvelous way to treat bunions. Stops pain instantly—banishes the ugly hump and tired, achey, swollen, burning condition. You can wear a smaller shoe with comfort. First trial convinces. No clumsy apparatus, no rubber mould or protector, no [illegible] comfortable leather shield or felt pad, no plaster or mussy liquid. It is PEDODYNE for bunions. You will see it is wonderful—amazing, so quick, so sure does it act. Don't suffer. Try PEDODYNE at my risk. Write today before you do another thing. Send no money. I will send you PEDODYNE by return mail. If satisfied, costs $2.00—otherwise nothing. Just say, "I want to try PEDODYNE." Address KAY LABORATORIES, Dept. 909, 536 S. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

VIRGIN ISLANDS PROSPEROUS SINCE U. S. TOOK THEM OVER

Trade of New Possessions Increases $1,054,262, or 33 Per Cent, in Year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Uncle Sam has made the Virgin Islands prosperous, according to statistics on the trade of his newest possession. The trade of those islands with the world was valued at $4,196,037 in 1919, while in 1918 it was $3,141,775. This was a gain in a year of $1,054,262, or 33 per cent.

Exports were $1,249,346 in 1918 and $1,919,525 in 1919, a gain of $670,179. Imports increased $384,083, from $1,892,429 in 1918 to $2,276,512 last year. With this gratifying increase there was a drop of nearly 50 per cent in the balance of trade against the islands from $643,083 in 1918 to $356,987 in 1919.

The major portion of this valuable commerce was with the United States, the exports from this country increasing in value $164,014, from $1,640,103 to $1,804,117; and imports from the islands into the states $455,619, from $1,137,501 in 1918 to $1,593,120 in 1919.

This showing was the more remarkable since the operation of the National Prohibition Act practically cut off in 1919 the former valuable trade in spirits, wines and liquors for beverage purposes.

IDLE LEVIATHAN'S CREW REDUCED TO 20 MEN

Upkeep of Vessel Costs $25,000 a Day —Crew Kept Busy Scrubbing Barnacles Off.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The skeleton crew on the former American transport Leviathan, under command of Capt. John Jamison, retired commodore of the American line fleet, has been reduced to 20 sailors and firemen, who have been engaged during the past week in scrubbing the barnacles off her huge sides, which have accumulated with quantities of long green grass during the year and one month that she has been made fast to Pier 1, Hoboken.

Apart from the money the big liner might have earned in carrying passengers to Europe during the rush season last spring, when tonnage was in such great demand, it has cost the United States Shipping Board $75,000 a month for upkeep, which totals $975,000 for the 13 months' tie-up.

The Leviathan is 908 feet long and 80 feet deep from the boat deck to the waterline, so that by the time the stand-by crew have floated their stages around her sides and cleaned them with their long-handled scrubbers it will be time to start all over again.

Birth Registrar Complains He Got Only One Certificate in Two Months.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 16.—The registrar of vital statistics at Pineville, Ky., has just had inserted in the newspapers of that city the following official notice which speaks for itself:

"There has been only one birth certificate turned in to me as registrar of this district for the entire month of September. For the month of August there was not one. Somebody is violating the law or the stork is on a strike.

"Windsor" Furniture---

Transcending the Commonplace
Well Within Moderate Cost

Combining beauty of line and fine craftsmanship, and maintaining the most exacting traditions of the cabinet maker's art, Furniture from the Windsor factory is beautifully executed only in the solid woods, hand carved and hand finished.

All Solid Mahogany

Is the feature of these Windsor Pieces and Windsor Phonographs, sketched on our floors, with the delicate carving hand wrought in the solid wood.

The prices named below will be recognized as REAL concessions and so must apply only to our present stock, which is very limited.

Thomas Chippendale

Master designer of the Georgian period, is responsible for all that is grace and charm in the beautiful Dining Suite sketched above.

Thirteen pieces comprise this group. A spacious sideboard is further enhanced by twin mahogany carved candlesticks and mirror. An oblong table, measuring 48x66 inches, an interesting server and wood-paneled silver chest, five side chairs and a host's armchair, with seats in blue haircloth, complete the suite for $1250.00

"Windsor" Phonographs

The perfect musical instruments, are made in all the popular period designs to harmonize with your furnishings.

The Queen Anne Console model at the left, in the group above, sells for $275.00

In the center an upright model in the graceful curves of the Queen Anne period is selling for $135.00

Of Chinese Chippendale design, relieved by interesting carvings, the art model in the foreground sells for........... $325.00

To the Brothers Adam

May be attributed the delicate simplicity in the fine inlays and flutings which find perfect expression in the Bedroom Suite pictured below.

The Dresser, beautifully proportioned, measures 54 inches; there is a broad Chifforobe excellently constructed; the 42-inch Dressing Table has triple mirrors and a full-sized bed, bench and chair; six pieces sell for $890.00

Experiences of Noted Editor Narrated in Sketches From His Own Story of His Life

Edward Bok of the Ladies' Home Journal Began as Window Washer—Adventures With Beecher and F. R. Stockton Described.

EDWARD BOK came to America as a Dutch boy at the age 6. His parents were poor, and partly the necessity of helping them, but principally his great energy, drove him into all sorts of activities. His first job was washing windows at 50 cents a week. He picked coal from the street and wood from vacant lots. He contributed items to the Brooklyn papers while he was selling lemonade and ice water to street-car passengers; collected autographs personally from the great people of the day while he was Jay Gould's stenographer; ran a newspaper syndicate and edited a magazine while holding an important place in a large publishing house. Then he became editor of The Ladies Home Journal, and his account of how he made of it a success altogether beyond precedent and of the powerful instrument he made it for practical and artistic education and reform is fascinating.

The extraordinary range of interest in this autobiography of the famous editor of The Ladies' Home Journal, which the Scribners have just published, is suggested by the names of those who figure conspicuously in its pages: among Presidents, Grant, Hayes, Harrison, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Wilson; among writers, Holmes, Emerson, Longfellow, Mark Twain, Stockton, Stevenson, Kipling; among other noted figures, Jay Gould, Henry Ward Beecher, Phillips Brooks, Gladstone. The following stories are called from Bok's autobiography:

Formerly Stenographer, Then Book Advertising Manager

At one time in his interesting career Bok was a stenographer for Charles Scribners' Sons and he later became the book advertising manager. He speaks of those early days when he first came to work there:

"The personnel of the Scribner house was very youthful from the members of the firm clear down the

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, Known as

Snake Oil

Will Positively Relieve Pain in a Few Minutes

Try it right now for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, sore, stiff and swollen joints, pain in the head, back and limbs, corns, bunions, etc. After one application pain usually disappears as if by magic.

A new remedy used externally for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Sore Throat, Diphtheria and Tonsilitis.

This oil is conceded to be the most penetrating remedy known. Its prompt and immediate effect in relieving pain is due to the fact that it penetrates to the affected parts at once. As an illustration, pour ten drops on the thickest piece of sole leather and it will penetrate this substance through and through in three minutes.

Accept no substitute. This great oil is golden red color only. Manufactured by Herb Juice Medicine Co. only. Get it at the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.

Difficult to Keep Your Hair Wavy? Read This

If you have not yet tried the new way, the silmerine way, by all means do so. You'll never again use the ruinous heated iron. The curliness will appear so perfectly natural and the hair will be so beautifully lustrous, instead of dried and parched. Thus liquid silmerine serves also as a beneficial dressing for the hair. It is neither sticky nor greasy, but quite pleasant to use. It should be applied with a clean toothbrush before putting on the hair, drawing the brush through the hair from root to tip.

The hair will have the loveliest curls and waves imaginable in three hours, and it will be easy to manage, no matter how you do it up. A few ounces of the liquid from your druggist will last a long time.

EDITOR BOK TELLS OF EXPERIENCES IN 36 YEARS' WORK

line. It was veritably a house of young men.

"The story is told of a Boston publisher, sedate and fairly elderly, who came to the Scribner house to transact business with several of its departments. One of his errands concerning itself with advertising, he was introduced to Bok, who was then 24. Looking the youth over, he transacted his business as well as he felt it could be transacted with a manager of such tender years, and then sought the head of the educational department; this brought him to another young man of 24.

"With his yearnings for some one more advanced in years full upon him, the visitor now inquired for the business manager of the new magazine, only to find a man of 26. His next introduction was to the head of the out-of-town business department, who was 27.

"At this point the Boston man asked to see Mr. Scribner. This disclosed to him Mr. Arthur H. Scribner, the junior partner, who owned to 28 summers. Mustering courage to ask faintly for Mr. Charles Scribner himself, he finally brought up in that gentleman's office only to meet a man just turning 33!

" 'This is a young looking crowd,' said Mr. Scribner one day, looking over his young men. And his eye rested on Bok. 'Particularly you, Bok. Doubleday looks his years better than you do, for at least he has a mustache.' Then, contemplatively: 'You raise a mustache, Bok, and I'll raise your salary.'

"This appealed to Bok very strongly, and within a month he pointed out the result to his employer. 'Stand in the light there,' said Mr. Scribner. 'Well, yes,' he concluded dubiously, 'it's there—something at least. All right; I'll keep my part of the bargain.'

"He did. But the next day he was nonplussed to see that the mustache had disappeared from the lip of his youthful advertising manager. 'Couldn't quite stand it, Mr. Scribner,' was the explanation. 'Besides, you didn't say I should keep it; you merely said to raise it.' "

Effort to "Pump" Stockton Described

Speaking of his experience as advertising manager with authors, Bok says:

"Whenever Mr. Stockton came into the office Bok pumped him dry as to his experiences with the story, such as when, at a dinner party, his hostess served an ice-cream lady and a tiger to the author, and the whole company watched which he chose.

" 'And which did you choose?' asked the advertising director.

" 'Et tu Brute?' Stockton smilingly replied. 'Well, I'll tell you. I asked the butler to bring me another spoon, and then, with a spoon in each hand, I attacked both the lady and the tiger at the same time.'

"Once, when Stockton was going to Boston by the night boat, every room was taken. The ticket agent recognized the author, and promised to get him a desirable room if the author would tell which he had in mind, the lady or the tiger.

" 'Produce the room,' answered Stockton.

"The man did. Stockton paid for it, and then said: 'To tell you the truth, my friend, I don't know.'

"And that was the truth, as Mr. Stockton confessed to his friends. The idea of the story had fascinated him; when he began it he purposed to give it a definite ending. But when he reached the end he didn't know himself which to produce out of the open door, the lady or the tiger, 'and so,' he used to explain, 'I made up my mind to leave it hanging in the air.' "

Asked Beecher for Truth About His Famous "Damn"

"There was in circulation during Henry Ward Beecher's lifetime a story, which is still revived every now and then, that on a hot Sunday morning in early summer, he began his sermon in Plymouth Church by declaring that 'It is too dammed hot to preach.' Bok wrote to the great preacher, asked him the truth of this report, and received this definite denial:

" 'My Dear Friend:

" 'No, I never did begin a sermon with the remark that "it is d—d hot," etc. It is a story a hundred years old, revamped every few years to suit some new man. When I am dead

DR. HENRICH

THE PILE SPECIALIST SAYS:

CONSTIPATION GOES WITH PILES

Each a Cause of the Other, But Both Disappear When the Piles Are Cured Without the Knife by The Henrich Method.

Everyone knows what Constipation is, but it is not all who know or realize the evil consequences of irregular action of the bowels until it becomes chronic or causes some serious complication. Many lives are ruined by neglecting to attend regularly to nature's calls, and it is of vastly more importance that the bowels be evacuated regularly than that the meals be eaten three times a day—better miss the meals any time.

Constipation leads to Piles and various other Rectal Diseases and to absorption and the throwing into the blood stream a vast amount of debris that goes to derange and disease the entire body and muddle the brain into inaction.

Nearly all who come to me for the treatment of Rectal Diseases are bothered with Constipation; in fact, it is almost impossible for one who is afflicted with any form of Rectal Trouble to be free from Constipation, and where such is the case I cure practically everyone of Constipation when I treat them for Rectal Troubles.

Constipation causes Piles and Piles causes Constipation. It works both ways, and one leads to the other. The habit of taking strong physic to move the bowels only makes a bad matter worse, and, like the man that drinks whiskey, the more he takes the more it requires to have effect. I eliminate medicine in curing Constipation, and where my directions are followed the cure remains permanent.

Pile Sufferers write today for a free copy of my new folder, "Free Advice on Curing Piles," which also gives testimonials and names and addresses of many of my former patients I cured without the knife or scissors. Examination free every day, except Sunday, from 9 to 1 and 2 to 4. Call at once.

"Now Just Watch Your Hair Grow!"

How To Force Hair To Grow Abundantly by a Method That Never Fails. A Way To Remove Wrinkles Positively In a Few Days

By Madame Maree

FALLING of the hair and premature grayness are the result of hair "starvation." The fact is that the hair can be so treated that it will immediately take on new life by being given the very materials which it readily takes into its own cell life. This, for instance, is what occurs when the following formula is used on the hair for even a short time. It is a tremendous hair forcer, it infuses new vigor in the hair-roots, so that the difference is easily seen in a very short time. Get from your druggist a one-ounce package of beta-quinol and mix the contents with a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum, or with a full pint of witchhazel instead of the bay rum and water. Your hair will at once begin to stop falling and grow out luxuriantly.

ROSIE M.—For making the skin beautiful in a very short time, the cream below makes the texture of the skin very fine and as a result you will soon note that the small and deep wrinkles, crow's-feet and the sagging of the flesh will leave and in their place bring a splendid youthful plumpness and vigor to the skin. To a half pint of water add two ounces of eptol, and add also one tablespoonful of glycerine. Any druggist will supply you with the eptol. This cream is remarkably nourishing to the skin and after a few days you will be able to say that you have found the secret of keeping the face young.

MISS T. G. A.—You can be absolutely certain that your complexion will be wonderfully beautiful in a few weeks. Mix together an ounce of zintone and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water, to form a cream. Rub in well, and use twice a day at least, if you can. The zintone may be had from any drug store. Your freckles and all muddiness and blemishes will very soon give way to the exquisite tint and spotless loveliness you have so long wished for.

• • •

PLEASE.—Yes, it is remarkably easy to get rid of blackheads, and do it in only a few moments, too. On a wet cloth sprinkle some neroxin, which you can obtain from your druggist. Rub this on the blackheads, and then look in your mirror and you will find them entirely gone.

• • •

MISS B. U. F.—Soap usually cannot remove the fatty accumulations constantly forming on every scalp. It simply removes the looser dirt. Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of water and use as a head-wash. This will dissolve away all these accumulations and leave the hair with a splendid sheen just like silk. You can get enough eggol for twenty-five cents to give you over a dozen of these delightful head washes.

• • •

MISS BRIGHT.—There is but one really right way, only one easy, delightful way to get rid of superfluous hair without reddening or irritating the skin. It is the only way known to "dissolve" the hair. It leaves the skin in perfect condition and leaves no spot or redness whatever. Get a bottle of sulfo solution. It is a liquid which you apply to the hairs. In a few moments the hairs dissolve completely away and the "work" is entirely done. It is ready to use; there is nothing to mix or get ready.

SPOTTY.—Here is a face powder which excels many of the well-known imported products. It gives a marvelous bloom to the skin, stays on and is free from all chalkiness. It is "Fresca Beauty Powder" and is sold at drug stores in any tint.

and gone, it will be told to the rising generation respecting some other man, and then, as now, there will be fools who will swear that they heard it!

HENRY WARD BEECHER.' "

"Didn't Make an Ass of Himself; the Lord Did It"

"As a letter writer, Henry Ward Beecher was a constant wonder. He never wrote a commonplace letter. There was always himself in it—in whatever mood it found him.

"It was not customary for him to see all his mail. As a rule Mrs. Beecher opened it and attended to most of it. One evening Edward was helping Mrs. Beecher handle an unusually large number of letters. He was reading one when Mr. Beecher happened to come in and read what otherwise he would not have seen:

" 'Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Dear sir—I journeyed over from my New York hotel yesterday morning to hear you preach, expecting, of course, to hear an exposition of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Instead, I heard a political harangue, with no reason or cohesion in it. You made an ass of yourself. Very truly yours,

——— ———.'

" 'That's to the point,' commented Mr. Beecher with a smile; and then seating himself at his desk, he turned the sheet over and wrote:

" 'My dear sir—I am sorry you should have taken so long a journey to hear Christ preached, and then heard what you are polite enough to call a "political harange." I am sorry, too, that you think I made an ass of myself. In this connection I have but one consolation: that you didn't make an ass of yourself. The Lord did that.

" 'HENRY WARD BEECHER.' "

Men Make Best Editors of Women's Magazines

"There is a popular notion that the editor of a woman's magazine should be a woman. At first thought, perhaps, this sounds logical. But it is a curious fact that by far the larger number of periodicals for women, the world over, are edited by men; and where, as in some cases, a woman is the proclaimed editor, the direction of the editorial policy is generally in the hands of a man, or group of men, in the background. Why this is so has never been explained, any more than why the majority of women's dressmakers are men; why music, with its larger appeal to women, has been and is still being composed, largely by men, and why its greatest instrumental performers are likewise men; and why the church, with its larger membership of women, still has, as it always has had, men for its greatest preachers.

"In fact, we may well ponder whether the full editorial authority and direction of a modern magazine, either essentially feminine in its appeal or not, can safely be entrusted to a woman when one considers how largely executive is the nature of such a position, and how thoroughly sensitive the modern editor must be to the hundred and one practical business matters which today enter into and form so large a part of the editorial duties. We may question whether women have as yet had sufficient experience in the world of business to cope successfully with the material questions of a pivotal editorial position. Then, again, it is absolutely essential in the conduct of a magazine with a feminine or home appeal to have on the editorial staff women who are experts in their line; and the truth is that women will work infintely better under the direction of a man than of a woman.

"It would seem from the present outlook that, for some time, at least, the so-called woman's magazine of large purpose and wide vision is very likely to be edited by a man."

Mark Twain Hired Man to Break Pipes In

Here is a story of Mark Twain:

"One afternoon as he wandered into Bok's office, he was just putting his pipe away. The pipe, of the corncob variety, was very aged and black. Bok asked him whether it was the only pipe he had.

" 'Oh, no,' Mark answered, 'I have several. But they're all like this. I never smoke a new corncob pipe. A new pipe irritates the throat. No corncob pipe is fit for anything until it has been used at least a fortnight.'

" 'How do you break in a pipe, then?' asked Bok.

" 'That's the trick,' answered Mark Twain. 'I get a cheap man—a man who doesn't amount to much, anyhow; who would be as well, or better, dead—and pay him a dollar to break in the pipe for me. I get him to smoke the pipe for a couple of weeks, then put in a new stem, and continue operations as long as the pipe holds together.' "

Woman Wanted to Take Complaint to Mr. Curtis

Suppose two million women went for editors as this one did for Bok:

"He was leaving the publication building one evening after office hours when, just as he opened the front door, a woman approached. Bok explained that the building was closed.

" 'Well, I am sorry,' said the woman in a dejected tone, 'for I don't think I can manage to come again.'

" 'Is there anything I can do?' asked Bok. 'I am employed here.'

" 'No-o,' said the woman. 'I came to see Mr. Curtis on a personal matter.'

" 'I shall see him this evening,' suggested Bok, 'and can give him a message for you if you like.'

" 'Well, I don't know if you can. I came to complain to him about Mr. Bok,' announced the woman.

" 'Oh, well,' answered Bok, with a slight start at the matter-of-fact announcement, 'that is serious; quite serious. If you will explain your complaint, I will surely see that it gets to Mr. Curtis.'

"Bok's interest grew.

" 'Well, you see,' said the woman, 'it is this way. I live in a three-family flat. Here is my name and card,' and a card come out of a bag. 'I subscribe to The Ladies' Home Journal. It is delivered at my house each month by Mr. Bok. Now I have told that man three times over that when he delivers the magazine, he must ring the bell twice. But he just persists in ringing once and then that cat who lives on the first floor gets my magazine, reads it, and keeps it sometimes for three days before I get it! Now, I want Mr. Curtis to tell Mr. Bok that he must do as I ask and ring the bell twice. Can you give him that message for me? There's no use talking to Mr. Bok; I've done that, as I say.' "

Harriet Beecher Stowe Once Ran From Bok

Once on a visit to Hartford, Bok was just turning into Forrest street when a little old woman came shambling along toward him, unconscious, apparently, of people or surroundings. In her hand she carried a small tree-switch. Bok did not notice her until just as he had passed her he heard her calling to him: "Young man, young man," Bok retraced his steps, and then the old lady said: Young man, you have been leaning against something white," and taking her tree-switch she whipped some wall dust from the sleeve of Bok's coat. It was not until that moment that Bok recognized in his self-appointed "brush" no less a personage than Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"This is Mrs. Stowe, is it not?" he asked, after tendering his thanks to her.

Those blue eyes looked strangely into his as she answered:

"That is my name, young man. I live on this street. Are you going to have me arrested for stopping you?" with which she gathered up her skirt and quickly ran away, looking furtively over her shoulder at the amazed young man, sorrowfully watching the running figure!

The Trials of a Magazine Editor

"One day on his way to New York he found himself sitting in a sleeping car section opposite a woman and her daughter.

"The mother was looking at the landscape when suddenly she commented:

" 'There are some of those ugly advertising signs that Mr. Bok says are such a defacement to the landscape. I never noticed them before, but he is right, and I am going to write and tell him so.'

" 'Oh, mamma, don't,' said the girl. 'That man is pampered enough by women. Don't make him worse. Ethel says he is now the vainest man in America.' "

SCHOLARSHIP FUND FOR JEWISH WOMEN ESTABLISHED

The St. Louis Section Council of Jewish women has established a scholarship fund.

The first $100 scholarship has been given in the name of Adolph Loth by the Rose Shoe Fund. A donation of $25 has been received from Ben Harris, and $50 from a former member of the board.

It is the hope of the committee, of which Mrs. Irwin Bettman is chairman, and Mrs. David Goldsmith, 5295 Waterman avenue, treasurer, that many who are interested in assisting girls to receive adequate training in their chosen field of work, will contribute to the fund.

Applicants wishing a course in any of the following subjects may communicate with Mrs. Bettman: Stenography, social service, occupational therapy, trained nursing, art, teaching or business college.

PEERS-WILLIAMS LEGION POST TO RECEIVE FLAGS TODAY

Peers-Williams Post, No. 40, American Legion, will receive an American flag and a post flag in a public ceremony to be held on the Forest Park drill grounds, south of Jefferson Memorial, at 3 p. m. today. John C. Peers of Ferguson, father of David K. Peers, who was killed in France, and for whom the post was named, will present the flags.

The flags are made of satin, trimmed with gold. The post flag is in the colors and emblem of the post. A band from Quentin Roosevelt Post of the legion will play, and Father Thomas Kennedy, State chaplain of the legion, will deliver an invocation. Col. John H. Parker, army recruiting officer here, will make an address after the presentation, and the program will end with an exhibition airplane flight by a former army aviator.

Peers will give the flags in the name of his wife and himself, and of Mrs. C. M. Williams of 5797 Westminster place, widowed mother of H. Murray Williams, the second youth for whom the post was named. Williams was killed in action with the Thirty-fifth Division near Vauquois Hill, and Peers was killed in action while serving with the Marine Corps.

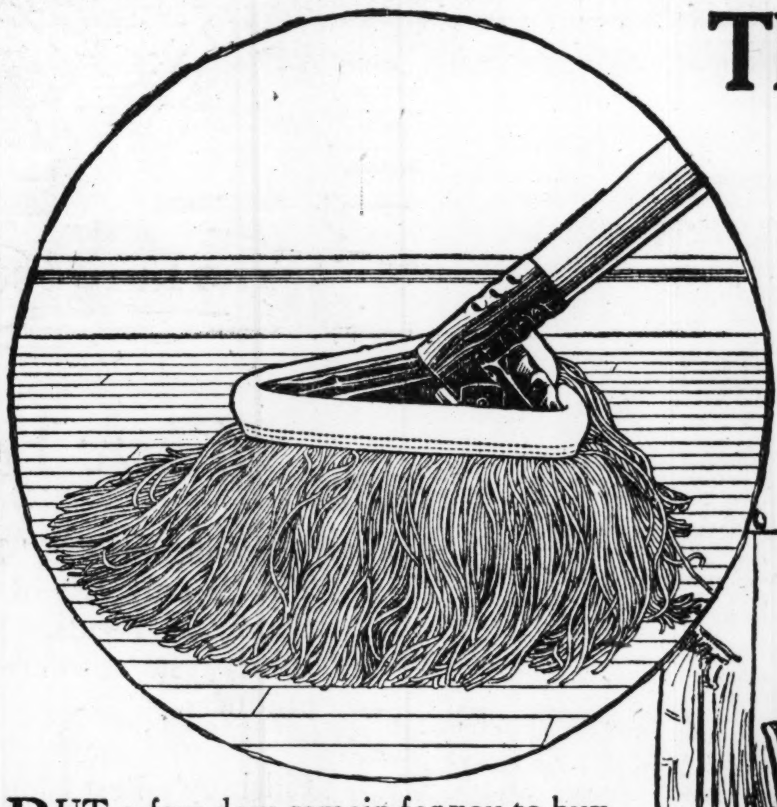
This Is Your Last Chance to get your O-Cedar Polish Mop at The Old Price

Advance Prices Effective Nov. 1st



BUT a few days remain for you to buy an O-Cedar Mop at the old price.

Increasing manufacturing costs make the raise in price necessary if we are to continue to give you the biggest, most convenient—time, money and labor saving household utility.

The increase is only 25c—but 25c is worth saving.

Originally, (before the war), the price of the O-Cedar Polish Mop was $1.50.

During the war, we used war materials—short length cotton—mill ends of drill—surplus steel for centers and by making the mop smaller we were able to keep the price down.

Now the sources of supply of most of these items are cut off. We must go back to before-the-war materials and pay todays prices for them. For instance cotton cord cost 14c to 16c per pound before the war. Today it costs us 58c. Handles that cost 4c in 1914 cost 12c today. Our labor costs have advanced 200%. And so on.

We will not make a mop that is not up to the O-Cedar standard. We can't continue the O-Cedar standard at present prices. So the advance of 25c is absolutely necessary for us to continue O-Cedar Mops as the millions of housewives want them.

The 25c advance in price is effective November 1st. Even if you do not need a new O-Cedar Mop just now it will pay you to buy one at your nearest store today.

Almost every woman in America knows the work—the time—and the money the O-Cedar Mop saves. And how much prettier, brighter and cleaner it makes the floors. They know it saves back-breaking stooping and bending. When you use an O-Cedar Mop your floors will be the envy of your neighbors.

Easy and Simple to Clean and Renew

Second only to the wonderful utility of the O-Cedar Mop is its simplicity. No trick to learn to wash, clean or renew it. It can be washed and cleaned without bother and muss to take it apart, and fuss and work to put together. When an O-Cedar Mop needs renewing, simply wash it in boiling water, pour a little O-Cedar Polish in the can and let mop stand in it over night. The next morning it is practically as good as new.

Get an O-Cedar Mop today. Your dealer guarantees it to give perfect satisfaction or will return your money.

Today's Prices: $1.25, $1.50, $1.75

Prices November 1st.: $1.50, $1.75, $2.00

Prices Advance on November 1st.

Conditions beyond our control have forced us to add 25c. to the selling price of every O-Cedar Mop on November 1st. Save money by buying now.

New Way in Book Making Saves You $65 on The Encyclopaedia Britannica

How the New Way in Book Making Brings This World Famous Reference Library Within Your Easy Reach—at a Saving of $65 and for Just $1 Down and Small Monthly Payments Amounting to Only 14 Cents a Day!

THINK OF IT! $65 saved on the Encyclopaedia Britannica! Yes, this is the actual saving to you through the New Way in Book Making. This New Way has produced the "Handy Volume Issue"—just as handsome, even more handy and, page for page, picture for picture, the same as the "Cambridge University Issue," yet at $65 less.

But this big saving on the "Handy Volume Issue" of the Latest Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is not all! Just $1 brings this great 29-volume work into your home. Small monthly payments (amounting to only 14 cents a day) make the rest easy for you. So that now, through the New Way in Book Making, the wonderful Encyclopaedia Britannica is within reach of everyone.

No longer need you deprive yourself of the famous reference work you have heard about since a child and have always wanted. For 152 years the Britannica has been the standard Encyclopaedia of the English speaking world.

And now you can easily own the very latest edition of this famous reference work, in a form that would do honor to a millionaire's library! Through the New Way in Book Making this "Handy Volume Issue" saves you $65.

How the New Way Saves

What is this revolutionary New Way that gives you exactly the same edition, page for page, picture for picture, yet at $65 less? What is this new idea that, even in times of rising costs, brings the Encyclopaedia Britannica easily within the reach of hundreds of thousands of new homes? And for only $1 down and merely about 14 cents a day! What is this New Way in Book Making which puts the equal of 440 big, weighty volumes into 29 handy books? How could this New Way put 44,000,000 words, 41,000 separate articles, one-half million indexed facts and 15,000 illustrations and maps—yes, put all these in clear readable form into 29 beautiful "Handy Volumes" which altogether weigh only 40 pounds?

Like most really great ideas it was simple! Like most simple ideas it was practical! And yet not only was it a New Way to make an Encyclopaedia, but a New Way to make any book of such scope and on so tremendous a scale—1,160,000 volumes in the first printing alone.

Instead of setting the type again for this "Handy Volume Issue"—a task that would have taken 55 typesetting machines over seven full months—this entirely New Way was adopted.

First, a separate photograph was made of each of the 28,703 pages of the larger paged "Cambridge University Issue." Each page was reduced in size to 8⅝x6½ inches—the convenient and practical size of the "Handy Volume Issue." The margins were made narrower, but this kept the type clear and readable. Then copper printing plates were made from these clear, new photographs. And at one stroke was saved the entire tremendous job of setting again in type over 44,000,000 words! But that was only one of the savings brought by the New Way!

The Guarantee of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

We Guarantee that the "Handy Volume Issue" is the complete Eleventh (the latest) Edition of the genuine Encyclopaedia Britannica, without the change of a single word, map or illustration.

We Guarantee that the "Handy Volume Issue" differs from the large paged "Cambridge University Issue" only in that the "Handy Volumes" are not so large, but, besides being printed in clear, readable type, they offer the additional lightness and convenience of average size books.

We Guarantee that this "Handy Volume Issue" is manufactured by the same printers and binders as the more expensive "Cambridge University Issue" and that the India paper, quality of binding and every detail is identically the same. To insure this—

We Guarantee that if for any reason you are not absolutely satisfied, you may return the set, and we will immediately refund all that you have paid, including all shipping charges.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO.

Enormous Paper Saving—Other Costs Cut

Almost twice as many "Handy Volume" pages could be printed from the same amount of paper. So that the cost of the most expensive material used for each set of the Britannica—India paper—was about cut in half. The presses were able to print 32 "Handy Volume Issue" pages at one impression, instead of only 16 of the "Cambridge University Issue" pages. Other big savings were made. At every turn the more compactly built "Handy Volume Issue" cut the costs to us and to you! With no typesetting, smaller printing plate costs, less paper, less labor, less ink, less cloth, less leather, less thread, less packing, crating and shipping costs—no wonder we can put into your home the famous Encyclopaedia you have always wanted, at a saving of $65.

$1 Down

as first payment brings you the complete 29-volume "Handy Volume Issue" on genuine India paper. Send no money—just the coupon brings you interesting Illustrated Booklet and Easy Payment Plan.

Now Everybody Can Own the Britannica

You know all about the Britannica—heard about it, no doubt, as a child and often since. The whole English speaking world has quoted it as its standard reference work ever since its very First Edition appeared in 1768. "The Britannica will tell you!" has become a household phrase in thousands of homes.

Nothing the world has ever learned or that you want to learn ever seems beyond it! The history of all nations, the geography of all countries, the story of the development of all religions and philosophies, all sciences and inventions, the principles of mechanics and engineering, the salient features of Art, Literature and Industry—virtually a daily useful Library of Hand Books on Architecture, Music, Interior Decorating, Business, Foreign Trade, Agriculture, Chemistry, Sewing, Education, Electricity, Languages, Physics, Law, Home Economics, Politics, Manufacture—everything.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica furnishes you with an interesting teacher on any subject you wish to read about—generally a famous authority whom the whole world knows, and who tells you, clearly, simply and thoroughly, just what you want to know. The Britannica gives you the answers to the thousand and one questions that newspapers, lectures, sermons and books prompt in your mind. It helps you push yourself ahead in your business and also gives you valuable information on businesses relating to yours. It puts you in touch with the interesting people of the world, with their work and their ideas. It makes everything you see, read and hear more interesting and gives you hundreds of live topics to talk about. It enables you to lay out a plan of education for your children. In short, the Encyclopaedia Britannica offers you that powerful capability of talking, thinking and acting from solid facts which no person can dispute—of inspiring, through your broad knowledge, greater confidence, stronger and more helpful personal influence, and bigger success in your business and in your community.

Good Cheer: Good Health

LIMOUSINES and sedans are essential to uncramped living—a business and social necessity. They identify the men and women whose presence is in demand, whose engagements cannot be postponed.

The closed car gives its owner a delightful freedom of activity and a fine sense of well-being. Indeed the closed car is more necessary than the open car. For it is in the worst of weather that the motor car gives its most valuable service. In snow or rain, ice or freezing winds, when any other form of transportation is uncomfortable, you may travel in good cheer and good health in your Winton Six closed car.

DR. BUTLER SAYS G. O. P. HAS "WISER PLAN FOR PEACE"

Coumbia University Head Denies Republican Objections to League Are Partisan and Selfish.

FAVORS THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL AMPLIFIED

Declares There Is No Sure Method of Abolishing War Until Human Nature Be Abolished at Same Time.

By the Associated Press.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 16.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, New York, in an address here tonight pointed out what he called defects in the present League of Nations covenant and recommended adjustment of international difficulties through a tribunal patterned after, but amplifying, that of The Hague.

A Republican administration headed by Senator Harding, he said, would not in any respect shirk its duty as one of the family of nations, though it would not become a member of the existing league.

"They are mistaken who think that the Republican party when again intrusted with the responsibility for the administration of the Government will enter upon any backward path," he declared. "The spirit of progress, of ambition to serve, of zeal to solve the great and vexatious problems which confront the people, are in full possession of the Republican party of 1920.

"For one, I am confident that when the reins of government shall pass into Republican hands on March 4 next, the ripest wisdom, the widest experience and the best talent which the country affords will be called upon to assist in shaping those policies, which shall hasten a solution of the people's problems and a meeting of the people's needs.

Expects G. O. P. to Open New Era.

"No party, no government, can accomplish the impossible, but the Republican party may confidently be trusted to open in 1921 a new era in the history of our country, and to make powerful and permanent contribution to the cause of international peace and concord and to the advancement of the world's satisfaction and happiness, without in any way lessening the control of the American people over their own policies and acts, and without in any way bending or breaking the Constitution of the United States, the sheet anchor of our ship of state."

Butler asserted that much discussion of campaign affairs has no reference to great present issues, which, he said, are only two in number, as follows:

"The relation which the people of the United States are to bear to other nations and to those movements of political and economic opinion that are common to civilized peoples throughout the world, and,

"The relative fitness of the Democratic and Republican parties to uphold and defend the American form of government, and to deal in truly constructive and courageous fashion with the problems of taxation, of cost of living, of transportation, of labor, of housing, of public health, and of adminstrative efficiency which immediately confront the American people."

U. S. As a Leader in World

Pointing out the record of the United States as a leader in world movements for international settlements under codified law, he reviewed the country's correspondence with foreign nations under Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft relative to the series of Hague conferenecs and criticised those who refer disparagingly of the Hague Tribunal on the ground that it failed to prevent the European war.

He said that in 1914, "though the fact is not generally known," a definite plan to strengthen the tribunal with the establishment of an International High Court of Justice was "under consideration by the governments of Europe and the United States, with every prospect of agreement."

As the end of the war, he declared, President Wilson "made a capital error of judgement" in going in person to conduct peace negotiations in Paris. This, he said, made necessary the like attendance of heads of other nations, involed, with the result that they "lost contact with their immediate advisers, with their parliaments and with their people."

Peace Settlement a Mistake

The peace settlement, he said, coming under the pressure of the times, and in settlement of the issues of war, was a mistake.

"This procedure, far from being a triumph of statesmanship, he added, was a blunder of the first magnitude and is chiefly responsible for the unhappy events of the past two years, for the outbreak of a dozen minor wars, for the delay in economic reconstruction, and for the feelings of despair and despondency that have settled donw over so much of the world.

"So anxious was the world for peace, however, that nation after nation approved the covenant for a League of Nations without hesitation and without servious debate."

Butler suggested that the Republican national platform offers a policy, alternative to the league, to

Good News for Fat Folks

HERE'S joyful news for every fleshy person who loves good things to eat, especially those who are denying themselves the things they like most because of their desire to keep down their weight or to reduce the fat with which they are already burdened. The famous Marmola Prescription has been put up in convenient tablet form and is now sold by druggists everywhere at only one dollar for a good size box. To get rid of fat at the rate of two to four pounds a week, simply take one of these little tablets after each meal and at bed time until you have reduced your weight to where you want it. No wrinkles or flabbiness will remain to show where the fat came off. Simply use Marmola Prescription Tablets according to directions; they are harmless, free from poisonous or injurious drugs and can be used with perfect safety. Try them for just a few weeks and get results without going through long seiges of tiresome exercises and starvation diet. Get them at any good drug store or send price (one dollar) direct to Marmola Company, 99 Garfield Building, Detroit, Michigan, and a full size package will be mailed to you direct by parcel post.

DR. BUTLER SAYS G. O. P. HAS "WISER PLAN FOR PEACE"

"accomplish the same ends in what is believed to be a far better and far wiser way."

"It is not true that Republican objections to the covenant as submitted are merely partisan, narrow-minded and selfish," he asserted.

"It is not true that Republican policy contemplates deserting our allies and associates in the war and bearing no part in the task of rebuilding the broken world.

"It is not true that Republican policy would make no sacrifice for liberty and justice, and would refuse co-operation to make the world a better and happier place in which to live.

"It is not true that Republican policy would take the incredibly stupid and reactionary course of attempting to play an isolated part in the world and look with indifference on suffering or wrongdoing or on infractions of international law unless these should directly affect our national pride or our national pocketbook.

"The established policy of the Republican party points the way to such remodeling of the covenant for a League of Nations as will bring it into accord with American principles with established American practice, and with the highest and finest American interests, without doing damage or injustice to any other nation.

EXPULSION OF AIRMAN WAITING ON PRESIDENT

Marine Aviator, Courtmartialed for Falsely Reporting Exploits, Sentenced to Dismissal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A new angle in the case of Capt. Edmund G. Chamberlain, the Marine Corps aviator, whose alleged marvelous exploits while on a visit to a British air squadron, in July of 1918, brought a courtmartial in Paris and London and later in the United States, was brought to light here when it became known that Chamberlain has been waiting since last December for President Wilson to pass on his sentence of dismissal. Meantime he has been drawing his pay regularly, and is still wearing his uniform, though not assigned to duty.

Capt. Chamberlain's sentence, ordered as a result of his courtmartial, was concurred in by Secretary Daniels, who reviewed the records. As in cases where dismissal is at issue, the case went to President Wilson.

Name House in Case.

The delay in the President's passing on the case is explained on the ground of Mr. Wilson's shattered health, and the incident would probably not have come to light had it not been that Chamberlain, in speaking to the daughter of a high army officer, is said to have told her that he had been exonerated from the charges against him. The young woman told her father about her conversation, and is said to have written Capt. Chamberlain a severe letter.

The delay has added interest in view of the fact that former Attorney-General Gregory has defended the flyer, pointing out alleged errors of the trial court and insisting on the youth's high character. It is also declared that Chamberlain's father, who lives in San Antonio, had interested E. M. House in the case.

The circumstances of the flight which precipitated the courtmartial and for which Capt. Chamberlain was at first said to have been recommended for the British Victoria Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor, have never been cleared up despite the findings of the courtmartial. After the reports of the flight had created a sensation both in Europe and America, Chamberlain was ordered to produce evidence that he had made the flight.

Account of Flight.

The story he told was that he had gone while on leave from his own unit to a British air squadron operating near Touquin, in the North of France. There he was alleged to have been given a machine with which he claimed to have brought down two German planes, and to have rescued a wounded French officer, after he was forced down when his machine was crippled by enemy fire.

On entering the British lines Chamberlain was reluctant to give any details of his exploit, insisting on the "unofficial character" of the flight. It is a well known army regulation that British Squadron Commanders permitting any one other than his own pilots to take a machine is liable to demotion and courtmartial, and the defense stressed this feature of the American's reluctance to make known his exploit.

As a result of the investigation, which brought out much conflicting testimony, very little of which was direct, the courtmartial declared "proved" that Chamberlain had failed to advise his commanding officer that accounts of his alleged exploits which were being transmitted to Washington were false. Chamberlain also was accused of having forged reports of this exploit, but this charge was not sustained. It was declared "proved" however, that he knowingly transmitted a false report of his exploits to a superior naval officer.

RELIEF WORKER IN EUROPE SAYS $10,000,000 IS NEEDED

900,000 Children in Poland Face Starvation, According to Man in Charge of Work.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—"The American Relief Administration will need $10,000,000 to feed the hungry children of Europe and to maintain its warehousing work this winter," W. L. Brown, who is in charge of the European relief, said on the eve of a conference of 20 men who are managing the association's offices in Germany, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia and the free state of Danzig.

The organization has abandoned its relief work in the majority of the Balkan States, where Brown says the conditions are "approaching normal, although there is still much suffering," but he declared that the Russo-Polish War had doubled the demands on the relief administration in Poland, where at least 900,000 children and thousands of adults are facing starvation.

Plans are being prepared to open warehouses and feeding stations in Central and Southern Poland, which was devastated by the Bolshevists. The relief may also be extended eastward in North Poland.

The conditions in Hungary and Jugo-Slavia also necessitate the expenditure of great sums, and the situation in Germany, Brown said, is such that there could be no thought of abandoning the distribution of food packages.

A new phase of the relief work has been disclosed by the reports from workers that the direct distress prevails among the "white collar class" in all war-stricken countries. "Some of the most pitiful cases with which we have had to deal have been those of salaried men and intellectuals, college professors, Government employes, pensioners and former army officers," Brown said.

At any drug store named below, a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Simply present the coupon.

Watch the results—they are quick and apparent. You will know then what this method means, both to you and yours.

Go get this tube today.

We Invite You
To see how really clean teeth shine

Your teeth are coated with a film. When fresh the film is viscous—you can feel it with your tongue. Later it forms a cloudy coat. It enters crevices and stays. It dims the teeth, and now we know that it causes most tooth troubles.

There is now a way to end it. This week your druggist, if you ask, will give you a 10-Day Tube. Get it and see what it does for your teeth. Learn what film removal means.

Old ways don't end it

Old ways of brushing do not end film. Millions of people know that. Teeth discolor and decay despite the daily care.

The reason lies in film. It clings and hides, and very few escape its damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles have been constantly increasing — some have grown alarming. And all because we knew no way to daily fight the film.

A new dental era

Dental science has for years studied to combat film. Ways have now been found to do it. Able authorities have proved those methods by many careful tests. Now leading dentists everywhere are urging their daily use.

These methods have been combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Millions of people have come to employ it. You can see the results wherever you look — in glistening teeth, in teeth you envy, maybe.

A new dental era has begun, due to these discoveries. And these are benefits everyone should share. So you are urged to let this 10-Day Tube show what Pepsodent can do.

Brings five effects

Pepsodent brings five distinct effects. All are apparent, some are quick. A few days' use will leave no doubt about them. And a little book will tell you what each one means to you.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva to digest starch deposits that cling.

The alkalinity of the saliva is multiplied at once. This is to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

Every application brings the Pepsodent effects. Together they mean tooth protection like you never had before.

Watch these effects. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Then judge this new-day method by what you see and feel and know.

Men who smoke
will see a quick, conspicuous change

Tobacco stains the film-coat on the teeth. So men who smoke will see a great change quickly. But millions of teeth have that same film-coat with a lesser stain.

Children's teeth are most affected by the film. Young teeth seem most subject to decay. Dentists advise that Pepsodent be daily applied from the time the first tooth appears. Otherwise, decay is almost certain.

Pepsodent brings to women whiter, prettier teeth. But that means cleaner teeth and safer. The luster comes from constant film removal and the high polish given to the teeth.

FIRST CLOSED CARS LEAVE GARDNER PLANT

New Sedan Is a Four-Door Type, Built on the Standard Chassis.

The first sedan models were shipped last week by the Gardner Motor Car Co., and a large number of them are now in production at the factory. The sedan is the third of the four models on the schedule of the Gardner factory, it being planned to bring out a coupe in the near future.

The new model is built on the standard Gardner Light Four chassis, the only change being an increase in the tire size to 32x4. It is roomy enough for five passengers in comfort and upholstered in velour trimming with deep back and cushions.

The body is of the four-door type, providing easy entrance to front and rear seats, and the glass panes are fitted with automatic lifters. It has all the appointments usually found in closed cars.

EXPERT ON CONDTIONS TO ADDRESS LOCAL TRADE

All of the members of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association and a large number of dealers from close-by towns in Missouri and Illinois will hear two strong addresses dealing with the automobile situation and its future at a noon luncheon at the Planters Hotel Monday. A. R. Kroh, a widely known automobile man, will tell the dealers of the situation as he has found it in a wide survey which he has just completed. Warren M. Chandler, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, will talk on "The Changed Attitude of the Banker to the Automobile."

MORE CO. IN NEW HOME

Invitations have been sent out by the More Automobile Co., distributors of the Marmon automobile, for the formal opening of the company's new sales and service building, beginning Oct. 17. The company is now located at 2805 Locust street.

ONE MOTOR CAR TO EACH 14 PEOPLE IN U. S.

Missouri Average Is 13.9. West Leads All Sections in Population Per Car.

The announcement of the 1920 census returns for all states brings out some very unexpected facts regarding the distribution of automobiles in relation to the population. A compilation, made by A. L. Bostwick of the Research Department of the Simmons Hardware Co., shows that the 7,558,848 motors cars in use in the United States, on Jan. 1, provided one car for every 14 people.

Missouri, although standing twenty-seventh in the list, is slightly better than the average, its population per car being 13.9. The road conditions in the Ozark regions materially reduce the percentage for the State. The fact that Missouri has two large cities, St. Louis and Kansas City, also tends to lower the average because the percentage is much better in those agricultural states which have no large cities.

South Dakota, with a population per car of 6.1, leads all the states, but is closely followed by Nebraska and Iowa, each of which average less than seven people per car. California is the only State where the population is largely urban, which is near the head of the list. It ranks fourth, with an average of 7.2. New York, on the other hand, with 566,511 automobiles, more cars than any other State, ranks thirty-seventh in comparison to population, averaging only one car to each 18 people.

A striking feature is the unquestionable leadership of the West in the use of motor cars. Of the 14 states having a population of 10 or less per car, all are west of the Mississippi. On the other hand, automobile ownership in the South is less common than in any other section. The 12 states which have the lowest average, ranging from 20 to 40 people per car, are all Southern states. This is due in a large measure to the negro population and to the many mountainous regions.

The first 15 states, with their population per car, is as follows: South Dakota 6.1, Nebraska 6.5, Iowa 6.6, California 7.2, Kansas 7.77, North Dakota 7.79, Nevada 8.3, Colorado, 9.0, Wyoming 9.1, Washington 9.12, Oregon 9.16, Minnesota 9.19, Montana 9.23, Idaho 10.2, Wisconsin 11.1.

ACCESSORY DEALERS TO HEAR BANKER

Dr. W. F. Gephart, vice president of the First National Bank and dean of the School of Finance of Washington University, will address the meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association at the City Club Tuesday night, Oct. 19. Dr. Gephart's topic will be "The Relations of the Bank to the Automobile Trade." Five new members are to be presented to the association for election.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Po. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician, to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time, in many instances, or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

RHEUMATISM LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if two bottles of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop all agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed Wolff-Wilson Co. to guarantee it in every instance.

Medal for Essay on Daniel Webster.

A Hobein gold medal has been announced as a new competitive award in essay-writing at Lindenwood College for the best essay to be written on "Daniel Webster, the American Statesman." The donor is Frank A. Hobein, a St. Louis lawyer, who made an address Thursday morning at Lindenwood. Hobein said that Webster had been his ideal statesman in boyhood days, and was the subject of an address which Hobein gave, in 1877, at St. Louis University. A portion of this address, with modern applications, he repeated, by request, at Lindenwood's Thursday "assembly."

PISTON RING TALKS No. 2

Much emphasis has been placed on the importance of preventing escapage of compression through the piston ring joint. But a perfect joint alone is of little value when the circumference of the ring fails to snugly fit out-of-round cylinder spots (and all cylinders are slightly out-of-round). That is why Tell-Tale Rings, besides having a perfect joint, are made with an "easy wearing" surface which, wearing in, causes them to fit out-of-round, warped and scored cylinders. Ask for booklet, "The Balance of Power," describing this feature.

MERCHANTS EXPRESS TRANSFER CO

"We Are Particularly Impressed with the Low Operating Cost"

We are very much pleased with the excellent service our 31-2-ton ACME is giving.

This truck is in operation daily, hauling capacity loads to all parts of the city and points around.

We are particularly impressed with the low operating cost and the ease with which this truck may be handled in heavy traffic; in backing up to platforms, etc., where space is at a premium.

The ACME is a good performer and we do not hesitate to recommend it.

ST. LOUIS BANKER SAYS MOTOR CAR IS PRIME ESSENTIAL

J. G. Lonsdale Says Even Bank Credits Would Be "Frozen" by Ten-Day Stoppage of Automobile Traffic.

It has been claimed that the banks of the country have been classing the motor car industry in the nonessential class, incited or encouraged to this by the Federal Reserve Bank. This, as far as the Federal Reserve system is concerned, has been vigorously denied by Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve banks.

An exactly opposite position is also expressed strongly in a statement made by John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis, sent by him Friday to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. In answer to their telegraphic inquiry as to his attitude, Mr. Lonsdale wired them as follows:

"What would happen to our commercial and social fabric if a 10-day ban were placed on the use of automobiles? We must answer that question by resorting to the imagination. We cannot merely hark back to the pre-automobile period and draw our picture from conditions as they then existed, because our present business and social habits have been built up around automobile transportation.

"Taking a general view of matters, we may say that a person's life in his own community is divided between home, places of business and places of recreation. There must be some mode of transportation between these several scenes of activity, and, as yet, no means has been evolved which matches the automobile in efficiency and comfort. The automobile is, in addition, a pleasure vehicle unsurpassed for both short and long drives. Nor have we yet discovered anything to match the motor truck as a complement to our railroad system in the movement of goods.

Times Demand Autos.

"Bearing in mind these basci facts, let us see if we can draw from imagination a picture of life in the city and country during a 10-day period without automobiles.

Our already overcrowded street railway systems would become still more crowded. The streets in the principal business sections, filled with every kind of slow moving vehicle would reach a stage of congestion difficult to imagine. Railroads, now struggling hard to move the shipments tendered them, would be burdened with a vast amount of goods for short hauls which are now moved by motor truck.

"A man who lives in the country and has his business in the city, motoring to and from work, would be forced to spend these automobileless days in the city, or else consume double or treble the amount of time it now takes to make his daily trips. The farmer who has been accustomed to bring his product to market or to the railroad station by truck—and there is a growing list of such farmers now—would find himself confronting a difficult task when he had to go back to the old wagon and team. That same farmer who drives in the evening to pay a social visit to Jim Smith at the latter's farm, a little matter of 10 miles distant, would probably forego that call until the ban on his flivver expired.

Would Create Chaos.

"The elimination of automobiles for 10 days would have disastrous results beyond a mere physical slowing down in the movement of men and commodities. Bank credit, for example, would be frozen up. Foreign exchanges would be affected by the inability to make overseas shipments according to schedule. Brokerage transactions would decline in volume until the business world could see its way out of the tangle. Thousands of men now employed in various lines of the automobile business would be thrown out of work.

"It is not stating matters too strongly, in fact, to say that general business chaos would be in evidence, not only during the 10-day period but for weeks thereafter, until the country had 'caught up with its hauling.'

"Let us hope that a period of 10 days, or of any other number of days, without automobiles, will not be soon visited upon us. The world has already suffered quite enough from influences disrupting to the economic structure."

WINTON SPORT CAR HERE

Radical Departure Made in Body Lines and Size of Chassis.

The first of the Winton sport cars reached St. Louis last week. The new model is a radical departure from Winton policy, which in the past has been to build the more conservative types of bodies.

The sport model is built on a new chassis, which in size is midway between the large six and the small six, having a wheelbase of 132 inches. It is announced by the factory that eventually it will concentrate all production on this new chassis, equipping it with a complete assortment of body styles.

The sport-touring, as it is officially called, has low rakish lines. The body is cut low from the cowl to the rear seat and has the bevel edges to emphasize the straight lines.

Disc wheels are standard equipment, and an extra is carried on the front of the running board on each side. The nickeled radiator is another innovation. The motor is of the six cylinder type with a 3¾ bore and a 5¼-inch stroke.

NEW YORK U., WITH 11,237 STUDENTS, LARGEST IN AMERICA

Neither Yale, Harvard Nor Princeton in List of Ten Having Greatest Enrollment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—New York University is now the largest university in the United States, according to enrollment figures compiled by Raymond Walters, registrar of Lehigh University. In his tabulations Walters ignores summer students and those enrolled in extension or home-study courses, and reckons only students in actual residence during the college year. On this basis he has compiled a list of the "big ten" which are the most largely attended universities in the United States:

New York University	11,237
University of California	9,435
University of Michigan	8,255
Columbia University	8,069
University of Illinois	8,052
University of Minnesota	7,451
University of Pennsylvania	7,094
University of Wisconsin	6,872
Northwestern University	6,798
Ohio State University	6,608

It is interesting to note that none of the so-called "big three"—Harvard, Yale, Princeton—figures in this list.

In addition to being the largest university in the country, New York University also has the largest schools of law, medicine and commerce, says Walters, whose report is published in a recent issue of School and Society.

"The numerical order of the five largest law schools," he records, "is: New York University, 1007; Harvard University, 879; Columbia, 481; Michigan, 423; University of Texas, 317."

PAVLOWA AND LONDON COMPANY TO BE HERE IN DECEMBER

Anna Pavlowa, most famous of Russian dancers, is booked for two evening performances and a matinee at the Odeon, on Dec. 14 and 15. She will be supported by her entire company from the Drury Lane Theater, London, and by a symphony orchestra. The repertory of the troupe comprises 11 ballets and 32 divertissements, some of them old favorites with her American audiences, and some of them novelties.

Mme. Pavlowa last appeared in this city in 1915 with the Boston Grand Opera Company. She took the part of the dumb girl in the opera, "La Muta di Portici," besides contributing several ballets. During her four years' absence from the United States she has toured Central and South America, and appeared in Spain, France, Belgium and England.

We tell you repair costs in advance

The cost of repairing your battery is not a matter of guesswork with us.

With our complete equipment and long experience in battery repair work, we are able to give you a definite, reasonable price in advance. We do not work on a "charge for time" basis.

This is only one phase of our policy of dealing squarely with the motorist.

We want you to get every bit of service possible out of your battery—no matter what make it is.

In helping you do this we are aided by being able to use in the repair of any battery the patented features which have made Vesta batteries famous.

Bring your battery to us. You will like our prompt, courteous service. All repairs are guaranteed for six months.

Velie

Some Have Cut Prices
Others Have Guaranteed Prices
We Have Done Both

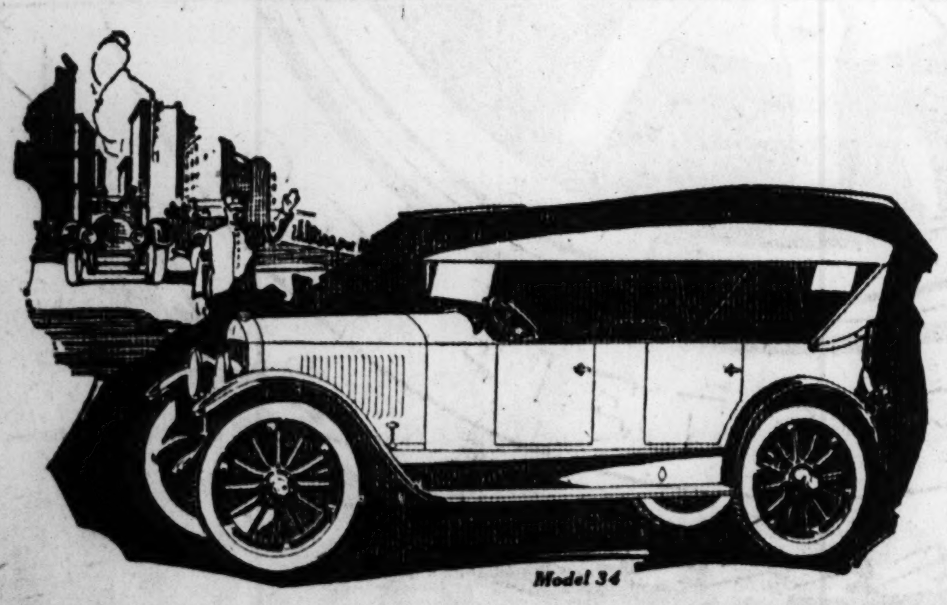
And Have Gone the Limit in Price and Guarantee

New Low Price

$1385

F. O. B. Moline, Illinois

With Cord Tires



$1385 for a Velie car equipped with cord tires all 'round. It is an unheard-of low price—lower than the car ever sold for before. A cut of $200 in price—cord tires added—actual saving nearly $300. Dealers said it could not be done. Motorists who knew Velie values said it could not be done. But it was done. Here it is—at $1385. And further, you are positively protected against decrease in this price. That means, buy at once. You are not protected against increase. You may have said, "I would buy my Velie today if I knew for certain that prices would go no lower." Read this carefully—

PRICES GUARANTEED BY VELIE BOND

We have received the following official notice from the Velie Motors Corporation:

> "We guarantee to you and the public our present list prices on present models against further decline up to July first, Nineteen Twenty-one. This means that should we, between this date and July first next, make further decreases in the list price of present models, you are hereby authorized to rebate the amount of any such decrease to purchasers who have paid you list prices now in force. We do not guarantee against increase."

Velie backs this guarantee with a bond given personally to each new car buyer. This settles the price question once and for all.

Velie Six With Cord Tires at the Price of a Four

Just consider what this price means—A Six of old and famous make at a price as low, or even lower than many fours. Compare cars and see for yourself.

Only $1385—but the values remain just the same. The car has the same motor that broke the path into Yosemite and won the Dyas gold cup—the same motor that put the Velie ahead of America's highest-priced cars in the Pike's Peak Climb—the same motor that is making the Light Six records in fuel-saving. It has the Velie deep, luxurious leather upholstery—the Velie lasting mirror finish—the complete equipment and the ultra-refinements that mark Velie cars everywhere.

Have Your Velie Now—Don't Let This Chance Vanish

The wise buyer will make sure of his Velie while this price is in force. Remember, the guarantee does not insure that prices will not go up. Present prices are your gain—but they are not logical. You know that. Materials are the same; labor costs have not been reduced. Everything that goes into the Velie Six costs as much today as it did a week ago—and the car is worth just as much.

Our advice to you is, don't wait. Have your Velie now for all the glorious driving ahead this Fall. Remember—

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

Important!

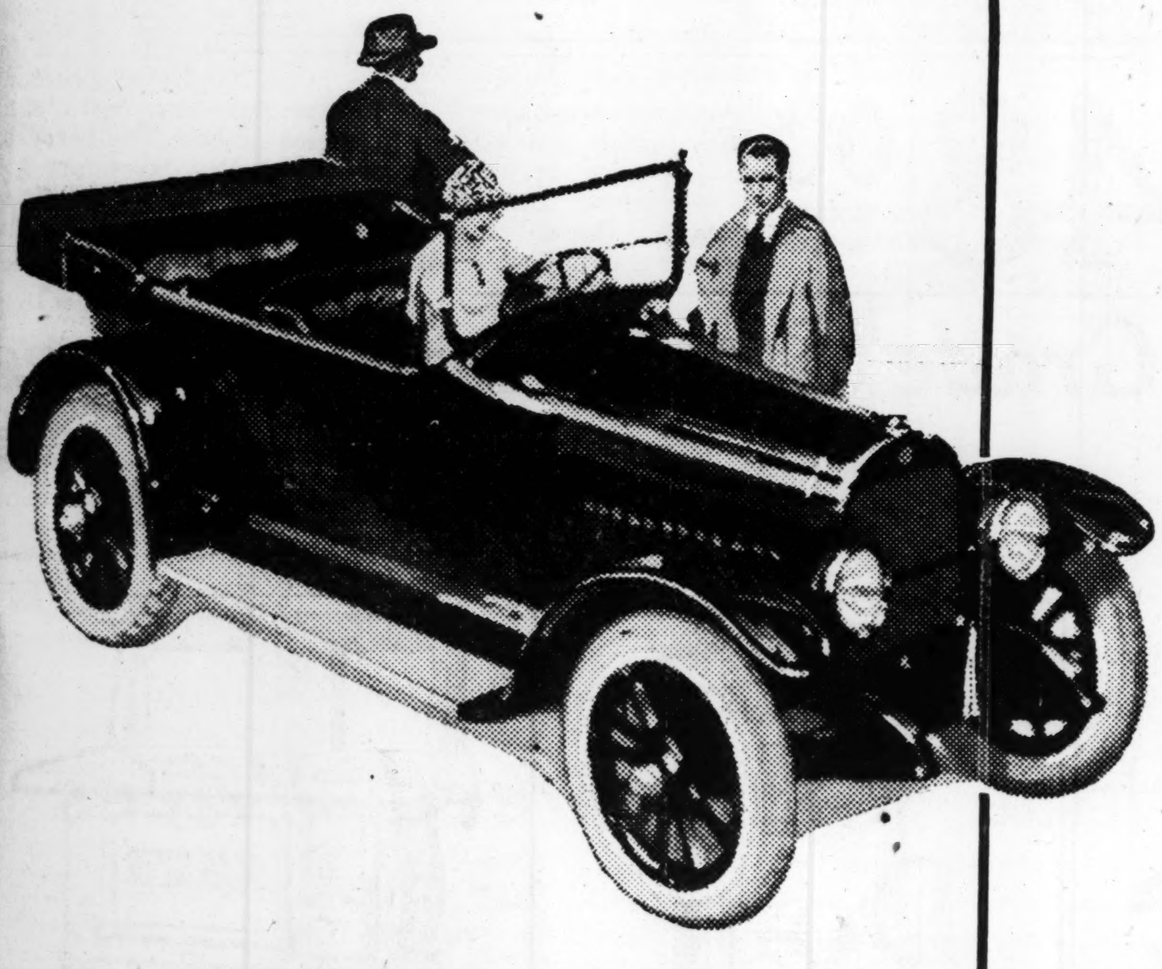
Have you been misled by some recent price reductions?

Before buying any car study this table below carefully.

It shows clearly what has actually happened.

It proves where the real value is.

We have selected four leading cars that can be considered in the Dort price class.



In the last two years—

1. Car A has increased price 40%
2. " B " " " 33%
3. " C " " " 30%
4. " D " " " 19%
5. Dort " " " 17%

Now then how far have these cars reduced.

1. Car A has reduced 13 5-6%
2. Car B has guaranteed prices
3. " C " " "
4. " D " " "
5. Dort " " "

So that a revised table of today covering net increase during the last two years stands as follows:

1. Car A net increase 20%
2. " B " " 33%
3. " C " " 30%

That makes it plain where the real value in the Dort class is.

And Again Value Triumphs

A very curious and interesting drama has been going on before your eyes.

And its conclusion provides a dramatic demonstration of the fact that the American public appreciates honesty and fair dealing.

The affair began more than two years ago and came to consummation within the last few weeks.

Back in 1918 prices of material and labor were steadily rising and consequently all motor car makers were advancing prices.

It may be that some manufacturers saw a chance to profit largely. People seemed willing to pay any kind of a price.

The Dort Company saw the opportunity to profiteer. But it resolutely turned its back.

The Dort Company could have made excessive advances. But it didn't.

The Dort Company has always played fair with the public. And it always will.

In the past two years Dort prices have risen just 17%.

Other leading makers during the same period have advanced their prices from 19% to 45%.

Then came announcements from many makers of reduced prices.

Other makers—including the Dort—have stood pat.

Dort prices on all current models are absolutely guaranteed against reduction.

Each buyer can have this guarantee written in his purchase.

Naturally the public wonders how prices can be reduced when manufacturing costs have not lowered.

If these prices were based on honest value we can't answer that question.

If these prices were inflated anybody can answer the question as well as we.

Now then—if these prices were inflated they obviously bore no relation to the real value of the car.

And value is the only sound basis upon which to buy anything.

Evidently the American public thinks likewise. Evidently the public cannot be mislead by reductions in inflated prices.

The only reaction this situation can have must be an overwhelming growth in favorable sentiment toward the cars whose prices have not been inflated.

Surely the American public prefers to deal with concerns that do deal squarely with it.

Today the public knows how very close the Dort price is to its actual cost.

Today the public knowledge that the Dort Company can be trusted is deeper and stronger than ever.

Again value has triumphed.

Meat Cause of Kidney Trouble

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is quoted and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acid so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

WOULD MAKE BUTTER BASIS OF MILK PRICE

St. Louis Distributers Make Proposal to Illinois Producers.

St. Louis milk distributers have offered to enter into a contract with the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association whereby the distributers agree to pay a price each month equal to the value of milk for the making of butter, plus an allowance for the skimmed milk and a sum of 25 cents per 100 pounds for the expense of hauling.

The producers have been holding out for $3.60 per hundred pounds, and the distributers had previously offered $3.55. The producers have been on strike since Sept. 16 because of the refusal of the distributers to agree to pay the additional 5 cents.

Estimate of New Price.

Based on the average daily price of butter on the Chicago market for September, the new price offered by the distributors for that month would have been $2.85. To take care of seasons of surplus and shortage, the prices as determined by the new method would be subject to an addition of 20 cents during November, December, January and February and a reduction of 20 cents per 100 pounds during the months of April, May and June.

It was pointed out by the distributers that about 45 per cent of the milk produced in the United States is made into butter and cheese and that only about 25 per cent is sold in fresh milk form in towns and cities. The butter price, according to the distributers, is the most open, most certain and most easily determined price of all milk products.

Copies of Proposal Mailed.

The distributers hold that by their new proposition they are assuring the producers a price for their milk equal to the value which will be received by the producers of 45 per cent of the milk in the United States.

A copy of the proposal was mailed to each of the 6000 members of the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association yesterday.

TWO DETECTIVES KILLED BY BURGLARS ENTERING HOME ON SOUTH SIDE

William A. Moller and Preston B. Anslyn Shot Dead When They Follow Pair Into Yard of Flat at 3868 Juniata Street.

DISTRICT SURROUNDED AFTER SLAYERS FLEE

Victims Slain Before They Had Opportunity to Draw Weapons — Only Two Shots Fired by Assailants, Who Fled Toward Wyoming Street.

ONE OF TWO DETECTIVES SHOT DEAD BY BURGLARS

W. A. MOLLER ...

City Detectives William A. Moller and Preston B. Anslyn, on duty in the Magnolia avenue police district, were shot and killed at 8:30 o'clock last night on the terraced lawn in front of the flat at 3868-70 Juniata street. The shots are believed to have been fired by two burglars whom the detectives had followed, as they approached the entrance of the house.

The detectives' slayers fled through a passageway at the side of the flat, and were seen emerging from another passageway on Wyoming street, two block south of Juniata, and running east on Wyoming.

All policemen and detectives available were summoned from other districts, and an attempt was made to surround the neighborhood where the crime was committed, to prevent the escape of the criminals. Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hannegan, who were summoned from the Harding meeting in the Coliseum, took charge of the search. Night Chief Gillespy preceded them to the scene.

The two detectives who were killed had no chance to draw their revolvers, and the revolvers were in place on both bodies, Moller's being at his hip and Anslyn's in a holster under his left arm.

Moller and Anslyn were talking, a few minutes before the shooting, with Detective Sergeant Edward Schenk, under whom they worked in the district, and another detective as the four stood in front of the Tower Grove Bank at Grand avenue and Juniata street.

"Going to Get Burglars."

"Well," Moller remarked as they parted, "we're going over to get a couple of burglars." Then he and Anslyn started west on Juniata, walking on the south side of the street.

As they neared Gustine avenue, 3900 west, a young man came east on the same side of Juniata street. This young man told the police later that he recognized Moller, whom he had seen about the neighborhood, and that he saw two men walking west, between himself and the approaching detectives. These two men, he said, turned into the yard at 3868-70, and ascended the flight of steps toward the building. So far as he could see, they moved as promptly and in as straightforward a way as if they were entering their own home.

Went Up Steps After Men.

The detectives went up the steps after the pair, the young man said. Almost instantly, he heard two shots. He ran west, and did not return until a number of the neighbors had gathered about the bodies of the two detectives.

Moller lay on his face on the grass, near the entrance of the flat, in the angle formed by the path to the front sidewalk and the walk leading to the passageway at the side of the house. Anslyn lay a few feet away on the terrace, on his back. Both were dead when the first examination of the bodies was made. Both had been shot in the right side, Moller below the shoulder blade and Anslyn in the breast.

Descriptions Sent Out.

Both the downstairs flats, 3868 and 3870, were dark at the time of the shooting, the families occupying them being away. Neighbors began to appear immediately after the shots were heard, but no one on Juniata street saw the fleeing men. They were seen by Mr. and Mrs. H. Hummert of 3861 Wyoming street, who were sitting on their front porch. The men ran through a passageway and past the Hummerts, then ran east on Wyoming.

The police, after talking to the Hummerts and to the young man who saw the men on Juniata street, sent out a description of the two men, stating that one was about 40 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds, smooth shaven, and wore a long black overcoat or rain coat, with the pockets bulging, and a dark soft hat. The other appeared younger and taller.

Chief of Detectives Hannegan, after making inquiries in the neighborhood, said he felt sure that the slayers of the detectives were burglars. The two, being familiar with the neighborhood, are believed to have known that the men did not belong on the premises, or possibly to have recognized them as police characters.

A burglary was reported, about 8 o'clock, at the home of Dr. William H. Clithero, 4210 Botanical avenue, which is on the other side of Tower Grove Park from the scene of the shooting. It is not known that Moller and Anslyn knew of the burglary, but it is believed that the men they were following may have been the Botanical avenue burglars, who would be ready to shoot if they saw themselves pursued.

Moller was 45 years old and lived at 4447 Lexington avenue. He had been a policeman since June, 1917, and had been on special duty in the Magnolia district for two years. Anslyn was 38, and lived at 2526A University street. He had been on the force 10½ years, and went on special duty last April.

Moller Recently Won Medal.

Moller received a bronze medal at the recent review, for the work he did, in connection with another detective, in capturing a negro who was sentenced to death for an attack on a young woman.

Detective Sergt. Schenk went after 11 o'clock to tell the men's wives of their deaths. He found Mrs. Moller and her daughters, 15 and 13 years old, sitting up waiting for Moller to come home. His wife fainted and became hysterical.

When Schenk rang the bell at the Anslyn home, Mrs. Ansyln called: "Is that you, Press?"

"No, it's Detective Schenk," Schenk replied.

"What's happened to Pres?" Mrs. Anslyn demanded. She was told. She has no children.

The police, after last night's killing, began rounding up police characters and gangsters. Up to midnight 17 were arrested, 9 being taken at Twenty-second and Madison streets, 5 at Fourteenth and Pine streets, and 3 at Vandeventer avenue and Windsor place. So far as was announced, there was no definite evidence connecting any of them with the crime.

Daughter-in-Law of Blaine to Give $5000 to Democrats

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.

ONE of the most noteworthy announcements of the campaign came today when Treasurer Marsh of the Democratic National Committee received a telegram announcing a check for $5000 had been sent by Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine of Chicago and also asking if there is any other way in which she can help. She is the wife of Emmons Blaine, a daughter-in-law of the late James G. Blaine of Maine, Republican candidate for President in 1884, and sister of Medill McCormick, Republican United States Senator and National Committeeman for Illinois.

TEACHER ACCUSED OF WHIPPING PUPILS IN POLITICAL ROW

She Put Up Harding's Photo and Some Youngsters Gouged Out Eyes and Put on Cox Buttons.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., Oct. 16.—Miss Goldie Tripper, teacher of the public school at College Mound, was served today with a warrant based on information filed here yesterday charging that she severely whipped six of her pupils—Glen Teter, 12 years old; Harry Powell, 15; Paul Britt, 16; Mary Powell, 14; Lucille Singleton, 12; and Lena May Jones, 14. It is alleged in the information that the teacher used a hickory sapling four feet long.

The information was filed on the complaint of Lon Teter and William Powell, fathers of two children mentioned. It was stated that recently the teacher put up a picture of Senator Harding in the schoolroom and some of the children, it is presumed, gouged out Senator Harding's eyes. This created some discussion between pupils and teacher and later on the six children returned wearing Cox buttons.

Since the story of the affair got out there has been a demand among young and old for both Cox and Harding buttons at College Mound.

THREE SUIT CASES CONTAINING WHISKY DESERTED ON SIDEWALK

After Fruitless Two-Hour Vigil, Detectives Convey 36 Quarts of "Old Dominion" to Headquarters.

Three new suit cases, left apparently unguarded on the sidewalk in front of the Terminal Hotel, on the Market street side yesterday, attracted the attention of Detectives Wheatley and Rohlfing. Inquiry disclosed that three strangers had left the grips there and had walked into Union Station.

The detectives lifted the grips and discovered they contained something more substantial than feathers. For two hours they sat in an alcove in the vicinity and kept vigil on the grips. None came to claim them. At police headquarters, whence the detectives took the suit cases, each was found to contain 12 quarts of whisky labeled "Old Dominion."

1,000,000 BRITISH MINERS ON STRIKE; MANY OTHERS IDLE

Thousands of Dock Workers Thrown Out of Employment and Industries Are Affected by Walkout.

LEADERS' ADVICE SEEMINGLY IGNORED

Diggers in Some Sections Walk Out Reluctantly—Fight to Finish, Says Lloyd George.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—With a million miners out of the pits tonight, thousands of dock and industrial workers already out of employment as a consequence, and the transport workers and railroad men called to meet soon to discuss a sympathetic strike, Great Britain faces one of the greatest industrial upheavals in its history, in the opinion of labor and political leaders who discussed the situation today.

The statement that the men struck against the advice of most of their leaders was confirmed to some extent by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand that voting against the "datum line" meant a strike, and it is clear that a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase," as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, called it in a speech. Thomas admonished the railroaders to listen to the advice of their leaders, which would be given after the meeting of the delegates Wednesday.

A different note was struck, however, by the South Wales branch of the Miners' Federation, which called a meeting for next Friday to recommend that if the strike was not settled by Oct. 30, the pump men and other employes remaining at work should be called out.

Parliament to Meet Tuesday.

It is indicated tonight that Premier Lloyd George will discuss the situation Tuesday, when Parliament meets.

No disturbances are reported, and no troops have been sent to the mining centers, but they are held in readiness.

The sugar ration will be cut 50 per cent Monday.

Statement by Lloyd George.

Premier Lloyd George today addressed a message to the nation regarding the strike, as follows:

"The nation is confronted with a coal strike. The Government has made every effort consistent with its duty as trustee for the people to avert this calamity. The proposals of the Government have been supported by many of the most responsible leaders of the miners' federation. They have been regarded by all sections of the people as fair and reasonable.

"The Government offered to submit the miners' claim for an increase in wages to an impartial tribunal and to abide by the result. This offer the miners refused. The Government offered to give the increase asked for if the miners would restore the present low production of coal to the figures of the early part of the present year.

"This, too, the miners refused against the advice of their most experienced leaders. They are attempting now to gain their ends by force. The nation must and will resist such an attack with all its strength and there can be no doubt as to the issue.

Asks for Conservation of Coal.

"The citizens must help each other to lessen the inconveniences and suffering which the miners' strike will cause. The supplies of coal for the public service are sufficient. The Government will insure the fair distribution of the available supplies of coal. Every householder can help by saving coal. Every manufacturer can help his workmen by making his supplies of coal last as long as possible. There should be no cessation of employment until that misfortune cannot longer be avoided and, above all, the people should remain calm and deal with emergencies as they arise.

"No one need underrate the damage which the strike will do, but no one will be dismayed. We have been through much more difficult times. With steady purpose and determination to do justice, the nation will overcome all its difficulties."

Some of the iron and steel works in the north of Yorkshire already have succumbed to the coal shortage. With few exceptions, all the

CHRISTENSEN SAYS LEAGUE IS DEVICE OF BROKERS' SOVIET

Farmer-Labor Candidate for President in Address to 2500 at Armory Sympathizes With "Uncle Warren."

WOULD KEEP U. S. OUT OF EUROPE

Condemns Esch-Cummins Bill and Declares Major Parties Are Two Wings of Same Vulture, Capitalism.

"It is an insult to the intelligence of the average audience to discuss the so-called League before it," declared Parley Parker Christensen of Utah, Farmer-Labor nominee for president, at the First Regiment Armory, Grand avenue and Market street, last night to an audience estimated at about 2500 persons.

Christensen, who has made about 200 speeches and traveled across the country from the west coast to the east three times since he was nominated July 15, had made two speeches yesterday before reaching St. Louis, one at Alton at 4 p. m. and another at Granite City, where he finished speaking at 8 p. m. He arrived at the Armory about 8:45 and received a tumultuous welcome.

"My heart goes out to Uncle Warren tonight," he began, "For it really was unkind of me to come here on the night when the son of Wall Street's chosen people is speaking, but it couldn't be helped."

Absolute opposition to the League of Nations and treaty of Versailles was voiced in the opening declaration of his argument, followed by the charge that "the preamble and covenant were prepared by the International Brokers' Soviet, and under it whenever a difference of trade arises we will be swung into a vortex of war, and when that occurs you and I will have to fight the battles. The International Brokers' Soviet will furnish the munitions and draw the profits.

"Will Write League of Our Own."

"We will write a league of our own, and we will have the representatives of all of the countries in the world there. The representatives of the United States will be chosen by you, after discussion. Not only the United States, France and Great Britain will sit at that council table, but also Germany, Austria, Russia and Ireland."

Would Keep U. S. Out of Europe.

Christensen declared for democratization of industry, recognition of Ireland, demanded that "the United States get out of Europe and stay out, and that we stay out of Mexico," and predicted that he will get enough electoral votes to prevent the winning candidate for President from having a majority of the votes in the electoral college.

His audience, for the most part composed of workingmen and others of liberal tendencies, was largely sympathetic and applause was frequent. Once the meeting appeared about to get away from Christensen's grasp, the mention of the name of Eugene V. Debs, nominee for President of the Socialist party, bringing an outburst from Socialists present which spread through the crowd and which continued until Christensen started speaking again.

Questions From Hearers.

Several times questions were uttered by persons in the crowd, but only twice were they loud enough for the speaker to hear. The first time it was a woman. She asked, "Why don't you join the Socialists?" And the answer came quickly from Christensen, "Because you are too advanced. We can't get up to you yet, but we are moving."

The other time it was a man who shouted, "What about prohibition?" Christensen allowing the question to go unanswered.

After the meeting he told a Post-Dispatch reporter that "prohibition is not in this campaign and those who ask that question only do it to embarass a candidate, to take votes from him. I don't mind saying, however, that I voted dry. It took 30 years to get the country dry and it will take that long or longer for it to be undone. Our platform it silent unon the issue."

"America is a national sport, game, fair, but when it has given another fellow a licking, ready to give the adversary a hand, warn him that other misbehavior will be followed by another licking, and then call it quits," Christensen declared.

COX SAYS WAVE OF RESENTMENT ENGULFS HARDING

Declares at Cleveland Nominee Is Trying, in "Taking Twelfth Stand," to "Wiggle Into Office."

"ISSUE DECIDED; PEOPLE FOR LEAGUE"

Assails Coleman Du Pont as "Krupp of America"—Japanese Issue Termed California Question.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16.—More charges against Senator Harding of vacillation upon the League of Nations—"of somersaulting, wiggling and wobbling"—were made by Gov. Cox in a statement issued here tonight and in five speeches closing his three days' Ohio campaign.

Senator Harding's address yesterday at Indianapolis was the basis of Gov. Cox's renewed assault. The Governor declared that was the Senator's twelfth "flop" upon the League issue and he charged his opponent with "attempting to wiggle himself into the presidency."

"A great principle has been vindicated in the hearts of the American people," said the statement issued by the Governor, following similar declarations in speeches to two armory crowds here and others at Elyria, Fremont and Clyde. "They are for the League of Nations.

"Tongue of Ridicule on Him."

wrote the Republican platform at Chicago it was deliberately made meaningless and vague. It was the vehicle which was to enable the senatorial candidate to ride through the campaign assuming the attitude of all things to all people. To Johnson followers, he said what they desired to hear; to the friends of Taft and Root and Wickersham, his speech was veiled innuendo and implication. The spectacle has been tragic for weeks and every community now has turned the tongue of ridicule upon him. It is a circumstance unprecedented in the history of America.

"I was convinced, when I left the great Western country, that a storm of protest and indignation was growing. It is here, and Senator Harding is helpless in 'no man's land,' bereft of public confidence. Within a week Judge Taft sent forward a flag of truce from Vancouver, stating that his candidate had seen the light. On yesterday Judge Root and 31 associates in New York came forward with another flag of truce. Speaking plainly—and the time has come for plain speech—Senator Harding deserves his present plight. No man who, in the midst of grave conditions, exhibits only words, words and then more words, which mean nothing, deserves the confidence of the people. The times require courageous conviction and the man who is not willing to express what is in his heart is certainly lacking the qualities of executive leadership. I repeat what I said in my speech of acceptance. This is no time for wobbling. That sentiment has possessed the heart of America."

Gov. Cox's attacks upon his opponent and his league preachments were cheered by all of his audiences, especially an afternoon gathering of women here at the Armory.

Questions invited by the Governor and asked by several persons, with women unusually prominent in the quizzing, drew amplified statements upon Japanese questions from the candidate. He stated his opinion that the Japanese land dispute in California was "a California question."

Says This Is White Man's Country.

"When Japan is so greatly interested?" a woman asked.

"Most certainly," the candidate replied. "This is a white man's country, not a yellow man's country."

Reference to alleged circulation of "false and deceitful propaganda" by a Republican organization regarding an editorial in his newspapers six years ago criticizing traveling men, was made by the Governor tonight to an audience which packed the armory explaining that the editorial had been repudiated. Gov. Cox said that Coleman Dupont, Republican National Committeeman from Delaware, headed the Republican propaganda enterprise. In connection with his propaganda charge, the Governor for the first time in several weeks referred to the alleged "corruption fund of $15,000,000" of his opposition.

Declares Approval of "Steel Heart of League" Would Be Pledge to Send Armies Overseas.

URGES NEED OF BUILDING UP OUR FOREIGN TRADE

Speaker Makes Plea for Re-Election of Senator Spencer, Chairman of Meeting—Enthusiasm at Gathering Kept Up by Cheer Leaders.

Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, making his first St. Louis speech of the campaign in the Coliseum last night, told an audience of approximately 12,000 persons that if elected President he would never lay the League of Nations covenant before the Senate with Article 10 in it.

This was in effect a direct answer to two questions put to Senator Harding in a Post-Dispatch editorial in yesterday's issue of this paper. The questions in the editorial were:

"Are you for or against the existing League of Nations?"

"Will you submit the peace treaty to the Senate?"

Article 10, which has been described by President Wilson as "the heart of the covenant," is a part of the agreement under which the existing League of Nations is now functioning without the United States as a member. The covenant, including Article 10, is an integral part of the peace treaty which the Senate has refused to ratify.

"Steel Heart of League."

In further discussion of article 10, which pledges nations in the league to protect the existing territorial integrity of other member nations against external aggression or threats of such aggression, Senator Harding sarcastically referred to the article as "the steel heart of the league," and said that this pledge in all honor would mean that "whether Congress wishes it or not," America must send her sons abroad to protect the boundaries of other nations if called upon by the league to do so.

In marked contrast with the meetings of about the same proportions which greeted Gov. James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee for President, in the same hall last Monday night, many artificial aids to enthusiasm were invoked.

While the crowd was waiting for the candidate a trio of men led in the singing of songs, the favorite one of which was "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Between songs a band played many patriotic airs, but did not have "Dixie" in its repertoire.

Cheer Leaders Present.

Johnny Menown, a cabaret singer, and Henry Hoffman, a former cafe manager, acted as cheer leaders and went through strenuous contortions to encourage the singing and cheering. As at the Cox meeting, small flags had been distributed and these were waved as the crowd shouted or joined in the choruses. Many negroes were in the audience and they lustily joined in the singing.

Cowbells and horns were used by members of Republican ward organizations near the platform to keep the demonstrations going and a drummer at one time advanced to the front of the platform and added to the din.

The doors were opened at 6 o'clock and the hall was practically filled at 7:05 when Senator Selden P. Spencer, chairman of the meeting, rapped his gavel and requested that all sing "My Old Kentucky Home." "It's all right for Republicans to sing that song this year," he said.

"The Long, Long Trail" was then sung, after which Senator Spencer announced it would be at least 8 o'clock before Senator Harding would arrive. The band played "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

Leaders Revive Demonstration.

After Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor, had finished a speech, cheers from a large overflow crowd outside at 7:52 indicated that Senator Harding and his party had arrived. A few minutes later they reached the platform and the first ovation of the meeting was on. The cheering lasted 6 minutes. After a lull there was another three-minute period of shouting and flag waving. The cheer leaders got busy again. The band played "How Dry I Am." Senator Harding took a drink of water. There was intermittent periods of applause and quiet, the entire ovation extending over a period of 34 minutes.

Senator Harding and Mrs. Harding stepped to the front of the platform and posed for flashlight photographs. Senator Spencer introduced Mrs. Harding to the crowd. Clasping in her arms a large bouquet presented to her by Republican women voters, she bowed repeatedly.

Introduced by Spencer.

In introducing Senator Harding to the meeting Senator Spencer described him as "that great American and lover of his country, familiar with her problems, protector of her independence, promoter of her progress and prosperity."

Mrs. Karl Kimmel advanced and stood beside Senator Harding and sang "America," the crowd joining in the singing.

Senator Harding started his speech at 8:25 and talked one hour and 10 minutes.

At the outset his voice was a trifle husky, but its condition improved as he proceeded. When he reached the point in his introduction where he said "America is capable of determining her own conscience," a man in the gallery shouted: "Atta boy, Harding!" "I wish I had the voice of my friend," said the Senator. "I have been speaking practically all the time since 11 o'clock. My voice is impaired, but my heart's still right."

There was a burst of applause when he said he believed the people were turning once more to the Republican party to put things right.

Reception Here Amazing, Says Senator Harding

JUST before boarding his train at the Union Station to return to Marion, O., Senator Harding said to Mayor Kiel and others who had accompanied him to the station:

"My reception in St. Louis is amazing. I am almost overcome. At none of my other meetings have I had such a cordial welcome or such a wonderful crowd."

Mrs. Harding was profuse in her expressions of appreciation. She shook hands with all the policemen, thanking them for the care they had taken of Senator Harding. She made much of a little girl, a daughter of Policeman Glasgow, who was stationed at the train. The child was there with her mother.

The text of Senator Harding's Coliseum speech, as reported by stenographers, will be found on Page 2.

G. O. P. NOMINEE URGES BUILDING UP OF NEW MARKET OUTSIDE EUROPE

Pre-War Demand From Countries of Old World Never Will Return, He Says But New Fields Are Open.

FOLLOWING is a stenographic report of Senator Harding's speech as delivered at the coliseum last night.

Senator Spencer, my countrymen, all. After witnessing this more than cordial greeting, I have concluded that this assemblage of fellow-countrymen in St. Louis must prefer to think of my country first. (Applause.) I have a pretty strong conviction that you prefer the Constitution to the covenant. (Applause.) If I read you aright, I am inclined to think you prefer American nationality to paralyzing internationality. (Applause.) Nay, more. I incline to think that you believe America is capable of determining her own conscience. (Applause.) And America can choose for herself the way she performs her obligations to the world. (Applause.)

Voice from the audience: Good boy, Harding.

Senator Harding: I wish I had the voice of my friend. (Laughter.) I never like to begin with an apology, but I have been speaking since something like 11 o'clock this morning to large audiences out-of-doors and it does impair the human voice, but the heart is still right, my countrymen, and I bring to you an important message and wherever we have been today, in Indiana or Illinois, there is the same manifestation of interest in the affairs of our common country; aye, more. I think there is the same evidence of determination to restore the popular government under the Constitution of the United States. (Applause.)

For Popular Government.

If I can read American sentiment correctly, it is ready to put an end to bureaucracy created under the name of democracy, and then crowned with autocracy, and the United States once more; aye, more, I think American people want the Congress of the United States to function the same under the freedom of the republic under the provisions of the Constitution.

A voice: Atta boy, Harding.

Senator Harding (aside): What did he say?

A voice: Atta boy, Harding.

Senator Harding (continuing): I remember they told a story about Parson Brownlow, the famous fighting parson of Tennessee, who was as patriotic as he was pious, and the men of his regiment loved him and trusted him. In one of the tight skirmishes of the Civil War the parson went out with the adjutant to tighten up the forces and encourage the spirit of the men, but the adjutant was in the lead and the parson was following and the adjutant was going along and shouting to the men, "Give them hell, boys—Give them hell," and the parson followed saying, "Do as the adjutant tells you, boys."

It is a very gratifying thing, my countrymen, to find all of you awake in the interests of America. I haven't any doubt in my own mind that the people of the United States are turning once more to the Republican party to put this Republic of ours—(interrupted by applause).

Says Country Calls G. O. P.

Somehow or other every time that things go wrong in the United States the country turns to the Republican party (applause) and the Republican party never fails to put the United States of America (interrupted by applause).

The country sought to turn to the Republican party four years ago and I think it was the judgment of America that we ought to return to Republican policies and Republican principles after four years of the new freedom that came with Mr. Wilson in 1916.

There was an especial appeal to the sentimentality of the country and for some reason or other the Democratic administration was enabled to tell the people of the United States that it kept them out of war. (Applause).

Now the same party wants to continue in power on the promise that it is going to permanently keep us out of war. Well, God help America if it doesn't succeed any better than it succeeded in 1916. (Applause).

I want an America at peace; I preach the gospel of avoiding war, but, my countrymen, I want you to understand that I preach keeping out of war in the odd years the same as I do in presidential years. (Applause).

For "America at Peace."

I don't want America kept out of war just to win an election, because that was a very costly thing in 1916. Let me remind you, my countrymen, that in 1916 the world had been two years at war, and everybody in the United States saw the flame mounting higher and higher and everybody in the United States apprehended that we would be involved and official United States knew that we must be involved, and in spite of that knowledge, in spite of the danger to America, we never turned a finger to prepare for American national defense, and that neglect of America cost thousands of priceless American lives and billions of American money. (Applause.)

I want an America at peace; I want a world at peace, but I don't want it at the cost of national honor. (Applause.) I don't want it at the cost of needless sacrifice of the sons of this republic—aye, more, I don't want it as a gift of the world—I want it as a right of the United States. (Applause.)

Voice from the audience: That's it, Harding.

Voice from the audience: Hit them again.

Senator Harding: We are, my countrymen, a government through political parties. That was the intention of the founding fathers; that was the system under which we have made America the foremost republic of the world. Here in America we have our political parties, and these parties determine upon policies; they enunciate principles; they make proposed programs for the Government; then parties submit their policies and programs to the American people and the majority decides which party's program is the preferable, and then that party is clothed with official responsibility and is expected to translate their program.

If you expect the Republican party to take the reins and start America on the right forward track again, I want you to do more than merely elect a Republican President—I want you to elect a Republican House and a Republican Senate. (Applause.)

Plea for Spencer.

With the incoming administration Congress is going to do the legislating—not the President of the United States. Congress is going to make the laws and the President is going to enforce the laws (applause); therefore, I want you in St. Louis and Missouri not only to send your quota of Republican representatives to the House, but I want you to send my friend Selden Spencer to the United States Senate (applause). I do not want you to send him just because he is a Republican—

A Voice: Because he is a man.

Senator Harding: I want you to send him because he is an able outstanding American, and an able Senator, and he helped us save the betrayal of America. (Applause.) But, parties must, if they are to succeed, appeal to the confidence, to the conviction—aye, to the superb judgment of the American people. I would not be worthy of your suffrage if I could not in some way command your belief that our party and those of us who are clothed with authority, mean to serve to the advantage of America. I would not want to come to you, my countrymen, with an appeal to prejudice; I would not want you to elect us merely because you are weary with the failure of Democratic administration; I want you to put Republicans in power because of the things you believe we mean to do for our common country.

"Sectionalism Is Gone."

I have not yet in this campaign made one single appeal to class —and I never will. (Applause.)

I told them in the southland to section—and I never will. (Applause.)

I told them in the southward —as I tell them in the north and I tell you now tonight in St. Louis—sectionalism has been wiped out by the blood of American heroes across the seas. (Applause.)

From this time on in the United States of America we are, thank God, one people with one purpose, one confidence, one tribe, one country, one flag in these United States of America. (Applause.) And, instead of being a mere colonization of people as we were in the past, we are from this time on Americans confident of the future of our own Country and resolved to be of service.

I want to invite your patient attention for just a few moments while I turn to a deliberate utterance—not particularly designed to appeal to the Mississippi Valley, but an utterance I want to make to all of America, with special application to the Mississippi Valley. The time has come when this country must give more serious thought to developing new markets abroad. Ever since most of us can remember we have been in the habit of talking rather vaguely about opening new markets in the world, but all the time we have gone on developing the old markets intensively and accomplishing comparatively little towards the development of the new. So far back as 1870 78 per cent of all American exports went to Europe and it was commonly talked even then of opening new markets abroad, but that produced so little effect that in 1880 85 per cent of our exports went to Europe and in 1890 it was around 80 per cent, and in 1900 it dropped to 70 per cent and in 1910 it was around 65 per cent.

Europe's War Demand.

Considering that the war compelled Europe to turn to us for almost everything, it must be apparent that if there had been no war the proportion of our exports to Europe in the decade from 1910 to 1920 would have been visibly reduced; either our exports would have suffered greatly, or else we would have been compelled to find new markets outside of Europe.

The lesson of all of this is plain. Even before the war, Europe was tending to take a constantly decreasing proportion of American exports. The present year, my countrymen, has shown a startling change in the balance of trade. The reasons for that are perfectly simple and perfectly understandable. Europe no longer has the means to buy as she once possessed, and therefore just as rapidly as possible, must cease buying from us. Doubtless Europe will remain for centuries America's best customer, but, nevertheless, the time has come when Europe will never again absorb anything like the proportion of our exports which she has taken in the past. We must turn, then to new markets, and it is not difficult to decide where these new markets are to be found.

Trade Figures Cited.

Before the war started, we were buying from South America year by year about twice as much as we sold to South America, and we were buying from Asia in the same proportion, and from Oceania our purchases were approximately twice what we sold, while in the case of Africa, our sales and purchases nearly balanced. Obviously, we must hope to extend our American markets in those countries from which we buy most extensively and between which and us the balance of trade is against us. South America, Asia, Africa, and the islands of the seas can buy from us, because they owe us great trade balances. Take, for example, Brazil; last year we exported to Brazil $93,000,000, but we bought from Brazil $125,000,000; we sold to Chile $70,000,000 and bought $135,000,000; we sold to Japan $326,000,000 and we exxported $303,000,000. Last year we sold to China $82,000,000 and bought $105,000,000—and thus the story goes on, showing where the unfavorable balances of trade lie. And it is very apparent, from the most casual statement of the figures, first, that Europe cannot be expected to furnish us in the future any such market as she has provided heretofore, either during or before the great World War. It is equally apparent that unless we are to retire suddenly from our position as the world's greatest exporting nation, we must find markets elsewhere, and it is equally apparent that these markets must be found in South America, Asia, Africa and Oceania.

There are two reasons why it is particularly desirable that we cultivate this trade: These countries are the producers of a great aggregate of agricultural articles that are not producers of the larger part of their requirements in manufactured articles, and it happens at this time we particularly need to extend our markets for our manufactured products. The war was marked by an almost unbelievable expansion of our industrial capacities. Our factory facilities are greater today than they ever were before; greater than any country in the world ever possessed. We cannot sell our factory products to Europe, first, because Europe has factories of its own; therefore we must seek outlets to those countries which have not the factories and have the means with which to buy.

National Balance Sheet.

All this, of course, is the simplest possible statement of the case, the very rudiment of the situation. It is so simple, indeed, that it furnishes little excuse for eloquence and little occasion for oratory. The trade is thrown in much excitement as to the balance sheet, as to whether the balance sheet shows a favorable or prosperous situation or not. It is a highly important question, my countrymen.

We have come to the time when the national balance sheet of America must have attention. We have built up during the war the greatest foreign trade that any country ever controlled, and we have extended our industrial plants in order to meet the demands of that trade, and now we suddenly find that our customers cannot continue buying from us and the business must be suspended or else new customers must be found, and in casting about for new customers, we shall be faced with the determined competition of the rehabilitated industries of Europe. They will seek to restore their grips on the markets of the world. We are to meet these desperately determined competitors and can do it only by extending the most systematic and intelligent encouragement to our producers.

This is a matter which must necessarily have the largest measure of aid and encouragement from the Government. Note, for example, the great financial fabric which centers in London and extends to every part of the world.

Our British friends have expanded and consolidated their financial system very greatly since 1914. Despite the war's strain on their credit, they have managed by wise methods to keep the financial reins pretty firmly in their grip, and when they lacked gold with which to meet trade balances, they have found it possible to set off one group of accounts against another and balance books without the actual passing of money. Their long established credit, wisely employed, enabled them to transact the business even without possessing an adequate share of money metal, and since the war, the expansion of their exports and their rapid re-establishment of more favorable trade balances have been the marvels of the commercial world, and, I tell you, my countrymen, America must wake up. (Applause.)

Need of Merchant Marine.

I undertake to say that our Government signally failed to extend to its industrial and commercial enterprises anything like the sort of encouragement and support that have been given British enterprises by the British nation. In our case it would not have been necessary to go so far as Britain has gone, but it has been, and it is desirable that we go so far as we properly may by means of a tariff policy, of ocean transportation, of trade agreements, of consolidated credit, in order to direct our foreign trade into new fields. Unless we do this we shall presently find ourselves merely the world's money lenders, regarded everywhere as usurers and carrying the burden of distrust and dislike that inevitably must be visited upon a nation which is the creditor of everybody and the debtor of none. And in the expansion of foreign trade there must be consideration for two particular instruments of that trade; there must be an extension of American banking facilities; there must be parallel to this the opening of a merchant trade route—many merchant trade routes, under the American flag, in the interests of American trade, to all the countries with which we desire to cultivate a larger commerce.

Year by year we pay a tremendous tax to foreigners to haul our overseas business. It was not ways thus. In 1860 we hauled per cent; the proportion steadily until 1910, when hauled less than 8 per cent American commerce, and then war caused a rapid expansion transportation by salt water our facilities therefor, and even 1919, after the tremendous war vival of our merchant marine, carried only about 34 per cent American salt water comm under the American flag. We persist in striving, not only to to, but increase the proportion overseas trade under our own It may prove difficult when merchant fleets of Europe be to be rehabilitated. They, like industries of Europe, will seek undersell us, and in order to our shipmasters in peace, we find it necessary to extend every possible encouragement, every reasonable preference to our own ships.

St. Louis' Fur Auctions.

There are several reasons, it seems to me, why the people of your great Mississippi metropolis should be peculiarly interested in this particular problem. The old French fathers of the Mississippi Valley developed your commercial enterprises on the navigation of our inland waterways system, and St. Louis stands today a monument to their early appreciation of the importance and possibilities of internal water routes.

"You hold every year in St. Louis your great fur auctions to which people come from all parts of the world. It makes your city even today the center of America's commerce in furs; that status remains to you because your city was made the center of this fur trade generations before any dreamed of railroads, and when the traffic of your great converging rivers was borne by the canoes of the aborigines. Once laid down, the lines upon which commerce moves have a way of remaining, and the fur trade still centers in St. Louis, although we have well nigh forgotten the industry and the commercial importance of the mighty stream which first brought that trade here. I think we might well revert to some lessons of the older days. We need once more to open the same waterways to the avenues of American commerce.

I said a little bit ago we had been talking blandly and amiably about seeking new markets for our foreign trades and in fact accomplishing all too little. Surely I may also say that it has been our pleasing and perfectly harmless custom to assure ourselves that some time we are going to take our commerce back to our streams, restore our steamboat lines and make the rivers an auxiliary to our maritime transportation. Thus far, I may as well confess we have been chiefly indulging in conversation.

Inland Waterways.

But the time has come when we must begin to make our internal waterways carry their share of American commerce, because we have discovered that American railways are inadequate and we ought to call these gifts of nature to the service of American trade. There must be a development of the possibilities of our rivers, and it must be in harmony and in co-operation—not in competition and antagonistic—to out railroad systems. Let us frankly recognize that unrestricted competition between railways and waterways is good for neither one of them, and thoroughly bad for the country as a whole. We might learn the lesson from 7urope, which, before the great war began, had developed its waterway systems until they had reached the point where they carried an astonishing proportion of all the traffic. Your St. Louis here, at the confluence of two mighty rivers which drain our American Mesapotamia, is destined, as I vision it, tomorrow to be the emporium of a traffic which shall reach by its own water routes to every quarter of the globe.

I see your destiny to traverse with the argosies of your trade all the routes of the great valley to the gulf and the Caribean and all those highways of trade that have been thrown open to us by American skill and genius that gave to the world the Panama Canal. I not only see in this development of the transportation possibilities of our rivers and extension of the routes and facilities by which our commerce shall move throughout the world, but by the conserving of our waters and protection of the fertility of our valleys, we will add immeasureably to our own production capacity.

For Generosity in Trade.

We need all these acres of potential productivity. This development can only be brought about through the efforts and co-operation of the State and Federal Governments and must be recognized as a natural gateway to the sister republics south of us. I foresee at no distant time, under a wise and steadfast foreign policy, a new era in our policies with Mexico and a new decade of development of the regions of the Caribean and beyond, and any development must be along the lines representing an advantage to all of us who participate therein. We will not seek anything like the privilege of mere exploitation. It must be our aim to give generously a part of the advantage of this our development to those who should reasonably profit thereby.

We must make our friends and neighbors of Latin-America all the way from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn understand and believe that we seek no advantage to ourselves that shall not imply at least an equal measure of advantage to them. I believe we can be useful and helpful to them and I believe they can be helpful and beneficial to us. More than such a full mutuality of interest we do not and never shall seek.

The Panama Canal.

We have become firmly convinced that the Panama Canal is a big concern to the people of our central valley. It has long been a matter of profound regret to me that the camel could not have been made one of the great free highways of commerce for America. (Applause.) Whatever may have been the merits of the exigencies which sustained the denial to American trade to send its product by American ships without charge to the canal, the time surely will come when we must claim for our own country and for the western continents every rightful privilege that may accrue by virtue of the linking of the two oceans. The canal ought to be a natural highway between the Americas, and I cannot but feel that the policy of a Democratic administration in administering the canal has failed to develop its possibilities and it will be our aim when clothed with authority to make the Panama Canal a new agency for American friendship and a new agency to widen American commerce.

We built the canal ourselves and we built it with American money, and we built it under a Republican administration (applause), when we had the coin in our pockets to pay. I don't believe in asking any other people in the world how we shall operate the Panama canal. (Applause.)

I beg to call your attention to the fact that our field, my countrymen, in commerce, is the western continent, and we ought to be trading through the canal with all of South America in the height of friendship and understanding.

I want this American merchant marine of ours to establish permanent trade routes; we have just come to realize, my countrymen, that we have ceased to be a maritime power owing to our neglect and, I maintain, owing to Democratic opposition to a policy that appeals to America first. We had allowed our merchant marine to go down and the war drove us to its upbuilding. We couldn't send our Americans abroad and send to them their sustenance and fighting materials without ships, so we put 375,000 Americans to building ships, ships and yet more ships.

The Merchant Marine.

"When the war ended and our present contracts are completed—contracts that will be completed because it is cheaper to complete than to cancel, America will own 12,000,000 dead-weight tons of ocean-going ships, the second largest shipping equipment in the world, and Congress wants to turn that shipping back to the hands of private genius and enterprise. But we want to sustain this merchant marine under American policies like that of the seaman's act, where we insisted that American skippers and American shippers shall pay a higher set wage for different working conditions than others paid. They thought we would adopt the old colonial or early policy of the republic of a discriminating duty on cargoes shipped in American vessels, so that whenever a foreign cargo came into America on an American vessel it should have a 10 per cent favor in the matter of duty.

Congress passed such a law and the President signed the law and then it became necessary in some instances to renegotiate our freight treaties. The President of the United States, because one great competitor objected, said he would not enforce the law—the President said he would not enforce the law that he himself signed. Well, my countrymen, when I am President of the United States I will enforce the law (applause) and if I can't enforce the law, or if there is some reason why it can't be done then I will call Congress together and we will find out together what the matter is (applause), but I will never put a stone in the way of American shipping at the instance of any competing nation on the face of the globe.

Promises to Cut Waste.

Why, this is the United States of America and we are big enough and broad enough and fair enough and just enough to determine all about our own merchant marines. (Applause). Aye, more, we are big enough to determine upon our own policies at all times. I want to warn you, my countrymen—it is about time to put our own house in order in the United States. Let's get away from the Government that was builded up in the anxieties of war and adjust ourselves in the United States to the normal pursuits of a peaceful people. I promis you my countrymen, I promise you that when the Republican party gets into power we are going to put an end to war's exaravagance and wasteful methods.

We are going to reorganize a government that was builded up in the anxiety of overlapping agencies and conflict of authority and we are going to send for 300,000 of our boys and get them back home because they belong here. (Applause.) I don't mean any discredit to those who came to the service of the country in the stress of war. It was fine that they should have responded, but the war is over, my countrymen; it has been over for nearly two years—those boys down in front of me knew it, but the United States of America doesn't know it officially. Why? Because the Democratic Government insisted that we could not have any peace except as the President dictated.

A voice: What about the League of Nations—tell us about both of your positions.

Cries of "Throw him out—throw him out."

Senator Harding: No, don't throw him out, don't throw anybody out—we are going to throw the Democratic party out of Washington.

The gentleman up there wants to know what I am going to do about the League of Nations. Well, a good many people have said I am very uncertain on that question. Let me see if I can make myself perfectly plain.

A voice: Give it to them.

Consideration in Senate.

Senator Harding: You know as a member of the Senate, with our friend Senator Spencer, I had to deal with the League of Nations as a member of the Senate. I had no choice at that time except to deal with the document which was laid before us by the President. He had the right to negotiate the covenant and the Peace Treaty and when he sent it to the Senate we could only consider the document which he laid before us. That is our duty under the Constitution and having no other choice, the President having negotiated this document, we set about to see what we could do with it, to see if it was possible to safeguard America, and accept that document, and we wrote safeguarding reservations. You know all about them. I need not tell you about them now. Let me just tell you one or two, if you are interested: One was about membership in the very beginning: It said, "Members of the League can retire on giving two years' notice, provided that the member nation seeking to retire had fulfilled its obligations," and then somebody said, "Well, who decides when you have fulfilled your obligations?" Laughter and applause.) So we wrote—

A voice: Put him out.

Senator Harding: Please, gentlemen, please. There is a gentleman in the gallery and if he waits until I finish, I will be glad to answer his question. Oh, we must only be polite about it, that's all. And so the Senate wrote a reservation and said, "We reserve for ourselves the right to determine whether the United States has fulfilled its obligation." (Applause.) I remember it very distinctly and I like to speak about it.

Question of Mandatories.

One of the provisions of the covenant was that mandatories might be acepted, and we wrote a reservation saying that nobody speaking for the United States of America could accept a mandatory, which is a sponsorship for another nation, unless the Congress first decided so to do; and you will remember not so very many months ago the President asked the Congress—the Senate I believe it was—for an indorsement of the acceptance of a mandate for Armenia, and the Senate, as politely as it knew how, said "No."

Why? Why, Armenia had been selected for our special charge at the Council of the Peace Commission: Armenia was Christian; Armenia had suffered starvation and massacre—probably as no other people on the face of the earth; we were giving up a million a month out of the American private purse to keep those people from starvation. I am not sure but what we are doing it to this day. I hope we are. God knows they need our sympathy and help, but at the peace table, when the question of Armenia came up, Great Britain took all the desirable territory on one side and France took all the desirable territory on the other side, and left for Uncle Sam the Armenians. (Applause.)

And the commission which made the investigation reported and said that our sponsorship for Armenia would require from 70,000 to 100,000 American soldiers, to be sent to far-off Armenia and be planted in the gateway between the Occident and the Orient, in the parthway of all the conflicts of the Old World; to be planted over there and involve us in all the conflicts of envy, and jealousy, and rivalry, that date back over 30 centuries of civilization. Ah, my countrymen, "No," the Senate said. "No mandatories without the consent of Congress, because if you planted our boys over there you would never get them home in all the world, and they might involve us in all the conflicts of the Old World." (Applause.)

The League Assembly.

Well, there was another reservation. I do not want to talk about all of them, but there was one that interested me very much. You will remember that the league has an assembly. There is some dispute about what the assembly is. One complaint arose as to the representation of America in the assembly. The President himself explained, and his defenders and supporters have repeatedly explained that the assembly is only

Senator Harding's Views on Continuation of Barge Line

IN answer to questions propounded by the Post-Dispatch at Union Station last night as he was preparing to depart, Senator Harding said he was in favor of the development of waterways, particularly the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, and that, if it is successful, he favors continuing the present barge line, but added the decidedly qualifying remark that he wasn't sure whether it could best be continued by the Government or under private ownership.

Friends of the barge line, anxious for its success as a permanent institution, have been particularly solicitous that it be continued under Government operation until it could be given a thorough trial under fair conditions.

In response to the general question of whether he favored the development of waterways, Senator Hardnig said: "Yes, I am in favor of it, particularly the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. I believe they should be developed, and that proper legislation should be passed and established for the interchange of rail and river transportation."

He was then asked if he favored continuing the Mississippi River present barge line.

"Are you using the barges here?" he inquired. When told that they were in use, he added: "Are they successful?"

The reporter replied that they were generally considered so, and Mayor Kiel, who was present, nodded agreement.

"I favored Government operation of the barge system during the war period," said the Senator. "I haven't studied the matter since then, and, offhand, could not make a statement of my attitude. If, however, the line is successful and has been of benefit to the Mississippi Valley, I not only favor continuing it, but also in enlarging the system." Then he added: "Whether that can be done better under Government operation or by private ownership, I am not prepared to say."

History of inland waterways operation has been that in the past, when private capital undertook to establish lines on the Mississippi River, the railroads promptly cut rates, resulting in putting private river lines out of business.

12,000 Cheer Harding in Big Coliseum Demonstration

gan "He kept us out of war," the Senator said: "Now they promise to do it permanently. God help America if they do not succeed better than in 1916." He said that if elected President he would pledge himself to do all in his power to keep America out of war "in odd years as well as in election years." He charged that at the time the pledge to keep America out of war was made, the Democratic party knew that war could not be averted.

For his part, he said, he would not have world peace at the cost of national honor or needless sacrifice of funds and America would accept peace not as a gift of the world, but as a right.

Plea for Foreign Trade.

While pledging himself to permit Congress to do the legislating if he should be elected President, he took occasion to compliment Senator Spencer, who is a candidate for reelection. He described him as "Selden P. Spencer, that able Senator of America."

The Senator then read his prepared speech on the expansion of foreign trade, in which he urged the need of finding new markets for American exports in South America, Asia, Oceania and Africa to take the place of the markets lost to America because of the depletion of Europe's buying power.

In a general way he advocated the use of the inland waterways to increase freight-carrying facilities and referred to the position of St. Louis on the Mississippi River as favorable to the development of waterway traffic.

He drew loud applause when he said "Open the great waterways as avenues of commerce," and added that St. Louis was in a position to have the advantage of river traffic to every quarter of the globe. This ended his prepared speech and he turned to other topics.

There was prolonged laughter when Senator Harding said: "It is time to put our house in order and adjust ourselves to the normal pursuits of a peaceful people" and a voice from the audience shouted: "Get the landlord, too."

Questioned About League.

A man in the balcony insistently called: "What are you going to do about the League of Nations?" This question was repeated so often that it constituted an interruption. There were cries of "Put him out."

"No, don't put him out," said Harding. "We'll put the Democrats out in November."

When quiet was restored he said: "Now I want to answer that question. Many have said I'm uncertain. As a member of the Senate I dealt with the League of Nations covenant. We had no choice except to deal with the document laid before us; to see if it was possible to safeguard America and enter the League of Nations."

After stating objections to the withdrawal and mandatory clauses and reasserting the oft-repeated statement that Great Britain would have six votes to one for the United States in the League Assembly, Senator Harding was again assailed with questions as to what he would do about the League of Nations. It was then he said he would never lay the league before the Senate with article 10 in it.

A man in the audience repeatedly called: "What about the Hitchcock reservations?" Senator Harding either did not hear him or ignored him.

Questions Bring Anecdote.

Gov. Cox, in his speech here last Monday night, read a letter in which President Wilson wrote to Senator Hitchcock that he would be pleased to accept reservations to the League covenant which Hitchcock had prepared and which subsequently were rejected by the Senate. This was in refutation of the charge that President Wilson demanded the acceptance of the covenant "without the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t".

There were more questions about the League from many sections of the audience. This impelled Senator Harding to tell a story about a blacksmith named Chandler Smith whom he knew when a boy.

"I used to keep flies off the horses for him," said the Senator, "and he used to say to me: 'Warren, you're a nice boy, but you ask me a lot of foolish questions when I have important work to do.' "

"Do you believe in a League of Nations?" shouted one of the questioners.

In reply Senator Harding said: "I believe in some sort of association of nations, but not in a supergovernment. The Government of the United States is good enough for me. The league takes the world and commits the members to maintain the present status for all time to come."

Restlessness in Audience.

The audience was becoming restless. Many were leaving the hall and there was a babel of questions in which only the words "The League" could be distinguished. Senator Spencer stepped forward and whispered to Senator Harding. The presidential candidate nodded his head and concluded with a short peroration in which he said he did not want America mortgaged to the Old World and asserted that there was no substitute for the Stars and Stripes.

Many persons clambered on the platform to shake hands with the candidate. He withdrew after a few minutes of handshaking and went to Union Station, where he boarded his train for his home in Marion, O., departing at 11:30 p. m. He will remain in Marion until Oct. 21 when he is scheduled to start on an eastern speaking trip, visiting Rochester, N. Y., and probably other cities.

Meeting Ended Busy Day.

Senator Harding's St. Louis meeting ended a busy day for him, one of the most strenuous of his campaigning. During the day he traveled from Indiana, across Illinois to St. Louis, delivering a dozen speeches, some at fixed meetings and others rear platform speeches at small towns.

He spoke in Greencastle and Terre Haute, Ind., and in Effingham and East St. Louis, Ill., in addition to the many times he responded to demands from crowds which had gathered at stations where he was not scheduled for speeches.

Three Overflow Meetings Entertained in Vacant Lot.

While the Harding meeting in the Coliseum was going on three consecutive overflow gatherings were entertained on a lot across the street, at the northeast corner of Jefferson avenue and Locust street, the first meeting beginning at 7 p. m. and the last one concluding at 11 p. m., almost an hour after the Coliseum meeting had adjourned. It was estimated that several hundred persons attended each of the overflow meetings.

The anti-League of Nations picture drama, "At the Cross Roads," followed by animated cartoons dealing with the same issue, was shown three times, after which the audiences were addressed by speakers, whose theme was the League of Nations. The pictures were thrown upon a screen which was suspended in the middle of Locust street.

TEXT OF HARDING SPEECH AT THE COLISEUM MEETING

a debating society after all, and it doesn't amount to anything.

Well, my countrymen, the assembly is where Great Britain had six votes to one for the United States of America. I did not object to Great Britain having six votes. I think the support of the mother country by the British colonies during the war was one of the finest things of our latter day civilization, and I liked England for asking a membership for her colonies in the assembly, but I do not care how fine the British colonies are, I do not care how much Britain asked it, if she has six votes in the debating society, I want six for the United States of America. (Applause.)

A voice: What about the Hitchcock reservation?

A voice: Put him out.

A voice from the Gallery: What about the Hitchcock reservation?

Cries: Put him out!

Senator Harding: No, no, no, officer please; Officer; Officer! Officer! Now, ladies and gentlemen, please be quiet. I hope the officer will not put the gentleman out. I am perfectly willing to answer his questions, only I insist on completing this gentleman's question over here. He asked me what I was going to do with the League of Nations.

Wouldn't Submit Article 10.

Well, I have been trying to tell you in the first place what I tried to do with it as a member of the Senate, but you see, when I am President, my relationship with the league covenant and the treaty changes very much. Then I become the negotiating agency. Then I lay before the Senate the treaty and the covenant, and I want to promise you now, and you in particular, as I promised all the United States of America, I will never lay the covenant before the Senate with article 10 in it. (Applause.) I hope that is a reasonable, clear and definite explanation.

A voice: Thank you. Thank you.

Senator Harding: Now, let me tell you why I won't. Article 10 is the heart of the league—the steel heart of the league. Article 10 means an armed military alliance with Europe. Article 10 means the rule of the world by force rather than the application of justice (applause). Article 10 says that the member nations undertake to respect and preserve the territorial integrity of member nations from outside aggression, and the Council of the league shall advise as a means to do so. What does that mean, my countrymen? That means that if we enter a solemn compact with the nations of the league to protect and preserve the territorial integrity, and some nation in Europe is assailed from without, and the Council meets and says "America, we need 100,000 of your boys to protect this member nation, then in all honor, whether Congress wishes it or not, America must send her sons (applause) or we would be guilty of the greatest betrayal ever perpetrated by a nation. (Applause.)

Save America's Honor!

I do not want to make a promise that America doesn't intend to keep; I do not want to pledge the world the sons of America to preserve the status quo of today unless we intend to do it. I want to save American boys and American honor at the same time. You say, "No, Senator, this cannot be done." Well, now, I will give you some information that is official. I am frank to say to you, I do not think our boys could be sent abroad if Congress didn't give its approval—not so long as we live under the Constitution, and God helping us, we are going to continue to live under the Constitution.

I was present when the President in the Foreign Relations Committe discussed this question, and Senator Knox asked the President if some nations were assailed from without, whether we would be under any legal obligation to participate in war in behalf or in the defense of that nation, and the President said: "No, not any legal obligation," and then instantly, he said: "But, we would be under an absolutely compelling moral obligation," (laughter and applause). And then I asked him if there were no obligations what is the use of it at all, and with reproof, he said: "Why, Senator, you surprise me; a moral obligation is infinitely more binding than a legal obligation." (Applause and laughter.) And among nations, I think it is, my countrymen. America never intends to make a contract she does not keep. (Applause.)

Voice from the audience: What are you going to do about Article X?

To "Consult Best Minds."

Senator Harding: Let me answer you fairly: It is a pretty difficult thing to say tonight just what I would do. I don't think your question is in good faith, but I will assume that it is. I said I would not accept it with Article 10 in it. When I am President I will tell you what I am going to do. (Applause.) I want to tell you. Let's be homey and nice, just among ourselves here.

You know, I like to tell this. When I am elected I am going to instantly consult the best minds in America and they are not going to be just men, either; there is going to be a representation of American womanhood. (Applause.) I am going to see what kind of a program the leading men of America think we can unite upon. I am going to do that because no program is possible unless America can unitedly get back of it. (Applause.) It is perfectly futile to talk about the league; the league has been rejected. (Applause.) I have said repeatedly, and I say it now, sir, that all we think is good in the league might well be saved. I am willing for that, and all that is bad in it should and will be rejected (applause.), but we are never going to contemplate a league designed to rule the world by force (applause), but I am going to tell you something else about it: We are not going to have——

Voices from the audience: Senator what are you going to do about

——

Senator Harding: One at a time. There used to be an old blacksmith over in the village where I live, a fine old chap named Chandler Smith; he was the village philosopher, and I used to loaf in his blacksmith shop and keep the flies off of the horses while he shod them, and like many another boy, I was always asking him questions, and one day he said to me: "Warren, you are a nice boy, but you ask me a lot of foolish questions when I got a lot of work to do" (laughter and applause).

Believes in "Association."

Now, let me see if I cannot make it still more clear. I want, my countrymen, for America to play her part in the new relationship of the world. I believe in some association of nations, call it a league, call it a society, call it an association, or what not. My objection to the league is that it creates super-government, and the government of the United States of America is good enough for me.

My further objection to the league is that it takes the world as readjusted after the peace conference and commits the members of the league to maintain that status for all time to come, and that, my countrymen, violates the inherent rights of the nation, and that undertakes——

Voice from the audience: What about the value of women's votes in Democratic Tennessee?

Chorus of voices: Put him out, put him out.

Senator Harding: I think, my countrymen——

Voices: Put him out, put him out.

Opposes Mortgage on U. S.

Senator Harding: My countrymen, let me conclude. It is futile to undertake to answer all the petty inquiries that might arise. I like to answer real questions of importance. I am always willing to do so. I was trying to say to you with all the sincerity of my heart I want our country to do all that it ought to do in the world; I want to find the means for America to exercise her leadership. The world recognizes the failure of the Versailles covenant.

The party now in power and seeking perpetuation in power could not make it effective if you elected a Democratic President. Something now must be done. Europe has recognized the blunder.

France has asked us to lead and give the benefit of American influence to a workable plan; England has admitted the failure and said America must suggest the way. I want America to make the most of its leadership. I want it to make the most of its example, but, listen, my countrymen, I want America to do it free and untrammeled.

I don't want America mortgaged to the old world. (Applause.) This is our United States. We of America have made this republic and it is the finest place in which to live on the face of the earth. This is free America. (Applause.) It is our free America, with equal rights under the Constitution, with the American ideals of freedom, with every American right to aspire, every American right to drink the waters of political right and stand erect in the atmosphere of American freedom and seek to breathe under guarantees of the Constitution and be confident of the reward as he learns to merit it.

For Just America.

There has only been one thing remiss in America. We haven't always educated or made possible for the citizenship in the great cities in the tenement section to take advantage of the education. But the opportunity is here. I like, my countrymen, a free America. I like, my countrymen, a righteous America—nay, a just America—America confident of itself and unafraid of its enemies from without, watchful of its enemies from within, with its face to the front, confident of the future, ready to go on under the Constitution and all its guarantees to the fulfillment of the destiny which must have inspired our founding fathers. Fear not, my countrymen, no matter what happens; no matter what the world asks, there is going to be no substitute in the United States of America for the Stars and Stripes of this Republic or ours.

HARDING DEFENDS ESCH-CUMMINS BILL AT EAST ST. LOUIS

Senator Harding defended the Esch-Cummins railroad bill as "the most progressive piece of legislation ever enacted," in a speech which he made in East St. Louis last night immediately preceding his appearance at the Coliseum here. East St. Louis is one of the most strongly unionized cities in the country, and a large percentage of the voters are railroad workers, whose unions have vigorously condemned the bill.

The speaker declared it "a new bill for the rights of labor." As a further recognition of the fact that he was speaking before an audience composed largely of laboring people, Senator Harding said: "I want the high wages of today to abide, on one condition—that the man drawing the high wage gives us 100 per cent efficiency."

The Republican candidate spoke from a platform against the north side of the city hall—the same platform from which Gov. Cox delivered an address last Monday night. The audience virtually filled City Hall Park, and was estimated by the police to number more than 5000. They stood during the speech, which lasted 22 minutes.

Much of the candidate's address was directed against the League of Nations covenant. "I do not favor moving the capital from Washington to a foreign capital of Europe—Geneva," he said.

The Harding party, including the Senator's wife, arrived at the Relay Depot at 6:50 o'clock, and was taken immediately to the speaking platform, where the candidate's appearance was greeted with a cheer. This was quickly hushed as Congressman William Rodenberg of East St. Louis came forward and introduced Mrs. Harding with the statement that "this is the first time a lady who is destined to become the first lady of the land has been presented to an East St. Louis audience." Mrs. Harding bowed and sat down, and then Congressman Rodenberg presented Senator Harding, who immediately began his prepared address.

East St. Louis politicians remarked afterward that the meeting was a remarkably quiet one for that city, which usually takes its politics rather seriously. There were no interruptions from the audience with the exception of those from one man who occasionally shouted "Amen," to the speaker's remarks. Following the candidate's speech, Len Small and William McKinley, Republican candidates respectively for Governor and Senator, were introduced with the brief statement that they will be heard at a meeting there Tuesday night. Then the party hurried to waiting automobiles and proceeded across the river.

The crowd dispersed quickly, there being little of the loitering to talk politics that has usually marked political rallies in the city in the past.

1,000,000 BRITISH MINERS ON STRIKE; MANY OTHERS IDLE

works of the Teeside were closed today, and about 20,000 men have been thrown out of employment. It is stated that all the works in this district will be idle after today. The local shipyards along the tees will be kept going, however, for a few days.

From Sheffield comes the report that while some of the big factories have supplies of coal sufficient for three weeks, the staple trades will be immediately affected, as the average supply of coal is sufficient for one week only. At the end of that time it is estimated there will be 80,000 steel, iron, engineering, cutlery and electroplate workers idle.

Shipping to Suffer.

On the marine side, ocean liners have been instructed to obtain bunker coal abroad as much as possible. Reports from Liverpool state that while this may ease the situation, the holdup of shipping will none the less be serious, and much disquietude is felt there.

Representatives of the United States Shipping Board stated this morning they had received assurances from the British Ministry of Shipping which gave the board reason for confidence that none of the American steamers would be tied up. The board sent a message to headquarters in America suggesting that all steamships sailing this way carry coal for the round trip.

Transatlantic passenger line officials this morning said there was no indication at present of restriction or alteration of the advertised sailings. The lines say the Government has not yet notified them not to put in bunker coal on this side.

It is declared possible that Transatlantic passengers may be excluded from the steamers on their return trips to the United Kingdom to conserve space for carrying foodstuffs. The larger liners, however, are not well adapted to the carrying out of this idea, as they are intended only for passenger service and have little cargo space.

The Cunard Line stated that the Mauretania would sail today, and there are no indications that the future service of the line will be interrupted.

The executive of the Transport Workers' Federation has called a meeting for Monday, and a conference of the rail men and the transport workers will be held on the same day to consider the attitude toward the miners' strike of the two other branches of the "Triple Alliance."

It is probable gasoline and perishable foodstuffs will be carried on passenger trains.

Plans for Rationing Food.

Plans made by the Ministry of Food for use if the trouble extends, are on a more comprehensive scale than during last year's coal strike. The country has been partitioned into 14 divisions with a divisional commissioner for each area who will be responsible for it.

Hyde Park will be used as London's central clearing house for milk and the dispatch of foodstuffs into the districts covered by the milk lorries. Labor organizations may co-operate with the Ministry of Food in the distribution. The sugar ration will be reduced by half immediately, and other commodities rationed when it becomes necessary.

Traffic

The economy of the Traffic has been proved in practice, not theory. It is returning a greater profit than any other transportation unit to thousands of owners. The Traffic hauls a 4000-lb. load 14 miles in one hour for 30c worth of gasoline. Its low price of $1595, made possible by quantity production, saves hundreds of dollars in first and last cost. It is the lowest priced 4000-lb. capacity truck in the world.

In a list of fifteen leading makes of automobiles, ranging in price from $1200 to $6000, an analysis of prices prior to recent reductions is illuminating.

It shows that, in percentage increase since 1917, the Franklin ranks fourth from the lowest. The Franklin percentage differs from the lowest record by only 12%, while it shows a margin of 54% below the highest increase.

In the light of these comparisons, it is plain that the Franklin Car represents by far the greatest value among automobiles today.

HYDE OUTLINES STAND ON STATE ISSUES IN SPEECH

Republican Nominee for Governor Indorses Amendment Enabling Soldiers to Obtain Rural Homes.

SAYS HE FAVORS MORE PAY FOR TEACHERS

Declares That Boards of Control of Missouri Institutions Should Be Taken Out of Politics.

Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor, in a speech last night in the Coliseum when the crowd was waiting for the arrival of Senator Harding, discussed State issues and outlined a program of pledges in much greater detail than in any previous speech of his campaign.

Unqualified indorsement was given by Hyde to Constitutional Amendment No. 9, providing for a $1,000,000 allotment to enable soldiers, sailors and marines to obtain rural homes or establish themselves in business, "as a debt of gratitude owed to the soldiers by the people of the State."

He declared he stood for better pay for school teachers and a retirement provision for teachers; better schools and increased facilities in both white and colored schools, "not opening the same school to both white and colored, but improving the educational advantages of both."

"We have no feeling of hostility to any private school," he said, "and no animosity toward the schools of any institution."

Favors Compulsory Education.

The Republican party in the State, he said, favored the enactment of a compulsory education law "with teeth in it," and a mother's pension bill "so that every boy and girl can go to school and not have to enter industry at too tender an age."

He promised, if elected Governor, to bring together in council the best educators of the State to work out an educational program "and when that is done," he said, "I shall put every ounce of power I have into putting that plan into effect."

He urged the adoption of the $60,000,000 road bond issue to provide a State-wide hard system of roads which could be traveled every day in the year.

Announcing himself as long an advocate of a New Constitution just as soon as it could be drawn by a convention not controlled under the Democratic gerrymander of senatorial districts, he said the plan of the New Constitution Association of Missouri, as provided in Constitutional Amendment No. 15, provided that plan.

Denouncing the plan of having a different board of control for each eleemosynary and charitable institution as uneconomic and wasteful, he advocated one Board of Control for all such institutions. "There should be a scientific, humane and non-political control of State charitable and penal institutions," he said.

"They should be taken out of politics," he continued; "and conducted with the humanitarian object the State has in view. In an interview in a great St. Louis newspaper (the Post-Dispatch), soon after my nomination, I called attention to information which had come to me that hardened criminals, men who had served several terms, were being released from the penitentiary through political influence, while first offenders without such influence, men entitled to clemency, were compelled to serve their full terms.

Letter From Pool.

"I afterward had a letter from J. Kelly Pool, a member of the Prison Board, who said that not to exceed 10 per cent and possibly not more than 5 per cent of the paroles issued were on recommendation of politicians.

"I'll say that if even one per cent, or even if in one case, a convict was released through political pull, that is one too many.

"I believe it is the duty of the State to find every convict a job when he goes out of the penitentiary. It is not enough to provide him with a bum pair of shoes, a cheap suit and a $5 bill."

Hyde renewed his criticism of the Gardner administration and the State tax burden. "The last eight years has been a period of advancing taxation in Missouri," he said, "without a corresponding increase in service. In the four years Gov. Hadley (a Republican) was in office there was collected in taxes for the general revenue fund of the State $19,300,000. In the four years of Gov. Major's term there was collected $21,600,000, and when the four years of Gov. Gardner's administration has ended there will have been collected $36,900,000, or $17,600,000 more in Gov. Gardner's administration than in Gov. Hadley's.

"Gov. Gardner will not admit this, but you do not have to take his word, nor mine. Go home and look at your tax receipts on the same piece of property."

Friendly to Labor.

He repeated his previous declaration on labor, saying he stood for "full recognition and protection of the rights of labor, not because labor has votes, but because labor has rights."

He urged ratification of the Workmen's Compensation bill at the November election, and increased appropriations for the public health service.

"I stand for honest elections," he said, "whether in primary or general election, whether in Kansas City or St. Louis. Every Missourian is entitled to one ballot and only one. I have been accused of talking only about honest elections in Kansas City. My opponent has said I should talk about St. Louis. In this connection I want to ask my opponent two simple questions:

" 'Do you claim elections in Kansas City are honest?'

" 'Do you claim elections in St. Louis are stolen?'

"I have asked these questions before, but he has failed and refused to answer them. His silence is pregnant with meaning, abysmal, the silence is almost clamorous.

"The Governor has power to give any part of the State honest elections. If they are not honest I demand that he make them honest. If they are honest I demand that he cease pointing to the Republican majority in St. Louis as an excuse for stealing in Kansas City."

On Taxation Question.

On the taxation question, he said there must be a fair and equitable solution. "I am not in favor of a paid tax commission," he said, "but if I am elected Governor I will have a body of bankers, lawyers, merchants, laboring men, farmers, men in every walk of life, to work out a fair, just and equitable program, and I will see that it becomes the law."

When he reached this point in his speech, Senator Harding reached the Coliseum and Hyde was stopped by the applause for Harding.

Hyde was given an ovation when he was introduced by Senator Spencer, the applause continuing more than two minutes. Senator Spencer did not deliver an address. He was applauded when he called the meeting to order.

CHAIRMAN WHITE SAYS DES MOINES SPEECH MADE ISSUE

Declares Harding Spoke Real Sentiments Once and Can't Escape Consequences.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a statement here today, declared he could visualize Senator Harding "shaking in his shoes" because of his speech at Indianapolis last night.

In this speech, White asserted, the Republican presidential candidate had attempted to deliver to 31 Republicans who recently advocated his election on his League of Nations stand, what his managers promised them "if they would come to his rescue."

"What effect the Indianapolis wobble may have on Senators Johnson and Borah it must be seen," said White. "I, for one, give Johnson and Borah this credit that they are sincere in their opposition to 'the' league and 'a' league and will not accept a wink of the other eye.

"Senator Harding only once broke away from his guards and spoke his real feeling and the democratic campaign has taken that as his stand. 'I do not want any clarification reservations,' he said at Des Moines. 'I want to turn my back on these obligations. I stand for rejection.'

"On that issue of the league or no league, the campaign will be fought out and decided. Let him wiggle or let him wabble; he spoke his real sentiments once, and he will not be permitted to escape the consequences of them.

"The Indianapolis statement is ridiculous, because there can be no such association as Mr. Harding speaks of. We shall not be permitted by the 39 league members to pick it to pieces. Article 20 of the covenant alone prevents consideration of this proposed 'bush league.' "

Bonus Discontinued; Strike Called.
By the Associated Press.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 16.—Labor unions today took steps to meet what they said was the first attempt to reduce wages of shoe workers here. A general strike was authorized by the Joint Council of the United Shoe Workers of America in the plant of L. W. Kenney & Co., which had announced that it would discontinue the payment of bonuses. The strike order is effective Tuesday. About 300 operatives are employed at the plant. The company explained the discontinuance of bonus payments as due to poor market conditions.

HARDING ASSERTS HE WAS MISQUOTED ON FRENCH REQUEST

Declares He Did Not Say "a Spokesman of France" Talked to Him About Association of Nations.

The Associated Press and other news associations yesterday and last night carried dispatches from three towns in which Senator Harding, Republican presidential candidate, spoke yesterday en route to St. Louis, quoting him as declaring that he had been approached by a "spokesman" for France, asking that America lead the way in the formation of a world association of nations. The towns were Greencastle, Ind., Terre Haute, Ind., and Effingham, Ill.

In the Greencastle dispatches, Senator Harding was quoted as saying:

"I notice in the morning papers that the Secretary of State has said that the kind of world association I am promising cannot be made with anybody except the nations now out of the President's league. Secretary Colby speaks for the State Department of our own America, and he ought to be prudent and thoughtful about what he says.

"But he says that America, under a proposed association, can only associate with the Central Empires and Turkey and a few other nations with whom we are engaged in war. Why, my countrymen, France is asking; France has sent her spokesman to me informally, asking America in its new realization of the situation, to lead the way for an association of nations."

Other Dispatches Virtually Same.

Dispatches sent out by news associations whose correspondents are in the Senator's traveling party, from the other two towns used virtually the same language. The associations are entirely independent of each other.

Senator Harding, seen at Union Station last night by a Post-Dispatch reporter, following the Coliseum meeting, said, in commenting on the dispatches:

"I did not see the copy of my remarks that was sent out, but I am sure I didn't say that. What I did say was that a citizen of France had seen me and wanted me to aid in the formation of an association of nations. I didn't say that any official representative of France saw me, because, of course, none would."

"Who was the citizen?" the reporter asked.

"Well, I wouldn't care to say that, but he was not in any official capacity," Senator Harding replied.

What Colby Said.

The statement to which Senator Harding was referring in his Greencastle, Effingham and Terre Haute speeches was made by Secretary Colby at Soldan High School in this city during his speech Thursday night, in which he quoted article 20 of the League of Nations covenant under which all other associations and alliances of nations already, or which in the future may be, admitted to the league, as being, by this act, abrogated and abolished if in any way inconsistent with the existing covenant. This article reads as follows:

> The members of the league severally agree that this covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations or understandings among themselves which are inconsistent with the terms thereof, and solemnly undertake that they will not hereafter enter into any engagements inconsistent with the terms thereof. * * ***

Associated Press Version.

An Associated Press dispatch from Effingham, which was sent out later than that from Greencastle, quoted the Republican candidate as saying that "a spokesman of France had been sent to him to ask that America lead the way in the formation of a world association."

A dispatch from Terre Haute reported the Senator as saying in his speech there that "France had sent a representative to him requesting that America lead the way in the formation of an association of nations for the security of international peace and justice."

It was obvious that a serious situation might result if such advances actually had been made by a representative of the French Government, as it would amount to an assumption by that Government that Senator Harding would be the next President. An assumption of this sort would naturally be regarded as an affront to the present administration, and likely as an intrusion by France in the internal political affairs of this country. It was in view of these evident facts that the Post-Dispatch asked Senator Harding for a statement about the matter.

COX SAYS WAVE OF RESENTMENT ENGULFS HARDING

Governor at his women's meeting was whether the League would stop Jewish persecutions. The Governor replied the League is "an assembly of the morality of the world—and persecution of any people for religious creed or anything else would be resented."

Another woman asked why the League had not stopped war between Russia and Poland and "twenty-three other wars," and the Governor replied that Russia was not a League member. League decisions, he added, require unanimous agreement and the members could not agree, he said, regarding a course of action relative to Poland.

An automobile parade through the main streets to his hotel was a feature of the Governor's reception here. He will remain over Sunday and, opening the last two weeks of the campaign next Monday in northern New York, will visit the principal cities of the East and Middle West before election day.

Coleman du Pont, Gov. Cox said in his speech tonight, is not a traveling man, but "the Krupp of America." Citing his own position for the League of Nations and that of Senator Harding, Gov. Cox said that the Du Pont family had "grown financially fat and insolent on the profits of war," and that he was not surprised that Du Pont was opposing his election.

Urging larger participation of women in national affairs and citing social legislation enacted during his gubernatorial administration, the Governor told an audience of women at a nonpartisan meeting at a local hotel, that there was "much to be done for human welfare and social progress." He also championed the League of Nations as a measure to protect women and children from the horrors of war.

Experience in Ohio.

"From my experience in Ohio," said he Governor, "you may know what to expect when I am elected President. There is much to be done for human welfare and social progress. We must stamp out disease, oppression and ignorance and eliminate neglect. With woman only at the threshold of political work in America I cannot call upon you for congressional action, but we can work in common purpose with common counsel, and it would seem to me perfectly proper and fitting that a national meeting be called of representatives of every woman's organization in America to formulate a program for Congress and the executive for social legislation and administration."

Bureau of Education.

Regarding the Bureau of Educations, Gov. Cox said:

"At present the Federal Bureau of Education is buried with a varied assortment of national business in the Department of the Interior. My opponent has spoken recently for a new department of public welfare under which to group certain social welfare activities. While I am in hearty accord with the idea of housecleaning our Government departments, and sorting out the human from the technical problems, I feel that we should look forward to giving education and health equal consideration with labor, instead of lumping all social questions again in another grab-bag, ill-defined department."

In the last Congress, Gov. Cox charged, a "baby's bill," providing for maternity and infant care "waited in vain while reactionary leaders spent their time 'scrapping' the League of Nations."

Treasury Certificates Subscriptions.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Total subscriptions to the last issue of Treasury certificates maturing March 15, 1921, amounted to $185,076,500, Secretary Houston announced tonight. The amount offered was $100,000,000 or thereabouts, and the total amount of subscriptions allotted was $124,252,500.

AUTHOR OF "MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH" IS FOR COX

Alice Hegan Rice and Husband, Former Hoover Supporters, for Democrats on League Issue.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 16.—Alice Hegan Rice, author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and her husband, Cale Younger Rice, one of the best known poets of America, both will vote for Cox and support the League of Nations. Both are independents and were chief movers in the Hoover Club of Kentucky.

"I have always registered as an independent and voted as such," said Rice. "Both Mrs. Rice and I were supporters of Herbert Hoover and would have followed him into either party. Mr. Hoover has proved a great disappointment. Of course, we are for the League of Nations. We could not vote any other way and be for it."

"The League of Nations epitomizes my reasons," said Mrs. Rice. "I am heart and soul with the cause."

Kennard's Home Furnishings

Floor Coverings Lastingly Beautiful and Satisfying

Kennard's prices for Domestic Rugs and Carpets have been adjusted to a basis where decided savings may now be made on all purchases.

Rugs

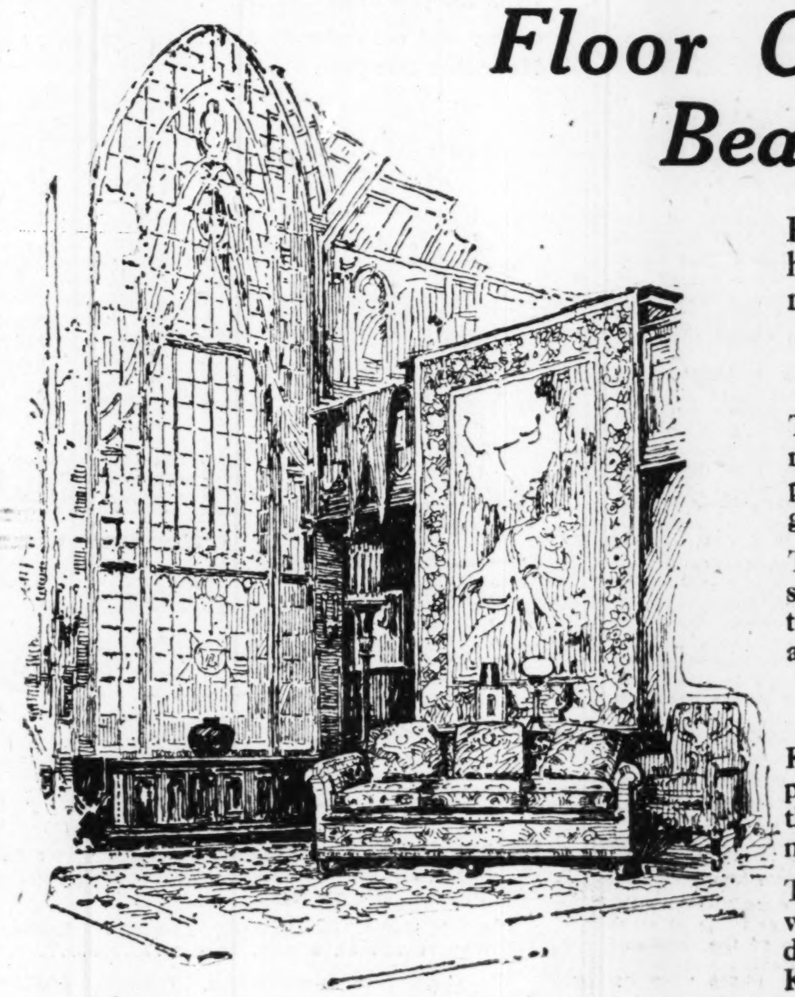
The great pleasure taken in owning any Kennard's Rugs is not only due to the long service rendered, but also to their appearance, which is invariably distinctive and indicative of good taste on the part of the purchaser.

The number of designs, variety of colorings, and range of sizes of the Rugs shown here are so great that it will be easy to secure the Rugs necessary to complete the inviting appearance of your home.

Carpets

Kennard's Carpets offer fully as wide a range of choice as is presented by the Rugs. In plain and all-over patterns to cover the floor completely, or made up into Rugs, Carpets solve many problems in decorations very satisfactorily.

The various qualities are shown in regular and extra-wide widths. Stair Carpets to match are also carried. The demand for Carpets is increasing and the assortments at Kennard's are adequate to meet any requirement.



Furniture for Living Rooms, Dining Rooms, Bedrooms

The Furniture shown at Kennard's has a decidedly distinctive appearance, whether reproductions of the various periods or original American designs. Sincerity of workmanship accounts for much, but the careful selection which makes each piece individually desirable is also to be considered.

Whatever you have set your heart on, a complete suite, a partial suite or an occasional chair, table, desk or other single appointment, you will find exactly what you wish, moderately priced.

Very often there is a vacant space in a room here and there which requires something to fill out an oppressive incompleteness.

An inspection of the beautiful creations so profusely shown will prove abounding in pleasing suggestions.

Modish Draperies for Doorways and Windows

It is surprising how much decoration and how much comfort are afforded by the small amounts that can be expended for draperies. You can make your doorways art entrances; you can give to your windows a most charming setting—and all for a moderate sum.

Yard materials and made-up curtains are shown in great variety. See the new Silk Damask, Sunfast Damask, Casement Cloth, the imported Madras, the Velours, and the Velvets. Of made-up curtains, the new Ruffled Voile are extremely smart and quite reasonably priced.

M'ADOO ASSAILS ESCH-CUMMINS LAW

Says It Has Cost People $634,652,350; Made a Gift of $8,986,891 to One Road.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—An attack on the Esch-Cummins transportation bill was made here tonight by William G. McAdoo who quoted Senator Harding as saying it was the most progressive and constructive measure in a decade. McAdoo declared that the bill was not a progressive measure, but "a regressive measure of the most pronounced sort."

"The Esch-Cummins bill ordered the railroads returned to their owners March 1, 1920, guaranteed the companies against operation losses for six months, while allowing them entire control of expenditures, and gave them in addition a 'rental' for six months of $452,517,568, although the Government was no longer renting or running the railroads," said McAdoo.

"For the six months ending Aug. 31, 1920 (August estimated) the private operators made a loss of $182,134,790. The taxpayers of the United States are, therefore, required by the Esch-Cummins bill to pay this loss, plus the rental of $452,517,568, or a total for the six months of $634,652,350. This gift from the Federal treasury is the first 'blessing' the 'progressive Esch-Cummins bill' has conferred upon the public.

"The Esch-Cummins bill has just increased freight rates from 25 to 40 per cent, passenger rates 25 per cent and Pullman rates 50 per cent—thereby putting a new burden on the American people of approximately $1,700,000,000 per annum.

"The Esch-Cummins bill has produced a serious car shortage in the country.

"The Esch-Cummins bill has also restored the objectionable priority shipment plan in railroad operation.

"The princely gift of $634,652,358 made by the Esch-Cummins bill, to be paid out of the United States treasury to bondholders and stockholders of the railroads, is indefensible. It was made without any consideration whatever to the public.

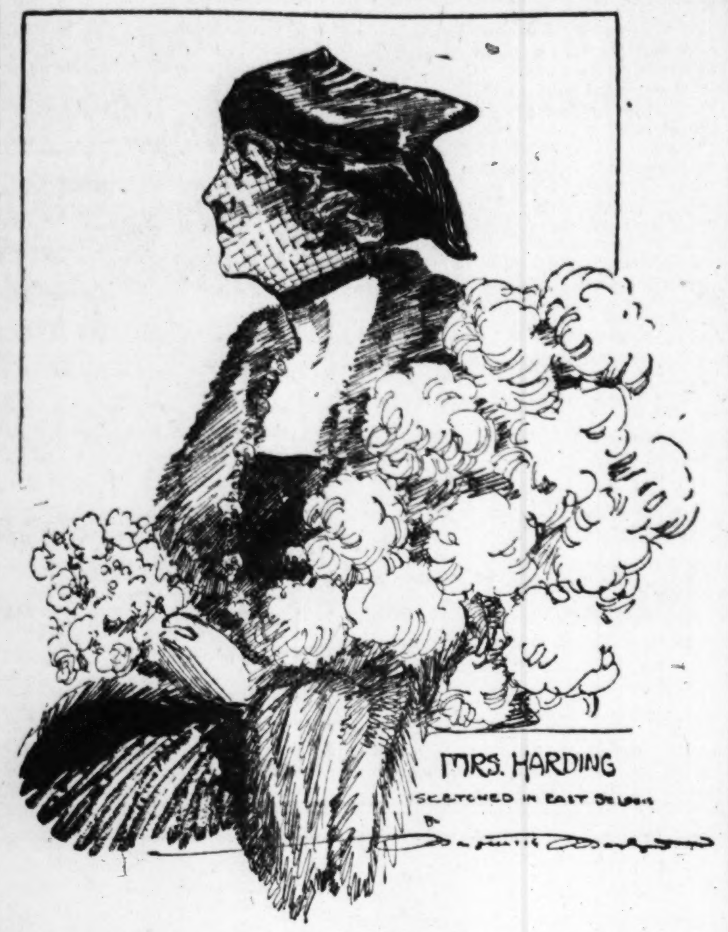
"In this connection let me cite a striking instance of one of the effects produced by Senator Harding's 'progressive and constructive' Esch-Cummins railroad bill:

"One of the most prosperous railroads in the United States, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, is participating in this princely gift, and yet on Sept. 16, 1920, it filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington a petition for authority to issue additional stock to the full amount of its surplus, ($90,000,00) and to distribute it as a 200 per cent stock dividend to its shareholders. Hence they need no gift from the United States Treasury, and yet, under the Esch-Cummins bill this rich anthracite coal railroad company will receive from the treasury the sum of $8,986,891 on a claim for $1,112,153 of loss made by the corporation under private management in operating the railroad for the six months ended Aug. 31, and for the 'rental' of $7,874,738 which the Esch-Cummins' bill presented to the railroad company.

"It is an interesting fact that this same Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad was operated by the Government for the war-year 1918 and earned net the entire rental for that year, namely $15,749,476, and a surplus of $225,000 besides. Under private management this road was operated for six months in 1920 at a deficit which would equal for the year $17,937,984."

McAdoo during the day addressed large crowds at Peru and at Logansport. He declared that the bill guaranteed the railroad owners 6 per cent interest on their investment for two years after the return of the roads to private ownership while the employes are guaranteed only against a reduction in wages for a period of six months.

Mrs. Harding Wears Her Old Clothes on Campaign Trip



MRS. HARDING
SKETCHED IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Eyes of Senator's Wife Her Distinctive Feature—Camera Men's Flash Explosions Distract Her Attention From Husband in East St. Lonis Speech.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

WHEN Mrs. Harding goes campaigning with her husband she wears her old clothes, if that be any indication of character, and most women will agree that it is; for where is the woman who could resist having a new and impressive outfit of clothes when on probation, as it were, for First Lady of the Land? So many women's votes to attract now, too.

In St. Louis last night she wore a straw hat, dark purple in color and Tam o' Shanter in shape, draped with the same shade of ciro ribbon. She wore a dark blue georgette gown trimmed with black beads. Every woman will at once place the vintage of that fashion. And a moleskin scarf about her shoulders. A snug veil covered hat and hair and even her eyeglasses.

Her cheeks were quite pink from the hurry and bustle and excitement of the meeting. On the whole, she looks younger than her gray hair and her photographs give her credit for.

Her most distinctive features are her eyes, which are unusually long, blue in color, with an upturned cast and kindly expression, twinkling and crinkling into frequent smiles. It seemed to the observer that she scarcely took her eyes off her husband, all the time he spoke, sitting well forward in her chair, alert, intently listening. Only the frequent explosions of the flashes of the camera men, at the East St. Louis meeting, distracted her. She would start at each explosion and at last beckoned to a secret service man, who leane dover the railing and then the photographers ceased their operations.

Large reception committees of women representatives of Republican organizations surrounded Mrs. Harding on the platforms at both the St. Louis and East St. Louis meetings. On the East Side they gave her an enormous bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, and at the Coliseum a cluster of eight dozen American beauty roses. But so rapidly were the distinguished visitors hustled from one place to another that the candidate's wife had no opportunity to say more than "Thank you for your courtesy," which she repeated all along the line, seizing a hand here and there in the crowd that pressed about as the party almost ran from automobile to platform and back to automobile again.

R. S. HAWES URGES BANKERS TO VOTE FOR NEW CONSTITUTION

R. S. Hawes, vice president of the First National Bank, has sent out a letter as chairman of the Committee on a New Constitution for Missouri of the Missouri Bankers' Association, urging the 1200 member banks of the State to get their friends to vote for Amendment No. 15 as the first step in the direction of a non-partisan constitutional convention which will revise the present State Constitution.

Recently new constitution talks and resolutions were made at eight group conventions of the Missouri Bankers' Association.

There are about 15,000 bank directors in Missouri, and it is believed that hundreds of thousands of votes for the new constitution will be cast by bank depositors, more or less influenced by the leadership of their bankers.

BOND JUMPER, WANTED HERE, HELD IN MICHIGAN

Frederick R. Burke, Charged With Forgery, Arrested Following Prison Release.

Frederick R. Burke, a Kansas City real estate dealer, who jumped a $3000 bond after his arrest here in November, 1917, on a charge of forging deeds of trust on which he attempted to borrow money, is held for the St. Louis police in Jackson, Mich., where he was released last Thursday from the Michigan penitentiary. He had been paroled from a sentence of from one to five years for forging deeds of trust in Detroit, under an alias of Thomas Amos Camp.

Burke was arrested here in the office of the Papin & Tontrup Real Estate Co., 626 Chestnut street, after he had negotiated a loan of $1250 from N. S. Woods of 626 Chestnut street under a deed of trust on a lot adjoining 6309 Pershing avenue. He said that he had obtained the lot from "Forest L. Manlove of 705 North Channing avenue" in exchange for 640 acres of land in Taney County, Mo.

It was established that Burke did not own the lot, but that he had filed a deed in Clayton purporting to convey it to himself. In his room at the Y. M. C. A. the police found a notary seal and a number of blank warranty deeds. Detective Harry Doherty has gone to Jackson to bring Burke to St. Louis.

BOY PICKS UP LIVE WIRE; BECOMES ENTANGLED, DIES

Eugene Payne, 13, Killed Upon Touching Broken Strand on Vacant Lot.

Eugene Payne, 13 years old, of 2115 South Jefferson avenue, was electrocuted at 8:30 a. m. yesterday in a lot in the rear of 3133 Hawthorne boulevard, when he attempted to pick up a live wire of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. which was lying on the ground. His left hand was burned off at the wrist, several fingers were burned from his right hand and his face and body were severely burned when he fell and became entangled in the curling wire.

David Teasdale, 17, of 3024 Hawthorne boulevard, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the wire was down when he passed through the lot at 5:30 p. m., Friday. He said that he noticed some leaves burning and that when he tried to extinguish the blaze his foot came in contact with the sputtering wire and he was shocked. He said he telephoned to the Soulard Street Police Station and that the telephone operator promised to send a policeman to investigate. Teasdale said he waited an hour, to warn others, and that when no policeman appeared he went home.

326 Births, 187 Deaths in Week.

There were 326 births and 187 deaths recorded in St. Louis last week. Twenty-nine died of organic heart trouble, 19 of cancer, 13 of Bright's disease, 16 of pneumonia, 12 of diseases of the circulatory system and 11 of tuberculosis. There were 11 accidental deaths, three suicides, two homicides and one death of criminal carelessness.

Nebraska Should Prosecute Notre Dame for Running Brandy Across Its Line

PIKERS RALLY AT CLOSE AND BEAT GRINNELL, 23-14

Touchdown and Drop Kick in Final Quarter Save Washington From Impending Defeat by Weaker Foe.

GRINNELL, Ia., Oct. 16—Washington University's football machine was staring defeat in the face this afternoon until the final quarter of the game with Grinnell, when Fred Potthoff and Tommy Thompson rallied and by their united efforts turned the well-known "almost certain defeat" into a victory. The score, after Thompson and Potthoff had done their trick, was 23 to 14, and prior to their efforts Grinnell was leading the Pikers 14 to 13, in the St. Louisans' first 1920 Missouri Valley Conference struggle.

Thompson was the big hero of the afternoon. The diminutive quarterback was on the side lines when the Pikers, one point to the bad, forged within striking distance of the Grinnell goal. Straight football attacks at the enemy had proved futile and the Pikeway forces decided to inject Tommy into the game long enough to make a last effort to turn the tide. Tommy went in cold, took a snap from the center and, with the Ames defense rushing toward him, coolly booted a drop-kick squarely between the goal posts. The kick was from the 40-yard mark.

The kick put the Pikers two points to the good and turned back into the Piker pockets a bundle of 3 to 1 money that loyal students had toted and sent to Grinnell to be wagered on their pets.

Petthoff made victory more sure a few moments later when he dashed around end for 20 yards and a touchdown after Berger had intercepted a pass and brought the ball to within striking distance.

Washington started with a rush in the first quarter and after a march down the field Griesedieck made eight yards on an off tackle play, scoring a touchdown. Thompson missed the kick.

Piker Defense Crumbles.

The Washington defense crumbled at this point and Ames started a drive down the field which the Pikers were unable to halt. The Red and Green held twice on their ten-yard line but on the third attempt Markley eluded tacklers and skirted an end for a touchdown. Parker put Grinnell in the lead by kicking the goal.

Washington advances in the balance of the half were nullified by penalties and before the whistle sent the players to their mid-game rest Markley dashed around end and sped 60 yards for Grinnell's second touchdown. Parker again booted the ball between the posts, making the score Grinnell 14, Washington 13.

Coach Rider sent in a number of substitutes in the second half and the fresh squad started with a rush. Several times the ball was carried to within the shadows of the Grinnell goal, only to have a fumble nullify a series of gains. Just before the close of the third period Griesedieck passed to Kremer behind the Grinnell line and when Griesedieck kicked the goal, Grinnell's lead was cut to one point.

With the ball on Grinnell's 30-yard line in the fourth quarter, three smashes at the line failed to advance the ball. Then came Thompson, his drop-kick, and Potthoff's touchdown. It was a narrow squeak, however, and it was a sober and wiser squad of Pikers that departed tonight for their home dormitories.

Emporia Normal Holds Kansas Aggies to Tie

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 16.—Emporia Normal played the Kansas Aggies to a 7-to-7 tie here today in a football exhibition of evenly matched matched teams. The Teachers made their touchdown in the second quarter following a costly Aggie fumble, which was recovered by Hatcher of Emporia on the Aggie's 30-yard line. Following a series of well played line plunges, end runs and a forward pass, Dillon carried it over, Koch kicked goal.

A forward pass, Hinds to Evans, followed by a brilliant run of 15 yards gave the Aggies their counter in the final quarter. Huston kicked goal.

Brandy and Gipp Put Nebraska Out of It

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 16.—Notre Dame defeated Nebraska today, 16 to 7, in a game that was full of thrills. Several times the record-breaking crowd witnessing the game fully expected the Cornhuskers to emerge victorious.

Gipp, left half for the Indiana team, was directly responsible for eight of the 16 points scored by Notre Dame. Brandy, Notre Dame quarterback, scored the first touchdown for the Indiana aggregation in the second quarter.

Nebraska made all of its points in the second quarter when Hubka went over for a touchdown from the 1-foot line. Capt. Day kicked the goal.

A safety in the first period was responsible for Notre Dame's first points.

Jayhawkers Win From Drake, 7-3

Forward Passes Near Close of Second Period Net Game's Only Touchdown.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 16.—Kansas won her opening Missouri Valley conference football game from Drake her by a 7-to-3 score on McCook Field this afternoon. The game was hard fought, but loosely played in spots. Both teams made many fumbles, but also succeeded in recovering nearly all of their own fumbles.

Drake opened the scoring a few minutes before the close of the first quarter when Brindley, quarterback, made a perfect drop kick from the 55-yard line. The ball had been placed on the 55-yard line by Brindley, who received a punt by Lonborg, Kansas quarterback, and made a 15-yard return of the punt to that place.

The Kansas touchdown came a few minutes before the close of the second quarter. Kansas gained possession of the ball when Lonborg returned a punt by Bindley 15 yards to the Drake 25-yard line. A pass by Lonborg to Mandeville netted 15 yards placing the ball on the Drake 11-yard line. Lonborg completed another short pass to Mandeville who caught it on the 5-yard line and plunged over the goal line for the only touchdown of the game. Sandefur kicked goal, making the score 7 to 3 in favor of Kansas.

No Score in Second Half.

Neither team succeeded in scoring during the last half, although Kansas threatened the Drake goal line several times.

The lineup:

FRENCH STARS AS ARMY BEATS SPRINGFIELD, 26-7

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The Army eleven defeated Springfield College today, 26 to 7. The Cadets used their reserves in the second and fourth periods. Springfield failed utterly against the varsity. French, the fast Army fullback, distinguished himself again today by his spectacular dashes through the line and around end for long gains.

The Army substitutes were scored on in the second period, when the coaches had sent in an entirely new eleven. It was the first touchdown of the season against the Army.

Cavalry Polo Results.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Oct. 16.—The Fifteenth Cavalry Officers' polo team from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., was defeated here, today, by a Camp Funston team, in the opening game of the polo tournament of the Central Department United States Army. The score was 8 to 5.

Ben Millers Play Innisfails Today

Scullins and Screw Co. Meet in Opening Tilt of Soccer League Twin Bill.

Billy Quinn, considered by many as the best center halfback in the country today, and Jimmy Dunn, the crack center forward, are expected to rejoin the Ben Millers today for the game with the Innisfails at Cardinal Field, the headline attraction of the St. Louis Soccer League's double-header. Quinn and Dunn were missing when the Millers opened the season against the Scullins last Sunday.

Willie Foley, manager of the Innisfails, will depend considerably upon new talent to halt the Millers. Daly, a fullback; Snyder, a halfback and Quinn and Oster, forwards, all recruited from the Municipal League ranks, will be in the Innisfails lineup. The veterans still on Foley's club are Barnett, goal keeper; Vaughan, Schweppe, Peterson, Fitzgerald, Mitchell and McCaffery.

The opening game of the double-header will be betwen the St. Louis Screw Co. and the Scullins, starting at 2:15 o'clock. Phil Kavanaugh and Paul McSweeney will again divide the job of refereeing the contests.

DARTMOUTH DEFEATS HOLY CROSS, 27 TO 14

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 16.—Dartmouth defeated Holy Cross here today, 27 to 14. Holy Cross scored first after Frazer fumbled the kickoff and Gagnon recovered and made a forward pass to Simondinger who went over the goal line. In the same period green attack crashed through for two scores. Dartmouth scored two more touchdowns in the final period and a forward pass, followed by a plunge by Smith, tallied a touchdown for Holy Cross with 4 minutes to play.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brady yesterday won the final of the married couples tennis tournament at Triple A by defeating Dr. and Mrs. L. K. Canouse, 9—7, 6—4.

Scholastic Teams Gain Victories in Practice Contests

Soldan Beats Billiken Freshmen, 7-0; Yeatman Trims Principia; McKinley Wins Easily.

The football teams of four of the high schools completed their series of practice games, preparatory to the official opening of the interscholastic season Saturday, with victories, yesterday. The Soldan team won an exciting game from the St. Louis University freshmen in the feature contest at High School Field, 7 to 0; Yeatman defeated the strong Principia eleven, 14 to 7; and McKinley walked over Belleville High School, 67 to 0, in the morning game. Central defeated St. Louis U. High, 16 to 7.

The Soldan-St. Louis U. game was keenly contested from the opening whistle until the close of the last quarter. Although the frosh were minus the services of five men who made the trip to Detroit with the varsity, they put up a scrappy game throughout. Soldan scored the only touchdown of the contest shortly after the first kick-off, when Fullback Hirsch broke through the freshman line, recovered a St. Louis U. fumble, and ran 50 yards for a goal. Shriner kicked goal.

Ball Kept in Midfield.

The play during the remainder of the period was even, the ball seesawing in midfield. Halfback Eggler was the outstanding star for the Frosh, on three occasions making senastional runs. He started in the second period with a 55-yard run through tackle to Soldan's 15-yard line, where Soldan held for downs.

Again in the third quarter, Eggler carried the ball to his opponents' 5-yard line from midfield, where Soldan again held for downs. This period was decidedly the freshmen's, although they were unable to score. Soldan punted out, but the ball was brought to its 15-yard line, where Soldan again held.

The adavntage was with the freshmen in the final period. After an exchange of punts, Fullback Ernst passed to Eggler from the 35-yard line, from where he carried it to Soldan's 2-yard line. A penalty for holding saved Soldan's goal, and shortly after the game ended.

The lineup:

Soldan.	Position.	St. L. U. Freshmen.
Pfaff	Left end	Fitzgerald
Albin	Left guard	McCarthy
Harlow (Capt.)	Center	Bauman
Levy	Right guard	Lloyd
Hennessey	Right tackle	Weber
Well	Right end	Riefling
Shriner	Quarter	Murphy

Soldan	7	0	0	0	— 7
St. Louis U.	0	0	0	0	— 0

Officials—Sihler, referee. Hudson, umpire. Substitutions—Soldan: Fiske for Albin, Well for Hirsch, Wilson for Well, Williams for Fishlowitz. Touchdowns: Soldan—Hirsch. Goals after touchdown—Shriner.

Yeatman Improved.

Yeatman showed great improvement over the form it exhibited a week ago when it lost to St. Louis University High School. Coach Hill has put his charges through strenuous drills during the past week to prep up for the game with Soldan, Saturday, and his efforts bore the first fruit yesterday.

Principia put up a good game and succeeded in scoring in the last period. The first quarter was scoreless, btoh teams resorting to frequent punting. In the second quarter Yeatman scored when Cox, quarterback, went around end after a pass from himself to Walter Hannegan netted 20 yards. Fullback Nickle tallied the second North Side score in the third period on an off tackle plunge after the ball had been carried by straight football to Principia's 5-yard line.

Principia came back strong in the last period despite Yeatman's advantage and Left Half Carson went through the line for its only touchdown after a series of good end runs and line bucks.

The lineup:

Yeatman.	Position.	Principia.
Owen	Left guard	Bauer
Moore	Center	George
Cianciolo	Right guard	Walker
Ballman	Right tackle	Dutton
Meinholts	Right end	Werníntin
Cox	Quarter	J. Brownell
R. Hannegan	Left half	Carson
W. Hannegan	Right half	Crouch
Nickles	Fullback	D. Brownell

Score by periods:

	1	2	3	4	T.
Yeatman	0	7	7	0	—14
Principia	0	0	0	7	— 7

Officials: Sihler, referee; Miller, umpire; Triedlenick, head linesman. Substitutions: Principia—Fitzgerald for D. Brownell, Christopherson for Reiman. Touchdowns: Yeatman, Cox, Nickles; Principia, Carson.

McKinley Scores at Will.

The morning game was a colorless afafir with McKinley scoring at will throughout the last three quarters. The South Side team was held to one touchdown in the first period, and Left Half Smith of Belleville made a 25-yard run that placed Belleville in a position to score. But after that, the game was all McKinley. Three touchdowns were scored in the second quarter, two in the third and four in the last.

Fullback Kinsey was responsible for most of McKinley's gains, making spectacular gains and himself scoring three touchdowns. Schaefering, who usually plays a halfback position, was placed at quarter by Coach Hawkins and showed to good advantage, scoring four of the touchdowns. Halfback Van Sickle also played a good game.

The lineup:

McKinley.	Position.	Belleville.
McCoy	Left end	Merrills
Schmidt	Left guard	McElwain
Csart	Center	Rauth
Hubule	Right guard	Erlinger
Broege	Right tackle	Houston
Smith	Right end	Buveine
Schaefering	Quarter	Smith
Woods	Left half	Keck
Van Sickle	Right half	Wilhelm
Kinsey	Fullback	Mueller

Score by periods:

	1	2	3	4	T.
McKinley	6	20	14	27	—67

Officials: Roberts, referee; Crosby, head linesman. Touchdowns: McKinley—Kinsey (3), Schaefering (4), Heffern, McCoy, Van Sickle. Goals after touchdowns—Schaefering (7).

Central defeated the St. Louis University High School team, 16 to 7, at the latter's campus. Central does not start its interscholastic season until Oct. 30 and will culminate its practice sessions with a return game with Principia next week.

Wolverines Crush Aggies.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 16.—The defense of the Michigan Aggies which held Michigan's football team to one touchdown in the first half of today's game, crumbled in the last two periods and the Wolverines tore through the farmer line to a 35-to-0 victory. The five touchdowns all resulted from straight football. The Aggies essayed a number of forward passes in the third period, but could not complete them. Many of the Wolverines' gains were made on runs around the ends.

Alton 45, Maplewood 0.

Alton High School defeated Maplewood High School, 45 to 0, at Alton, yesterday afternoon. The Illinoisans employed the forward pass to advantage, with Hord, quarterback, doing the heavy work. Maplewood, greatly outweighed, failed to make first down.

75-Yard Run by Lewis Features Tigers' Victory

Missouri Halfback Weaves Through Broken Field—Ames Beaten, 14 to 2.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 16.—Missouri University's football team, champions of the Missouri Valley Conference in 1919, demonstrated here today in their first valley contest of the season that they must be reckoned with again this year when the gridiron honors for 1920 are considered, for they defeated the Iowa State College eleven in decisive fashion, 14 to 2.

The Tigers' powerful line enabled it to win here today. Of course, the forwards were aided by the visitors' sterling backfield men, but it was the great playing of the line that was the outstanding feature of the contest.

The Cyclones were unable to do a thing on line plunges or end runs. Virtually all of their gains were made on forward passes and the yardage thus acquired would have been much greater had it not been for the Ames players' inability to hold the ball.

Missouri won the game by scoring touchdowns in the first and third quarters, with the additional two points scored by goals after the touchdowns.

Ames was given two markers in the first quarter, when Packwood intercepted a forward pass on his own one-yard line and was thrown across the goal line for a safety by Cyclone tacklers.

Tigers' Steam Roller at Work.

Missouri wasted no time in getting its first points. After receiving the kickoff, the Tigers tramped straight through the Ames team on line smashes and end runs, with one 15-yard forward pass, Fullbright to Goepel, helping, to the Ames sixx-yard line.

Here the locals made a stand and finally obtained the ball when a Missouri pass was grounded over the goal line.

Hibbs delayed the inevitable again by intercepting a pass, but the next time the visitors obtained the ball they again pushed the Cyclones before them, the drive ending with a touchdown when Fulbright went around left end for 19 yards and Packwood shot through the line for the remaining one yard. Ruth added the extra point.

After this touchdown the local defense appeared stronger and Missouri could not gain consistently. The Ames players, through the continual use of forward passes, looked dangerous several times; but only once during the game were they within the Missouri 10-yard line.

Lewis Makes Great Run.

The Tigers' second touch down came unexpectedly in the third quarter. Missouri received a punt on its 33-yard line. Lewis, who had been inserted in the game in the second half, dropped back, apparently for a punt, but instead of kicking he ran around right end. He had wonderful interference at the start, but after it had been shattered he outran, dodged, broke away and squirmed loose from every Ames tackler, completing a 67-yard run for a touch down. Fulbright kicked the goal. Lewis almost downed by Wallace on the Ames 10-yard line, but regained his stride when looked like he would fall. It was a good play in a good place and apparently had the locals fooled.

The contest was well played except in the handling of punts. Several kicks being fumbled. Packwood was especially guilty of dropping punts, but escaped luckily, especially when he fumbled one on his own three-yard line, but recovered it.

Missouri's defense was splendid. If there was any criticism it would be on the blocking of forward passes. Ames also played a splendid defensive game, except in the first period and in the third quarter when Lewis successfully ran through the entire Cyclone eleven.

The outstanding star of the Ames team was Wallace at center. Missouri's tackles and ends also deserve mention for their splendid work.

The lineup:

MISSOURI		AMES
Travis	Left tackle	Birch
Bunker	Center	Wallace
Shannon	Right guard	Young
Blumer	Right tackle	Riggs
Ruth	Right end	Higgins
Packwood	Quarterback	Hibbs
Williams	Left halfback	Byers
Fullbright	Right halfback	White
Humes	Fullback	Vanderloo

Summary: Referee—J. C. Grover (Washington), umpire; C. E. McBride (Kansas City Agricultural College); head linesman, Ira Carrithers (Illinois). Substitutions: Missouri—Vilkas for Springgate, Lewis for Williams, Lincoln for Humber. Ames—Boyd for Hibbs, Bennett for Vanderloo, Lingerfe for Young, Elkins for White, Curire for Elkins, Schultz for Webb.

MISSOURI MINERS WIN FROM SPRINGFIELD, 33-15

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 16.—The Miners from the Missouri School of Mines romped away from the Springfield Teachers' College eleven here this afternoon, 33 to 15. The Bears were unable to check the attack of the Miners, who have the earmarks of strong championship contenders.

Capt. Cairns, the Miner quarter, starred in the victory, counting the four Rolla touchdowns by some brilliant broken field running and line ripping. Bohm place-kicked two goals.

Springfield scored two touchdowns and a safety. One touchdown came on plunges after Rolla had fumbled on the 30-yard line. The other came on a forward pass. Quarterback Sherry, a freshman, starred for Springfield.

Billiken Eleven Powerless Before Detroit's Assaults; St. Louisans Beaten, 48-0

Blocked Kick Recovered by Michigan Star Nets First of a Long Line of Touchdowns—Victors Show Strong Machine but Face Hard Schedule.

By Walter Eckersall.

DETROIT, MICH., October 16.—University of Detroit's powerful football team, composed of players of known ability, won an easy victory over St. Louis University today on Navin Field, 48 to 0.

The Mound City eleven, which had not recovered from its defeat by Missouri a week ago, was powerless to stop the slashing offense of the local eleven which used old style formations for the greater part of the game.

After Ellis, giant tackle of Detroit, had blocked one of Connor's punts, early in the game, and then scooped up the ball and stepped over the goal line for the first score, the visiting team never had a chance to score. St. Louis was powerless to stop the terrific line plunges of Fitzgerald, McNamara and Lauer, while Bahan's end running was a feature.

Among the players on the local team are Lauer, who played a back field position on the Great Lakes eleven of 1918, and Bahan who starred at Notre Dame last year. Both played stellar football today while Voss and Ellis should compare favorably with any tackles in the country.

The team is strong offensively and defensively, and will meet Bethany, Tufts, Rutgers, West Virginia, Wesleyan and Tulane in its remaining games.

OHIO STATE DEFEATS PURDUE, SCORE 17-0

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Ohio State won its first Western Conference game of the season here this afternoon defeating Purdue University, 17 to 0. The Buckeyes solved the much-vaunted "Boilermakers'" shift in the first period and, led by a clever 15-yard pass, crossed Purdue's goal 2 minutes before the period ended.

Ohio State's other touchdown in the fourth quarter was preceded by an aerial attack that carried the Buckeyes to the 2-yard line where Weaver bucked over.

Purdue at times fought the Buckeyes to a standstill but lacked the necessary punch to climax their efforts. In the second period Watson of Purdue intercepted a forward pass on Ohio's 43-yard line. End runs and bucks carried the "Boilermakers" to Ohio's 4-yard line, where an attempted forward pass on their last down ended unsuccessfully.

Stinchcomb of Ohio State on the first play circled to right end for 32 yards, bringing the ball out of danger. With the exception of this time the Buckeyes were never in any real danger.

Ohio State started the game with a forward pass attack. Henderson's pass to Stinchcomb for 15 yards carried the ball to Purdue's 35-yard line. End runs by Stinchcomb and Henderson and bucking by C. A. Taylor placed the ball on the 2-yard line where Workman sneaked over for the first score.

Nemecek paved the way for Ohio State's second touchdown in the final period when he intercepted a forward pass on Purdue's 45-yard line. A series of forward passes then spelled the touchdown.

Workman with a well-directed kick from placement on the 20-yard line in the third period, made the other score. In the fourth quarter he missed another place kick by inches.

Score by periods:

MISS STIRLING DEFEATS MRS. GAVIN IN FINAL

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 16.—Miss Alexa Stirling, Atlanta, national woman's champion, today won the final match of the Barthellyn Golf tournament at the Huntington Valley Country Club by defeating Mrs. W. A. Gavin, New York, 3 up and 1 to play.

Miss Stirling was 1 down at the turn, but rallied at the tenth, winning that hole and the eleventh also, and was never in much danger thereafter. The champion was off her game during the early stages of the match. Her approaches were below her usual standard, while her putting was erratic. Mrs. Gavin was steady off the tees, and her direction was good, but she was weak on the greens.

BROWN USES OPEN GAME TO BEAT COLGATE, 14 TO 0

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 16.—Brown won from Colgate this afternoon, 14 to 0, pushing over touchdowns in the first and second periods. Colgate three times threatened to score, Mason once missing a forward thrown over the goal line and Brown holding for downs twice when the visitors had placed the ball on the 1-yard line.

Brown used the open game with fine results and showed a powerful defense. In the second half Brown made no determined effort to pile up a score and resorted to a kicking game.

Long runs by Williams and Spates of Brown and Townsend of Colgate were the features.

WISCONSIN WINS, 27-7 FROM NORTHWESTERN MEN

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 16.—Northwestern University failed to keep up the winning pace it took last week in defeating Minnesota, and lost, 7 to 27, before the driving plays and brilliant passes of Wisconsin.

The Badgers played the purple men off their feet in the first half, gaining all their points in the first two periods. After that, with some substitutes in the Wisconsin line, the Northwestern players kept their opponents scoreless.

Northwestern's touchdown in the second quarter came on a fluke play. Davey, Wisconsin quarterback, intercepted a pass behind the Wisconsin goal, but fumbled it when tackled and Magnussen fell on the oval for the only score of the visitors.

Holmes did the best work for the Badgers while Lane was the star for Northwestern.

Lineup and summary:

Wisconsin (27)	Position.	Northwestern (7)
Weston	Left end	Carney
Scott	Left tackle	H. Penfield
Brader	Left guard	G. Penfield
Bunge	Center	Satheway
Margoles	Right guard	Dahl

Score by periods:

Wisconsin	14	13	0	0—27
Northwestern	0	7	0	0—7

Wisconsin scoring: Touchdowns—Barr, Sundt, Weston, Collins. Goals from touchdowns—Sundt 3. Northwestern scoring: Touchdown—Zeold (sub. for Grausneick). Referee—Birch of Earlham. Umpire—Schommer of Chicago. Field Judge—Young of Illinois Wesleyan. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

St. Louisans Lead Illinois Golfers

Local Municipal Four Has 42-Stroke Advantage at End of First Day's Play.

St. Louis municipal golfers gained a 42-stroke lead over Springfield (Ill.) players in the first half of the inter-city match played over the public course in Forest Park yesterday, under the auspices of the Forest Park Golf Club.

The competition is at 72 holes, medal play, aggregate scores of the contesting teams of four men to determine the championship. The second half of play is scheduled for today, the morning round starting at 10 o'clock and the afternoon at 2 p. m.

The local quartet composed of Vincent Nettler, Edward Held, Frank Lynch and Louis Hamel took 344 strokes during the morning and the same total in the afternoon. The visiting golfers turned in a total of 365 for the first 18, and duplicated their count after lunch.

An odd feature of the St. Louisans' morning play was that all four players had the same score, 86.

Although the Illinoisans got off to a disadvantage, their efforts were fair inasmuch as it was their first trip over the sporty public ways. Springfield, a city of 60,000 people, has two municipal links, one of 18 holes and the other of nine.

The individual scores for the day were as follows:

Edward Held:	44-42-86,	45-36-81,	167.
Vincent Nettler:	44-42-86,	44-45-89,	175.
Frank Lynch:	41-45-86,	44-41-85,	171.
Louis Hamel:	46-40-86,	48-41-89,	175.
Walter Reed:	49-44-93,	49-43-92,	185.
Julian Van Sice:	47-43-90,	44-47-91,	181.
R. O. Irwin:	50-45-95,	52-44-96,	191.
D. P. Caldwallader:	48-39-87,	40-46-86,	173.

RECOVERED FUMBLE NETS PENN ITS ONLY SCORE IN BEATING LAFAYETTE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Ability to follow the ball enabled the University of Pennsylvania to defeat Lafayette College today by a score of 7 to 0.

In the third period Straus scooped up a fumble and raced 30 yards for the only score. He also kicked the goal.

Lafayette attempted numerous forward passes, but the receivers were unable to handle them. Pennsylvania was more successful in this respect.

Evanston Men Succumb 27 to 7; Minnesota Again Is Humbled When Indiana Wins 21 to 7.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 16.—Illinois strengthened its chances for the Western Conference championship, and virtually eliminated Iowa from the race today by defeating the Hawkeyes 20 to 3.

The Illini, last year's title winners, used only straight football tactics, while Iowa sprang a brilliant array of trick formations, especially in the last two minutes when the losers battled desperately.

The Hawkeyes made only one first down on straight football, but attained six on forward passes. Illinois ripped the Iowa line at will and Hellstrom circled the ends repeatedly.

The first period was scoreless, but Ralph Fletcher's field goal gave Illinois a 3 to 0 advantage at the end of the second period.

Carney took a fumble across for a touchdown, and Hellstrom kicked a field goal in the third period.

In the final period A. Devine made Iowa's only score with a field goal, and Coach Zuppke sent in an entirely new Illinois team. The game ended with the ball in Illinois' possession on Iowa's 30-yard line.

The lineup:

ILLINOIS.	Position.	IOWA.
Hellstrom	Right end	Belding
Ems	Right tackle	Slater
Smith	Right guard	Kaufmann
Depler	Center	Longley
Mohr	Left guard	Mead
Olander	Left tackle	Black
Carney	Left end	Kadesky
R. Fletcher	Quarterback	Kelly
Walquist	Right halfback	G. Devine
Peden	Left halfback	A. Devine
Crangle	Fullback	Locke

Summary: Illinois scoring—Touchdowns—Carney, Crangle. Goal from touchdowns—Ralph Fletcher (substitute for Peden), Robert Fletcher. Field goals—Ralph Fletcher, Hellstrom. Iowa scoring—Field goal—A. Devine. Referee—Magidsohn, of Michigan; umpire, Snyder, of Oberlin; field judge, Elliott, of Northwestern; head linesman, Dortims, of Maine.

Indiana Uses Passes To Beat Minnesota, 21-7

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 16.—Minnesota slipped down another rung on the Big Ten football championship ladder today when Indiana forward-passed her way to a 21-to-7 victory over the Gophers.

A driving attack produced by Minnesota at the outset brought the game's first touchdown and sent hopes of Gopher fandom soaring. They flew high for one period only to fall into a fatal tail-spin when Indiana tied the count and jumped into the lead in the second period.

Forward passes in which Williams-to-Mathys or Minton-to-Mathys proved excellent combinations made possible Hoosier touchdowns, with Fullback Kyle running rampant when the occasion demanded. These men and Risley led Indiana's offense, with consistently telling co-operation from the line.

Minnesota started without Oss, its baskfield mainstay, and finished without Ruben, crack fullback, who was forced by injuries to retire in the third period. Ruben, Captain Arntson, Regnier and Eckberg stood out in Minnesota's attack, which became only spasmodically effective after the first period.

Coach Williams rushed in many Gopher substitutes after the second period.

Lineup and summary:

Minnesota (7).	Position.	Indiana (21).
Fraser	Left tackle	Risley
Atwood	Left guard	France
Clement	Center	Pierce
Enke	Right guard	Mumby
Teberg	Right tackle	Leonard

Chicago Team Easily Defeats Wabash, 41 to 0

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Chicago had an easy time with Wabash today, winning, 41 to 0. The Maroons used 28 players and apparently were able to score at will. Wabash played a fast game, but was outweighed and outclassed, never getting the ball past Chicago's 40-yard line. Frank Cash of Lebanon, Ind., Wabash guard, was seriously injured in the third quarter. He did not regain consciousness until after the game, but was said to be resting easily tonight.

Man o' War's Retirement Causes Wail From Racing Enthusiasts

Public Wants to See More of the Wonderful Thoroughbred Now Considered on Every Hand to Be the Greatest Horse Ever Campaigned Anywhere.

By John E. Wray.

LOUD and long will be the public protests against the announced retirement of the great Man o' War, the son of Fairplay and Mahubah, and, beyond all cavil, the greatest race horse of all time in this or any country. The public would fain see more of this wonder horse and even the calloused bookmaker, who has no reward to look for from races in which Man o' War runs, is keen for seeing this famous performer tried under further tests.

Most of those interested feel that match races at weight-for-age would hold an interest only if arranged at unknown distances; or if Man o' War made weight concessions. Some would even like to see how well he could perform under racing conditions wherein the accidents that befall large fields might militate against him. Others think he ought to show in handicap events, and see if he still had that final ounce that makes the classful nag beat the selling plater, even when weight conditions are against him.

But sincere lovers of horses, who feel that Man o' War has already answered every test of weight, distance, speed and stamina against the pick of the country, who has shattered five records in one year in 11 starts, and who has won carrying as high as 138 pounds, ought to be retired to avoid the possibility of injury and the consequent ruination of his future as a sire.

Will Not Race Abroad.

Perhaps it would be interesting to see him enter some of the great English classics, and give the British a chance to test his merit; but Mr. Riddle's refusal to do this, and his determination to retire Man o' War, undoubtedly has the sympathy and support of professional raisers of thoroughbred horses.

Many speculations have been indulged by experts as to wherein lay the secret of Man o' War's supreme ability.

But outside of the obvious fact that he is a splendidly constructed animal with the hackneyed "frictionless stride," there seems to have brought to light no especial physical reason that accounted for his superiority over all other horseflesh. The fact remains that he combines all thoroughbred virtues, being docile and easily controlled, quick to break, strong to run in front, able to carry the pace indefinitely, and with the heart to come on when crowded.

Upset Won Fluke Victory.

The last did not happen often in the now closed career of this famous performer for the reason that under normal conditions no contender was close enough to urge him, except through accidents of the game. In the first year of his racing career he was carried wide, lost a lot of ground and was beating Upset at the wire in the only defeat of his career. The manner in which he subsequently spread-eagled Upset demonstrated that his defeat was the merest accident.

This year the only horse to give him a race was John P. Grier. Grier hooked up with Man o' War and challenged him a sixteenth out. For a moment his nose was in front and then the juggernaut swept on, while John P. Grier fell back, broken-hearted and beaten.

Man o' War has won every race this year and under the most remarkable circumstances as to prices. Only once has there been quoted odds of a nature that most wagerers would consider speculatively possible. That was in the Preakness stakes, his first tart of the year, when as good as 3 to 5 could be had against Man o' War. A fine field went to the post and there was supposed to be some doubt as to the way in which Man o' War had wintered.

No horse just graduating is accepted as a first-class three-year-old on his last year's performance. His growth and development are all mysteries until he makes his first two or three appearances.

Odds Placed at 1 to 100.

But, after Man o' War returned from galloping over his field in the Preakness stakes in remarkable time, there was never a doubt but that he had wintered as never a horse before him had done. From that time on the odds quoted against the son of Fairplay ranged from 1 to 20 to 1 to 100. Even in the race which ended his career, the match event with Sir Barton, the price paid by the pari-mutuel machines was $2.10 to $2.00. Exactly 1 to 20. No such betting record has ever been known in the history of racing affairs.

Man o' War's reputation is built not only on his successes but upon the ease with which he won and the time he made in winning. Although he has never been extended to his limit in a single race as a 3-year-old, he has smashed five records and several of those are world's records. He equalled and surpassed countless American marks in the accomplishing of some of these long distances. On the journey in which he set his mile mark of 1:33 4-5 he broke every Australian and Canadian record for the intervening distances and equaled or surpassed some American and English marks.

Five Records Broken.

Man o' War has established five records this season, three of which are world's marks, and in only one race, the Dwyer, was he ever fully extended.

A list of his remarkable performances follows:

One mile in 1:33 4-5; American record for competition; made in the Withers, at Belmont Park on May 29.

One mile and a furlong in 1:49 1-5; world's record; made in the Dwyer at Aqueduct on July 10.

One mile and three furlongs in 2:14 1-5; world's record; made in the Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park on June 12.

One mile and a half in 2:28 4-5; American record; made in the Jockey Club stakes at Belmont Park on Sept. 11.

One mile and five furlongs in 2:40 4-5; world's record; made in the Lawrence Realization Stakes at Belmont Park on Sept. 4.

Man o' War's Record of Stakes and Money Won In Two Years on Turf

MAN O' WAR, now retired, won 20 of 21 starts in his career ended by his match race. He set a financial record for this country, but is still behind the best European record for large money winnings.

Colin was the only American horse to retire unbeaten after two seasons of campaigning. Following are Man o' War's races and his winnings:

Josties Victor In Four Single Net Events This Year

Season Just Closed Proved Most Successful Ever Staged in St. Louis.

By Davison Obear.

The local tennis season, which closed with the final round of the interclub tournament, was the most successful one in the history of the game in this city as far as tournament play was concerned. A summary of events indicates an increase of from 10 to 25 per cent in the amount of play over last season.

Fred O. Josties, Etta Roever and Carl Kammann took first honors in winning the largest number of tournaments. Josties captured the District, Triple A, Midland Valley and Municipal titles for men, while Etta Roever won the Municipal and Midland Valley events for women. Kammann was successful in two junior tournaments, the Central States and Municipal Center.

With three different partners in doubles, Theodore Drewes established a record by winning six events in one season. He won three events with Josties; two with Reppert and one with Bryant. Fred Josties equaled Drewes' record in the singles by winning four tournaments this year. In the women's ranking Corinne Gould is entitled to first place with Mary Katharine Voorhees, Etta Roever and Millicent Endicott following in the order named.

Interclub Play a Failure.

The tournament season opened with the Triple A Club tournament on June 12 and ended with the Interclub division play-off and the Interscholastic championship. Four more individual tournaments were played this year than last. They were as follows: Triple A, District, Junior Chamber of Commerce and Midland Valley Invitation.

With the exception of the Municipal division interclub play was a decided failure. In the four private club divisions 21 teams were entered. Of the 40 matches scheduled seven were actually played and 33 were won by default. Triple A won the Suburban division by winning one match from Kirkwood. In the Central Division, Delmar defeated Page and Page won from Box in the only two matches played. Magnolia is reported as winning two matches in the Southern division. No Junior interclub tournament was held this year.

St. Louis was represented this season in both the National and Clay Court championships for men and women, and the leading local players who entered these events made a favorable showing. Those who took part in the National tournaments were: Corinne Gould, Fred Josties, Wray Brown, Walter Haase, Davison Obear, Ray Epstein, and Harvey Frohlichstein.

Four Sanctioned Tournaments.

The local district had four tournaments this season sanctioned by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, as compared to one last year. The four events were the Central States, District, Midland Valley and County championships. No exhibition matches were held, although four visiting players, Roland Roberts of San Francisco, Harold Bartel, Cleveland; Philbrook Smith, Ames, Ia., and Jack Sotherland of Toledo took part in the Central States tournament.

Experience of players and officials during the 1920 season shows a need for some changes for next year, which will doubtless be put into effect. The ranking of players to be made by the St. Louis District Tennis Association will likely show some changes over last season. Tournament results show improvement on the part of a number of players not in the first 10.

DELMAR TENNIS CLUB TRIMS FOREST PARK

The Delmar team defeated the Forest Park players in the interclub district matches, yesterday. Delmar won all the singles matches. Fred Josties defeated Harry Hotze, 6—0, 6—0, 6—0. Wray Brown defeated J. Mooney, 6—0, 6—2, 6—3. Walter Haase defeated Billy Bascom, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4. Woody Brown and Herbert Bryant of Delmar defeated Dr. Hollinshead and A. Schwarz, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—2. Epstein and Frohlichtstein of Forest Park defeated Fennell and Mershon of Forest Park, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2. Triple A defeated Magnolia by default and will meet Delmar in the title matches, which must be played by next Saturday.

12 STARS ENTERED IN POCKET BILLIARD EVENT

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Entries for the national pocket billiard championship to start here Oct. 18, closed Tuesday. Fifteen applications were received and three were eliminated, leaving 12 for the preliminary tournament. The first three players will compete in the final with Ralph Greenleaf. The field follows:

Clarence E. Safford, William Pettifer, Mathew A. Long, Chicago; James E. McCoy, Richmond, Va.; W. D. Ricketts, Flint, Mich.; Arthur Woods, Minneapolis; James Maturo, Denver; Edwin Rudolph, Sayre, Pa.; Charles Seaback, Torrington, Conn.; B. E. Rhines, Akron, O.; Charles "Cowboy" Westen, Pittsburg; Orville Nelson, Rochester, N. Y.

Duck Shooting in California

Sportsman Tells of Trip to Marshes and of Bagging "the Limit" on Opening Day of Season.

By Robert E. Ross

ON the evening of October 15, 1919, thirteen of us were gathered in the club house of the Willow Gun Club, with grounds twenty-seven miles south of Los Angeles.

The preserve consists of sugar beet fields, which are surrounded by dykes, and divided by cross-dykes, much like a checker-board. These fields are flooded after the crop is gathered in September, and for some unknown reason the wild ducks seem partial to them, and flock there in large numbers.

The grounds are bounded on the west by the San Gabriel River, along the banks of which there is a heavy growth of willow. A mile to the west is a much-traveled highway—an automobile boulevard along which motor cars are constantly passing. A mile away in another direction is a large beet sugar factory.

But the proximity of all this activity does not seem to affect the shooting in any great degree, although it certainly robs the spot of one of its chief charms, and that is an unbroken stretch of marsh or lake with the works of man gloriously missing from the scene.

The blinds are wooden sink boxes sunk flush with the top of the dykes, and around which are rag weeds.

Adjoining the Willow Club grounds on the east and south are two other gun clubs, with preserves formed of artificially overflowed lands.

There for Legal Opening.

When we started for the blinds on the morning of the opening of the season—Oct. 16, 1919—ducks were constantly springing from the margins of the ponds as we passed on our way to the pits.

It was slippery work crossing along the dykes in the darkness, but Fred G. and I finally reached our sink box a half hour before legal shooting time.

Having laid out a supply of shells on the shelf of the sink box, we sat there with pipes aglow, watching the ducks swishing over our heads, and listening to the calls of the birds disturbed in distant ponds by the other shooters taking their positions.

The little 16-gauge guns were loaded with No. 7, as, watch in hand, we waited for the legal half-hour before sunrise.

Somebody Beats the Clock.

Some impatient gunner on the Shotover Club south of us anticipated the time by three minutes, and his shot was echoed and answered by a fusillade all over the marsh. It sounded like a sharp skirmish. The air was full of birds, mainly sprig, although there were many teal also.

The birds were bewildered, for this was the opening shoot, and many of them were hearing gunfire for the first time.

The shooting was ridiculously easy for the first hour, and only a dub would have missed taking toll of the hundreds of sprig and teal that were almost constantly passing over the blinds.

After the first hour the shooting quieted down, and most of the birds had left the marsh, driven off by the terrific bombardment.

The early morning fog had vanished, and the sun was shining hot and strong. Not a breath of wind was stirring. Not a bird in sight.

Fred and I waded out in the shallow ponds and gathered our birds. We brought back to the blind 32, and piled them in the shade of some tall cockle burrs.

Suddenly out of the blue came the well-known "scaipe! scaipe!" and two jacksnipe came corckscrewing overhead. Their calls were their undoing, for we were ready for them, and two little "spats" showed where they had struck the water in a grassy shallow of the pond.

Sprigs Come Back for Drink.

Presently over the fringe of willows to the south we marked a dark line, quickly growing larger. The sprigs were coming back for a drink. Guns began cracking all over the marsh.

It was not such easy shooting now, nor so fast and furious as the first hour. But all the more enjoyable for that. At intervals pairs and singles and small flocks flew by in range, and it was not long before Fred and I had killed the 18 birds that rounded out our legal limit of 50 for the two guns.

It was hot work tramping back to the club house with the heavy birds. It was certainly not duck weather.

Several of the shooters were already in, and one by one the others came trailing up to the club house.

Almost everyone had "the limit," and 80 per cent of the birds were sprig—as fat as butter, and the drakes indistinguishable from the ducks, for they were still in summer plumage.

An hour later we were in Los Angeles, and the "opening shoot" was a memory.

Soldan Players Quit Fraternity

Football Stars, Asked to Decide Between Football and Societies, Choose Former.

Nine Soldan High School football players, who had been ordered by Principal John Rush Powell, to resign from Greek letter fraternities or turn in their gridiron equipment, yesterday chose the former course. As a result the West End eleven will remain intact.

Fraternities were barred from local schools by the Board of Education last spring, and when the students failed to live up to the mandate, it was decided to keep all athletes from school teams until there was a compliance with the new rule.

The athletes who resigned from their social organizations in order to play were: Capt. Harlow, Hennessey, Alin, Pfaff, Hirsch, Fiske, Liederman, Wilson and Kellog.

COUNTRY DAY ELEVEN DEFEATS EPSILON ETA

The St. Louis Country Day School football team defeated the Epsilon Eta eleven yesterday at the Country Day Campus, score 46 to 0. The defeated team was badly outweighed and the Country Day eleven sent in its second squad in the second half.

"Babe" Ruth Denies Report of Injury by Knocking Home Run

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 16.

"BABE" RUTH, by way of denying a report that he had suffered a fractured wrist in a game at Oneonta yesterday, played with his "All Stars" today against the Caven Points at the Jersey City baseball park. Ruth made one of his customary home runs, which have been usual features of the games played by his team on its barnstorming trip.

JACKSON SCHOLZ TO RUN FOR NEW YORK CLUB

Jackson V. Scholz of St. Louis, the former University of Missouri sprinter, has confirmed the statement that he will make his home in New York upon the completion of his course at the University of Missouri.

Scholz was one of the five members of the American Olympic team that made a tour of the Scandinavian countries after the games in Antwerp. The former Missouri star said he expected to visit his parents for a few days and then return to New York to take a position. This probably means that New York fans will witness some sensational sprinting during the coming indoor season, as Scholz is one of the greatest sprinters of the present day.

Fluke Home Run Gives Baltimore Victory and Title

Outfielder Slips Going After Single and It Rolls to Fence—Orioles Won 5 of 6.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 16.—Defeating the St. Paul club of the American Association 1 to 0 in an exceptionally hard fought game, the Baltimore International club today captured the minor league baseball championship. A fluke home run was the only tally.

Today's victory gave the Orioles five in six games played. The contest was a great pitching duel between Fritz Coumbe, the Saints' crafty southpaw, and Jack Ogden, ace of the International League moundsmen. Each allowed five scattered hits. It was in the second inning with two out and the bases unoccupied that Shortstop Boley cracked what normally would be a single to right center. Miller, in going for the ball, slipped and fell, and it rolled to deep center for a home run, although the throw to the plate by Berghammer, who received the ball from Riggert, made the decision close.

The pitching analysis gives Coumbe the edge in the hurling duel. He struck out four Orioles with Jacobson, leading batsman of the International, fanning three times. Ogden struck out one man, hit another and walked two. Coumbe walked one. Aside from Boley's homer, Coumbe allowed only three Orioles to reach second and none saw third. Boley's hit was the only one for extra bases in the game. Score:

SYRACUSE MAN WINS CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Johnny Simmons, intercollegiate cross country champion of America and captain of the Syracuse varsity cross country team, crossed the line a winner in this afternoon's big invitation cross country meet. Having traversed the 4½-mile course in 24:21:01, 30 seconds faster than his winning mark of last year.

Despite Simmons' victory, Syracuse took second place in the meet. Cornell won on points, the Ithacans finishing in second, third, fourth and fifth places. Yale was third, Columbia fourth, Colgate fifth and Dartmouth sixth.

McDermott of Cornell finished second, Brown, Cornell, third; Carter, Cornell, fourth; Dickinson, Cornell, fifth.

CORNELL ELEVEN SHOWS GREAT SCORING POWER

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Cornell smothered Union here today, 60 to 0. The Cornell backfield proved to be a powerful scoring machine, gaining long distances on line plunges, and runs and brilliantly executed forward passes. Coach Dobie's men made nine touchdowns of which Clyde Mayer, right halfback, accounted for four.

Mountaineers Easily Win.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 16.—West Virginia trounced George Washington here today, 81 to 0, in a game featured by the many long runs by Carl Beck of the Mountaineers. Joe Harrick, big end, also played a whale of a game, making four touchdowns, one on a 50-yard run.

Mrs. Ray Victor In Uphill Match For Golf Honors

Country Club's Entry Defeats Mrs. Obear 2 Up and 1, for District Title.

Mrs. E. Lansing Ray of the St. Louis Country Club won the women's championship of the St. Louis District Golf Association when she defeated Mrs. Maurice Obear, Bellerive Country Club, over the Algonquin course yesterday morning. The score was 2 up and 1 to play.

Mrs. Ray has never before held the district title, although she was the Missouri State champion in 1917. Her opponent yesterday played in her first final round match of a major tournament.

The new title holder began weakly in yesterday's match, and was three down after playing the first three holes. She picked up some of the lost ground on the remainder of the outward journey; but was one down at the turn. Her loss of the first three holes was due to the unusual playing of Mrs. Obear, who took 5—5—3.

Final All Square at No. 11.

Mrs. Ray started an improved game on the return trip, after halving the tenth hole, and squared play on No. 11, when she took a par four, while Mrs. Obear required five strokes. The next two holes were halved, but the Country Club player went ahead on No. 14, and held the lead thereafter.

Mrs. Obear hooked her tee shot into trouble on the fourteenth, and took seven strokes before sinking the ball. This seemed to unnerve her, and from then on her play was mediocre, the card showing a 6—7—7.

The cards for the match were as follows:

IN:

Mrs. Obear ....7 5 5 4 7 6 7 7 *

The championship consolation class title was won by Mrs. James A. Corbett, Glen Echo Country Club, who defeated Mrs. E. Taylor, Normandie Galf Club, 2 up and 1.

The cards for the consolation final were as follows:

CENTRE COLLEGE ROMPS OVER TRANSYLVANIA WITH SUBSTITUTES IN LINEUP

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 16.—Centre College again mowed down an opponent this afternoon, when its football machine defeated Transylvania College of Lexington, 55 to 0. The game was played at Danville.

Coach Moran used only "straight" football tactics, not caring to risk any "tricky" plays, because in the grand stand sat Harvard scouts, eager to pick up any information that might be of use to the Crimson at Cambridge next Saturday. Centre used 14 substitutes. The regular line, however, worked in the early periods of play.

Transylvania had no hope of winning and very little of scoring, being much lighter and less experienced than the Centre column, that swept down the field as if at signal practice. Transylvania fought hard, but it was of no use.

Centre has defeated Morris, Harsey, Howard and Transylvania colleges for a total of 245 points this season and her own goal line has never been in danger.

Whitnell, a substitute, this afternoon made a 65-yard run for a touchdown on an off a tackle play. Roberts made two drop kicks, one from the 30 and from the 25 yard line. Transyvalania failed to get a first down.

Weaver kicked five goals in five tries, Moran and Roberts each kicked goal. Roberts, Armstrong, Snoddy, Tanner, Moran, Whitnell and Allen all made touchdowns.

The lineup:

The Gopher Eleven Now Knows How It Feels to Be Run Over by a Stiehm Roller

Yale Team Again Victim of Boston Eleven, 21 to 13

Crowd of More Than 30,000 Sees Bulldogs Decisively Beaten by Boston College Gridders.

HARVARD AND TIGERS GAIN EASY VICTORIES

Crimson Flattens Williams 38-0, While Princeton Defeats Southern School by Wide Margin.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—Boston College smothered Yale today, 21 to 13, repeating its victory of last year, when it defeated the Blue 5 to 3.

The game was spectacular throughout, with a crowd of more than 30,000 in the Yale bowl hoping for a repulse of the invaders, and cheering old Eli to the final moment of the game, when Tad Jones' men rallied and scored a touchdown.

Capt. Callahan, Aldrich, Kempton, French and Walker were the Yale players unable to continue through injuries, while Heapy and Liston of the visitors were hurt.

Yale completed eight forward passes in 14 attempts. Boston tried 10 farward passes, only two of which were successful. Both sides were penalized many times.

In the first period Roderick brought the crowd to its feet when he recovered the ball on Frank Kelly's fumble and ran 55 yards for a touchdown. Aldrich attempted a field goal in this session. Yale mixed line plunges with forward passes and moved the ball down the field, Frank Kelly taking it over for a touchdown. Aldrich failed to kick the goal, the ball hitting the goal post.

The second period found the teams exchanging punts and making small gains in midfield. Fitzpatrick tried a field goal from the 20-yard line, but it struck the upright.

Liston Batters Way to Score.

Liston broke through the Yale line in the third period, but his spring was cut short by a spectacular tackle by Dilworth from behind the runner. Liston battered the Blue line for substantial gains, getting a touchdown on a 12-yard plunge. When F. Kelly muffed a punt a little later, Urban scooped up the ball and ran 25 yards for Boston's third touchdown.

In the last period many forward passes were tried by both teams, several of Yale's being successful, and bringing the ball near the goal. F. Kelly carried it over for Eli's second touchdown. Murphy kicked the goal.

Line-up and summary:

YALE—(13).		BOSTON COLLEGE—(21).

Princeton Overwhelms W. and L. Eleven 34-0.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 16.—Princeton overwhelmed the Washington and Lee football eleven in Palmer Stadium, today, by the score of 34 to 0.

The visitors were never dangerous and Princeton scored in every period. Coach Roper sent in 19 substitutes during the play. Cleaves and Lourie starred for Princeton, the former making two touchdowns. Legendre and Scheerer each scored a touchdown on long passes and Hang Garrity made a 45-yard run for a score in the first minutes of play.

Stanley Keck continued his clean record for goals after touchdowns, making four today for a total of 11 for the season.

Silverstein and Moore were the stars for Washington and Lee on defense, and Tucker was the best ground gainer.

Versatility at Approach Shots Is Golf Requisite, Says Duncan

High Approach, With Underspin and Run-Up With Top-Spin Are Two That Should Be Mastered if a Player Hopes to Be First Class.

By George Duncan,
British Open Champion.

CULTIVATION of the high approach with underspin followed naturally upon the arrival of the modern course, with its essential artificialities.

There are so many courses which have necessitated the placing of bunkers immediately in front of the greens that the pitch and run, as a shot, has become in many cases obsolete.

If one takes the average of holes on the average course it will, in all probability, be found that in the majority of cases it is essential to get the ball well up in order to reach the green. When that is so, it is also essential to impart to the ball as much underspin as is possible.

But there are other courses, and even on the suburban courses there are greens the entrance to which should be made by means of a well placed low shot that is played in such a way that the ball will run after pitching. Take, for instance, a green sloping to right or left or away from you. When you have thought of that it is not essential for me to instill into you the difficulties of playing a shot that will ensure the ball stopping anywhere near to where it pitches.

Putting Your Approach.

Take it for granted that the shot to play up to the hole in such circumstances as I have pointed out is a shot which is reduced as near as possible to a putt. I think that that is the best way of describing to you the virtues of the pitch and run over the pitch and stop when the conditions permit of the former shot.

My opinion is that just as the pitch and run is played too much in Scotland, so is the high approach played too much in other places.

You must choose your ground for the run-up shot. For instance, you would not trust your ball to the mercies of a series of undulations which might turn it in all sorts of undesired directions. You should wait for level ground and a good clearance, and then with mashie or even mid-iron you can reduce your shot to the simplicity of a long putt or nearly so.

It is easier, under the circumstances I have mentioned, to play a shot in which the ball is hit down and the right wrist finishes turned over so that run has been imparted to the ball than it is to play a ball well up to the hole and stop. But the fact that it is a more simple shot should no deter you from playing it. The aim and object of the best of golfers are to make the game as east as possible, and there is no reason why you should not try and do the same.

Where Run-Up Is the Shot.

Under other circumstances it is easier to play the shot which sends the ball fifty yards through space to run about ten yards after it has pitched. For instance, if you are a pitcher, you may find that where your ball will fall is a piece of ground sloping away for you. Your ball may not be lying well enough to enable you to play a high loose shot by hitting the ball upwards. When that is the case the run-up is the shot for you.

Any golfer to be first-class must have within the bounds of his playing capacity several methods of approaching. For my part I find that, in nine cases out of ten, the approach which pays me the best is one in which the ball is hit a descending blow without any roll of the right forearm on the down swing.

In short, the best of approaches, in my opinion or in my experience, is the underspin shot which I described the other week. Because I think that, however, does not make me feel prejudiced against the run-up shot. I like the latter very well in its right place, for I know that by its means the ball can be got up to the whole with precision, even when the greens are of such a conformation that would make one feel timid about the playing of a high approach with its consequent turning of the ball to left or right and the danger of finishing in some close-to-green bunker.

The kind of shot favored by different golfers usually depends upon the nature of the course where they learned their golf. J. H. Taylor, the master of pitch and stop, found when he was young that the undulations of the Westward Ho! course compelled the sending of the ball through the air for the greater part of its journey.

Habits That Grow.

Scottish golfers of the old school favored a club straighter faced than the mashie for their approaches, but that was because the ways to Scottish greens were nearly always of a nature that called for such shots. The Scottish are the experts of the runup, and they turn the knuckles and forearm of the right hand upward at impact.

Players who pitch and stop let the knuckles of the right hand remain pointing away from the direction of the ball.

This turning of the knuckles is one of the great secrets of the runup shot, and when the turn is timed well it is surprising how well the ball runs, for it has plenty of top spin upon it.

It is seldom that you can play round any golf course without finding several kinds of approaches necessary; but when you are faced with a shot that should be accomplished by putting top spin on the ball instead of underspin, you will be in danger of giving your nerves a severe trial if you cannot play the shot required.

Do not despise the runup stroke. It is a good golfing shot when used in the right place, and inasmuch as it will in many cases help to complete players' repertoires of strokes, I commend it to your serious attention.

Let your stance be open, and do not forget the turning over of the right wrist at impact.

Hints From Long Hitters.

There are among golfers exceptionally long hitters, and it is from the methods adopted by these players that we must endeavor to gather useful tips and hints.

You will have noticed in previous articles that I have a tremendous regard for the importance of balance—physical balance—and that it is just about the most important phase of big hitting. All the big hitters are big fellows, and their physiques would avail them little if they had not got the knack, the instinct or gift to so arrange their bodily weight on legs and feet that their natural physical advantages may be made use of.

Fancy Ted Ray's body getting out of control! Whatever would happen to his clubs and the ball if his huge frame were not fully under the command of a brain that possessed a sense of balance? His size would be a handicap instead of an advantage. It is the same with Braid. All his great power of physique would be no use to him unless he had it under control. How is this done? A friend has asked me to explain this, and I will next week, as I think it is worth while; for although there is no doubt about the necessity of a natural instinct for this kind of thing, and no amount of writing by me can place instinct into my readers, I can tell you that which will help you to train yourself to do that which some people have been fortunate enough to do naturally.

Put Weight on Your Heels.

There is a quaint tendency among golfers to lean toward the ball. They seem to think that if they get their heads closer to it they will see better, and, as a consequence, hit further. This is a common error among golfers. It would be almost correct if I wrote in the way of advice and told you to stand as far away from the ball as you can. Of course, you should not make the ball "a wide," as the cricketers would say.

You cannot get the feeling of balance while addressing the ball unless there is quite a considerable amount of weight felt upon your heels.

HARVARD ROLLS UP FIVE TOUCHDOWNS AND FIELD GOAL AGAINST WILLIAMS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16.—Harvard had little difficulty in rolling up five touchdowns and a field goal against Williams, today, winning, 38 to 0.

The visitors held the Crimson well, in the first period, and carried the ball to Harvard's 45-yard line, on two beautifully thrown forward passes by Boynton.

For the remainder of the game Williams' offensive was never within 55 yards of the Crimson goal line.

Lineup and summary:

HARVARD (38)		WILLIAMS (0)
Kane	Left end	Codding
Faxon	Left tackle	Laws
Tolbert	Left guard	Fulle
Havemyer	Center	Smith
Woods	Rightguard	Shuttleworth
Hubbard	Right tackle	Fargo
Gaston	Right end	Joslyn
Buell	Quarterback	Boynton
Owen	Left halfback	McLean
Hamilton	Right halfback	Richmond
Humphrey	Fullback	Hibbard

Score by Periods:

Harvard	0	10	21	7—38
Williams	0	0	0	0— 0

Harvard scoring: Touchdowns—Hamilton, Fitzgerald (substitute for Buell), Churchill (substitute for Humphrey) 2, Chapin (substitute for Owen). Goals from touchdowns—Faxon 4, Gratwick (substitute for Hamilton). Goal from field—Buell. Referee: Tufts of Brown. Umpire—Cannell of Tufts. Field Judge—Brown of B. A. A. Head Linesman—McGrath of Boston College. Time of periods—12 minutes.

BETHLEHEM VICTOR IN NATIONAL CUP BATTLE WITH HIBERNIANS, 6-1

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 16.—The newly constructed former world champion Bethlehem team defeated the Hibernian eleven in the first round of national cup competition, 6—1, today.

Bethlehem scored first on a pass, Britain to Fleming, whose shot, delivered at a 45-degree angle, beat Kerr to the left-hand corner of the net.

Forrest cleared himself from a scrimmage and tore up the field for 20 yards, raising one which was too high for Kerr to block. On the next play the defense awarded the Hibs a penalty on Collier, Brigham, the outside left, was sent in for the boot, his aim being perfect.

With 5 minutes to go, Bethlehem annexed another score on a play that was cheered by the spectators. Fleming raised one to Murray who headed the ball through Kerr.

The lineup:

Hibernians.	Position.	Philadelphia.
Kerr	Goal	Caston
Greider	Right fullback	Collier
Gilmore	Left fullback	Ferguson
Dutcher	Right halfback	Murray
Dixon	Center halfback	Jurison
McDonough	Left halfback	Morrison
Blaney	Outside right	Jurison
Thompson	Inside right	Satterwite
McCartney	Center forward	Brittain
W. Gayner	Inside left	Forrest

Referee—John Walders. Time of halves—45 minutes. Score—Fidst half: Bethlehem 4, Hibernians 1.

Lynch and Moore, Old Favorites, to Show at Coliseum

Both Men Have Pleased St. Louis Spectators in Previous Fights Here.

By John E. Wray.

In the midst of boxing odors that are far from fragrant, comes a breath as of new-mown hay, or somethin'. It is the announcement that Joe Lynch of New York and Pal Moore of Memphis have been matched to box eight rounds at the Coliseum, Oct. 26.

Whatever else may be said of these heavy bantams, it cannot be truthfully asserted that they do not try to give their best efforts. In all their appearances here they have fought as if they meant it, and that is the first principle of pleasing a St. Louis crowd.

In contrast to bantam champion, Pete Herman, these rivals for Pietro's crown put every ounce back of their efforts. In addition to the sincerity of their fighting, it may be mentioned that these men are right up in the same altitude of class with the title holder Lynch, when he met Regan here, looked like every inch a champion. He owns a nifty straight punch with a knockout back of it, good generalship and plenty of knowledge of the fine points.

Pal Moore is one of the fastest of his class. He is the bounding demon of the bantams, and hits with both hands, fast and accurately. He is in constant action, and always pleases.

Moore Hits With Open Glove.

His worst failing is a tendency to hit with open gloves—a circumstance that lost him the decision in his memorable 20-round fight with Jimmy Wilde. He showed it here in a bout with Kid Regan. Unlike Lynch, Moore was unable to kayo the local "Kid."

Both Lynch and Moore have suffered defeat at the hands of Wilde in long fights abroad; but Moore has the advantage of having gained a British decision over the English wonder in a short session, which occurred during the inter-service games in London, held in December, 1918.

The difference in their styles will make for interest in the outcome the more especially as the light-hitting Moore will be playing with sudden extinction, and must tread carefully when within reach of Lynch's kayo.

Carpentier Is Wanted.

Georges Carpentier, just now in the spotlight as the most interesting figure in the pugilistic world, without regard to his disputed ring merits, is being sought for a local engagement. A St. Louis promoter stated yesterday that he had written Carpentier's management to find if he would be willing to oppose a local heavyweight, not yet named, in a four-round engagement here. He is awaiting a reply.

Once before a local promoter announced that he had interested the Carpentier entourage, namely Jack Curley, in a match; but the location of the park and the personnel of the promoters discouraged Curley, and he backed out of the affair.

There is not the slightest doubt but that the French champion will try to reap some of the hard-won harvests of gold that are awaiting him, before facing Dempsey for what should be the biggest financial pot in the history of the ring.

St. Louis fans would probably be content to watch Carpentier, even if some local unknown, say the helfty Herman Heitzenroeder, could be interested in the match. Heitz hasn't much of a ring reputation; but he can hit hard and is game from the ground to his sky-line. He might serve to show off Carpentier's fine points.

Good Card Tomorrow Night.

The National Sporting Club has arranged a card that ought to be as full of fight as a Donnybrook Fair. Amateur champions of recent days, now graduated into the professional ranks, and some very good preliminary men are on the card. Among the former amateurs may be mentioned Steve English, George Puchta, Mike O'Donnell and Willie Rieth.

All of these boys are willing, at least. The complete card includes the following matches:

Steve English, St. Louis, vs. George Butch, St. Louis; George Puchta vs. Eddie Felix, both of St. Louis; Mike O'Donnell and Tom Cory, also Mound Cityans; Willie Rieth and Tony Stallhans; Edmond Francis vs. Lawrence Mattman; Willie Scanlan vs. Hunt Steele, and Marion Caravello vs. Mike Waldmann complete the card.

What Happened to Peewee.

Something has happened to Peewee Kaiser. According to Tommy Brammel, the boy who taught the nifty little ex-amateur all he knew and who "made him what he is today," when Peewee passes him on the street the elevator muscles that work the end of the nose begin to tighten. Peewee can't see any part of his late mentor and guide. Peewee is now a big gun, elevated for distance and, according to Brammel, can't note anything nearer than a championship, not even an old friend.

Peewee recently returned from Cleveland where he was given the once-over by Jommy Dunn, as a possible piece of title timber worth working over. Jimmy said Peewee was a nice little boy who lacked a lot, as most recent amateurs do, but that he had the makings. This was the view of all those interested in him. And it is probable that he will travel far if handled well. It seems certain that he has made a real mistake in discarding the man who did everything for him, just at the time when he came into a position to return some of the many favors shown.

Australia Picking Stars to Defend Davis Tennis Cup

Veteran Norman Brookes Probably Will Not Play, but Will Be Chief Adviser.

The Australian lawn tennis players have begun to make preparations for the meeting of the American challengers in the matches for the Davis Cup. In a recent letter from Melbourne it was revealed that Norman R. Brookes was once more in action. It is not believed to be probable that the marvelous veteran of the courts will essay anything so strenuous as the international series. He is certain to have a large share, however, in the determining of the team that will battle against the American trio. William T. Tilden II, William M. Johnston and Watson Washburn, in the series in New Zealand next December. Brookes' efforts at tournament competition are regarded as chiefly with the view to determine the strength of some of the younger men, among whom is the young giant, Anderson, and J. B. Hawkes, the Victorian.

There is no lack of players in Australia. This fact was strongly brought out by several visiting players passing through this country during the past season. The visitors pointed out that Patrick O'Hara Wood, Anderson and Hawkes were probably superior to the men from the other side of the world who played in this country a year ago. It was declared that it would take a lot of playing on the part of the best that the United States could muster to conquer the Australian defenders and return the world-famous trophy to this country.

From the standpoint of the American followers of the game interest centers upon Gerald L. Patterson, the former holder of the world's championship, whom Tilden defeated for the title at Wimbledon, and Brookes. The record of these two men stands forth as one of the brightest spots in the season of 1919. Their playing was exceptionally fine, and the sane and orthodox views of Brookes have left their impress in this country for the good of the courts.

Park Veterans' Tourney.

Final round matches in three flights of the Forest Park Golf Club's veterans' tournament were played yesterday afternoon. The results were as follows: First flight—W. J. Kennedey defeated M. P. Daisey, 3 and 2; second flight—F. W. Schwaab defeated D. R. Uiederlander, 5 and 4; third flight—T. B. Simmons defeated A. P. Cox, 2 and 1.

WRAY'S COLUMN

What Do You Mean, "Knock"?

IT is written: "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you." But the construction placed upon the "knock," by some persons, invites the suspicion that they construe the word as an invitation to a hammer-throwing contest.

Witness the attitude of those radicals who desire to open the closed door of baseball and inspect the skeletons hanging inside—if any. These are now thumping away, knocking the good old game to a fare-you-well. They conclude from the revelations at Chicago and those now developing on the Pacific Coast that the game is rotten to the core and on the skids leading to oblivion.

THEY wield a mean word on everything and include good and bad in slurring all that pertains to the game. Ban Johnson is villified by those who once all but glorified him; and it took a good dodger to duck the mud that was flying around at Cleveland.

Some, yea even the fans, have turned against baseball to the extent of saying that they would never see another world's series again, and they made good by staying away from a first-class one, at Cleveland and Brooklyn.

But the pessimism regarding baseball is not deserved. It is more than unfair to the majority of those connected with the sport. In every line of endeavor wherever many men are associated in one enterprise, there will be some sneaks and some crooks, but the majority is all right.

Baseball is not dying. It is not even sick. It merely had an abscess that has been lanced and the rottenness squeezed out. Next year will see it healthier and greater than ever.

Howd'ye, Clarence! Welcome Home.

CHICAGO is convinced that Clarence Rowland, "Pants" of eternal fame while with the White Sox, will be the next manager of the Tigers, not Jimmy Burke, as was bandied about the World's Series talk-fests by some smart scribes.

Clarence is always a welcome addition to baseball because of his suavity, classful appearance and all-around baseball front. But in the opinion of one National League baseball scribe the race is "in," with Burke already under the wire, despite Jim's assertion that he knows naught of the same.

We believe James. Just how a National League reporter could maintain an exclusive listening post out in the American League No-Man's-Land to hear all these unusual things seems too hard to explain.

The Passing of Garry.

AROUND - SHOULDERED, squat-figured little man, with his head bowed, wandered solo fashion around the corridors of he Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland. An expression of depression, even grief, underlay the stolidity with which he confronted the world under ordinary conditions. Eyes that once snapped and sparkled, despite the 60 or more years of age, now looked like dead fish orbs.

Then, unattended, he made his way to a cab station and took a taxi for the station, preparatory to quitting the city. And there was still one world's series game to be played!

This benighted soul was Garry Herrmann, "Owgoost," erstwhile chairman of the National Commission—a man who in his days was so well esteemed that even the hated rival organization accepted him as third man on a board of three persons to govern baseball.

Perhaps no greater tribute was ever paid to a man's fairness than when the then militant American League consented to let Herrmann act as chairman of the commission with a vote that at any time might be cast against the A. L.

HERRMANN seems definitely out of any reorganization of baseball, such as is proposed by the National League. He is still a Big man, to those who remember him in the trying days when baseball was out with its lantern, searching for an honest man—and found Garry.

Frankensteins I Have Known.

MAJOR LEAGUE baseball has built up the clubs of New York in both leagues until it has become a virtual impossibility to do without the Gotham representative in either league. The enormous attendance and high prices there have made the income paid to visiting clubs out of New York games of vital importance to the other clubs of the league.

Thus is a big Frankenstein swelling into abnormal proportions and power. The usual evils that come with dominance may be expected, in a few years, unless the New York magnates prove to be supermen with sporting viewpoints.

The temptation to dictate to other clubs, to gorge themselves with talent they cannot use, to swell the prices paid for players to an altitude where the average club owner cannot even see, would seem to require greater fortitude and resisting power than humans possess.

So long as the lesser clubs are content to fatten on the crumbs from the big man's table, the game will be all safe. But Frankenstein is never content. Ultimate revolt is sure.

Recovered Fumble Enables Syracuse To Tie Pittsburg

Panthers Earn Touchdown in Battle of Football Titans That Ends 7-7.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Syracuse and Pittsburg football teams fought to a 7-7 tie here today. Pittsburg scored its touchdown early in the first quarter, Hewitt, the panther fullback, being pushed over the line for the six points after fumbles by Syracuse backs had given Pitt the ball close to the Syracuse goal line. Davies kicked goal.

Syracuse evened the count in the third quarter when Gulick, husky Orange tackle, scooped up a fumble by Anderson of Pittsburg and raced over the line for a touchdown. Abbott kicked the goal.

The game was played in a heavy downpour of rain which made good football nearly impossible. Wet and slippery, the ball was fumbled continuously by the backfield of both teams.

Line-up and summary:

Syracuse (7).	Positions.	Pittsburg (7).
Fallon	Left end	McCrory
Clash	Left guard	McLean
Alexander	Center	Stein (C.)
Thompson	Right guard	Bond
Gulick	Right tackle	Gourley
Robertson (C.)	Right end	Williams
Cowell	Quarterback	McCracken
Abbott	Left halfback	Davies
W. Anderson	Right halfback	C. Anderson
Kellogg	Fullback	Hewitt

Score by periods:

Syracuse	0	0	7	0—7
Pittsburg	7	0	0	0—7

Touchdowns—Syracuse, Gulick; Pittsburg, Hewitt. Goals from touchdown—Abbott and Davies. Officials—Referee, J. J. Hallahan, the Boston Globe; umpire, Stanley Maxwell, Swarthmore; head linesman, J. A. Evans, Williams.

LAW BUILDING GIVEN BY WOMAN TO WASHINGTON U.

Miss Isabel Valle January Donates More Than $200,000 to Erect Monument to Her Mother.

One of Washington University's long cherished desires, that of possessing a separate building for its School of Law, is assured of fulfillment through the generosity of Miss Isabel Valle January, whose gift of such an edifice, to cost more than $200,000, was announced yesterday by Robert S. Brookings, president of the Washington University Corporation.

The building will be a memorial to the donor's mother, Mrs. Grace Valle January, who died at her villa in San Remo, Italy, on March 8, 1919. Under her will. Mrs. January left to her daughter an estate of $2,317,705, half outright, and half to be held in trust. The names, Valle and January, to be perpetuated by the memorial, are of historic distinction in St. Louis. The Valle family were among the earliest French settlers of the future metropolis.

The new law building, together with the Charles Henry Duncker Jr. Hall of Commerce and Finance, will complete the first and main quadrangle on the University campus. The latter building, also a memorial, is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Duncker of Brentmoor, and bears the name of their son, a captain in the 340th Field Artillery, who was killed in France on Oct. 17, 1918. It is expected that both buildings will be completed in time for the opening of the school year of 1921. James P. Jamieson and George Spearl are the architects.

Two Quadrangle Gaps Filled.

While the Hall of Commerce and Finance will fill a gap at the northwest corner of the quadrangle, the law school building, at the Southwest corner, will occupy the present void between the Busch Hall of Chemistry and the Ridgley Library, and will extend as far west as the end of the library reading room.

Plans for the law building have been completed, and call for a structure of two stories and basement, with an extreme length from east to west of 187 feet and a breadth of 54 feet. In keeping with the architecture of the other buildings of the quadrangle, the style will be English collegiate Gothic, and the material will be Missouri red granite for the body of the walls, with cut stone work of Bedford limestone.

One of the chief features of the building is to be a memorial reading room, occupying two-thirds of the second floor, with a great oriel window at the eastern end, overlooking the main quadrangle. This apartment, 112 feet long, 28½ feet wide, and spanned at 12-foot intervals by oaken roof trusses rising to a height of 30 feet from the floor, is designed in the style of the spacious halls of the Tudor period in England.

In announcing the gift, Brookings stated that the building is the result of an inspection of the best equipped law schools in the country, and is expected to be the last word in facilities and equipment for the purpose to which it is dedicated.

"The School of Law of Washington University," said Brookings, "has for years been housed in the rather circumscribed quarters of the second story of the Ridgley library building—which space has been badly needed for library purposes.

"As virtually all of the St. Louis graduates of Harvard, Yale and other Eastern universities have returned to Washington University for their law course, and as the law school has always had associated with it as instructors the ablest men at the St. Louis bar, such as Hitchcock, Madill, Finkelnburg and others, there has been a strong feeling among the law alumni that the school, by reason of its splendid traditions, was worthy of a dignified home on the campus.

"It is with great gratification, therefore, that the university is able to announce that, through the generous gift of Miss Isabel Valle January, as a memorial to her mother, Grace Valle January, the long-cherished desire of the law school alumni and the university is to be realized."

Board Voices Appreciation.

The University Board has passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, No need of the university has been more pressing than a building for the School of Law; and

"Whereas, The generous gift of Miss Isabel Valle January in memory of her mother, Grace Valle January, will provide a fitting home for the school, which is one of the most important departments of the university; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the board unanimously tenders Miss Isabel Valle January its sincere appreciation of her generous gift, and begs to express its special gratification at having the city's historic names of Valle and January associated in perpetuating its work."

Prior to her death at the age of 67 Mrs. January had for a number of years lived in Italy with her daughter. Mrs. January was the wife of Jesse Lindell January, son of Mrs. Julia C. January. Mrs. Isabel Valle January was survived by three sisters—Mrs. Zoe Lightfoot of St. Louis and Mrs. Frederick Ewing and Mrs. Isabel Austen of New York City.

KING AT DANGER POINT; GREECE TO HAVE REGENT

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Oct. 16.—King Alexander, critically ill as the result of a bite recently inflicted by a monkey, suffered two hours of the most dangerous crisis Friday night.

The Cabinet met at midnight and decided to summon the late Parliament for the election of a regent.

A bulletin said the King's temperature rose to 40 degrees centigrade (104 degrees Fahrenheit), while his pulse was 130 and respiration 30. Later the King's temperature reduced to 39.2 centigrade (102.56 degrees Fahrenheit), and his pulse to 114, the bulletin added.

CHRISTENSEN SAYS LEAGUE IS DEVICE OF BROKERS' SOVIET

"And I for one believe it is high time to forget war bitterness. I am ready to shake hands with our brothers in Germany.

"I hate Kaiserism and Junkers, but I do not hate the German Junkers any worse than I do those in the United States.

"We have two great groups in the United States, the exploiter and the exploited, the skinner and the skinned, 96 per cent of the people being in the class of skinned and about 4 per cent in that class of human cockroaches whose emblem is a large vulture, one wing of which is the Republican and the other the Democratic party.

"The press charges that we are stirring up class unrest, but let it, for if I have the capacity to stir the people I am following in the steps of the Carpenter of Nazareth, who drove from the temple the money-changers, some of whom no doubt had to leave before they got mortgages on the bulls which farmers had led up to sell.

"During the war when your sons were bleeding in the trenches and you were bleeding from oversubscription, the plutocrats swaggered about wrapped in the flag, protesting their 100 per cent Americanism and taking excess profits, which none but a brute would have done. If we had taken over the coal, steel, packing and textile industries and operated them at prevailing prices we could have paid off the stock, watered stock, and all evidences of ownership and have obtained title in fee simple to the properties. And had we applied an honest tax to profits during the war we could almost have paid for the struggle as we went instead of piling up a war debt of 26 to 30 billions."

Charges "Conspiracy of Silence."

A "conspiracy of silence" against him on the part of newspapers was charged by Christensen who said that "long meaningless articles from Gov. Cox and Senator Harding" are printed daily while "you rarely see mention of me, and I say as many words and I suspect tell more truths than they do."

"We propose to democratize industry," said the nominee, "for our platform declares for the 'right of labor to an increasing share in the responsibilities and management of industry, application of this principle to be developed in accordance with the experience of actual operation.' We propose that in basic industries the workers shall select a number of directors and that I as president will name a few to represent those in other industries and the rest of the people, these to be ratified by the Senate. And then all those directors will select the ablest of the workers in that industry to manage it.

Would Democratize Industry.

"Industry ought to be democratized, for in 1917 Armour & Co., distributed $18,000,000 in wages and salaries to 22,000 employes while to J. Ogden Armour, his son and daughter, it gave $21,000,000. And this is just an example."

The Farmer-Labor party does not hold up an ideal as the last word in economics, Christensen said, "for we admit that we are opportunists, going as fast as a people can. We have no controversy with Socialists. Socialism is the great reservoir out of which we take what we think is good for the people. It is an idea that is bigger than a party. May its banner be kept high."

Christensen predicted that his party will elect many Congressmen, mentioning Jeremiah O'Leary in New York and "Fighting" Houck in Washington.

In closing he took a parting shot at the League of Nations, saying that he believed it will not protect weaker countries or assure self-determination, and that the Farmer-Labor party believing in the rights of nationalities holds that Ireland as a national which for 750 years had been struggling for freedom, is entitled to recognition.

Christensen, who is six feet four inches in height, speaks fluently and with good presence. His gestures, though few, are graceful. He was clad in blue serge and wore a white shirt, soft collar and white wash tie. He is a bachelor, the crowd was informed, as he was being introduced.

Nominee for Governor Speaks.

Vaughn Hickman of Columbia, nominee for Governor of the Farmer-Worker party, Missouri branch of the Farmer-Labor party, spoke before Christensen arrived. He labeled the League of Nations as the "League of Hell" and declared that his party stands for repeal of the Esch-Cummins railroad law.

He introduced the Rev. Dr. George F. Hall of Chicago, formerly a minister in the Christian chrch, who is traveling with Christensen as representative of the National Committee of the Farmer-Labor party. Hall made a plea for funds and 11 women and girls, with bright new tin pie pans passed through the audience and collected what Hall afterward said amounted to nearly $500. He said that half of it will go to the City Committee here and the rest to the National Committee. Asked how much money the latter body has, he said "We always are broke, for we spend it as fast as it comes in."

A committee of St. Louis Farmer-Laborites went to Granite City to meet Christensen, and piloted him across the McKinley Bridge and to the Armory, several Farmer-Laborites from Alton, Granite City and East St. Louis returning with them for the meeting.

Christensen and Hall departed on a night train for Kansas City where the nominee is to speak today. They then go on through the West.

LIVES 18 MILES AWAY, VISITS HERE FIRST TIME IN 55 YEARS

Edwardsville Man Says St. Louis Has Changed Quite a Bit Since 1865.

George Putnam, a retired Edwardsville business man, spent yesterday afternoon in St. Louis. He had not been to the city for 55 years, although he lived all the time but 18 miles away, and there are three steam roads and three electric interurban lines between St. Louis and Edwardsville.

He returned in time, for supper, but in the meantime there had been consternation at the St. James Hotel, which is his home. When his absence was noted Mrs. Harry Kirkpatrick, the proprietor, and her assistants, searched the building for him.

"St. Louis has changed quite a bit since 1865," said Putnam when he returned.

Paderewski said: "I shall be glad, indeed, to have my playing reproduced with such fidelity."

THE DUO-ART

The Piano of Today

THE Duo-Art Piano offers more to the music lover than any instrument ever before created.

It offers him the happiness and satisfaction of owning one of the finest Grand or Upright Pianos the market provides—a Steinway, a Steck, a Wheelock, a Stroud or a famous Weber.

It offers him in its Pianola action, even if his hands are unskilled, a means of playing the piano himself.

It offers him the inestimable privilege of bringing the greatest pianists in the world to his own home and fireside and there hearing them play whenever he desires.

You are invited to hear the Duo-Art
Your old piano or player taken in exchange.

PROMPTLY REPORT FAILURE TO RECEIVE ANSWERS.

AFTER-ELECTION RUSH IN REALTY IS ANTICIPATED

Present Demand Less Aggressive, but Undercurrent of Sentiment Among Operators Is Said to Be Reassuring.

SUPPLIES SCARCITY TO RESTRICT SALES

Diversion of Capital Toward Expensive Properties Expected to Increase Money Volume in Transactions.

By Berry Moore.

While demand is less aggressive than formerly, the undercurrent of sentiment toward real estate is of the reassuring order and consensus of opinion is that after the election, whatever the outcome, the movement will take on wide scope.

Sales will not be so numerous as heretofore, according to Jack Dubinsky of Goldwasser & Dubinsky, one of the most aggressive agencies and operators in realty, owing to the fact that the supply of residential offerings has been well-night absorbed and that much of the remainder has been withdrawn from sale owing to skepticism of owners as to their chances of finding other places in which to live. That which has been bought on speculation is virtually all that remains for buyers of homes, Dubinsky declares.

Homeseekers on a small scale, however, have the alternative of purchasing single flats, which constitute a home as well as an investment. The supply of this type of building is also being rapidly acquired for investment and residential purposes, it being especially attractive for investment because of its high rental returns.

Larger Volume in Prospect.

The volume of money in real estate transactions will be larger in the future, with the diversion of capital toward apartment and business buildings and hotels, which is now in full swing, as mediums of speculation and investment, according to Charles Kunz of Franciscus & Kunz, one of the largest general real estate concerns in the city, since holdings of this character return handsome rentals and their investment status is being steadily enhanced.

A score of major building projects, both of a mercantile, office building, hotel and industrial nature, are in abeyance, pending the election, after which it is believed capital will be in ample supply and at normal rates of interest. Meantime, options are being taken on sites, which is taken to mean that the promoters are waiting only for the signal to begin operations.

Handsome Building for Corner.

Plans have been made for a handsome building for the southwest corner of Eighteenth and Olive streets, the first floor of which is to be occupied by the Union Station Trust Co., which recently purchased the site from Frank A. Ruf, a client of the Mercantile Trust Co., through Clyde E. Ketcham, for $150,000. While the plans for this project are definite and complete, construction cannot be launched until after the public hearing on the widening of Olive street, which is scheduled for Nov. 16. With its future known, doubtless there will be a stampede to obtain control of eligible sites on this great highway, which will be greatly enhanced with the execution of this project.

With the recession in the prices of building material, in which lumber has taken the lead, the demand for vacant ground is quickening, according to the Johnston & Johnston Real Estate Co., which is making a specialty of the sale of home and factory sites in the northwestern part of the city. This firm is closing many sales to homeseekers who will begin construction of homes as soon as conditions are more favorable.

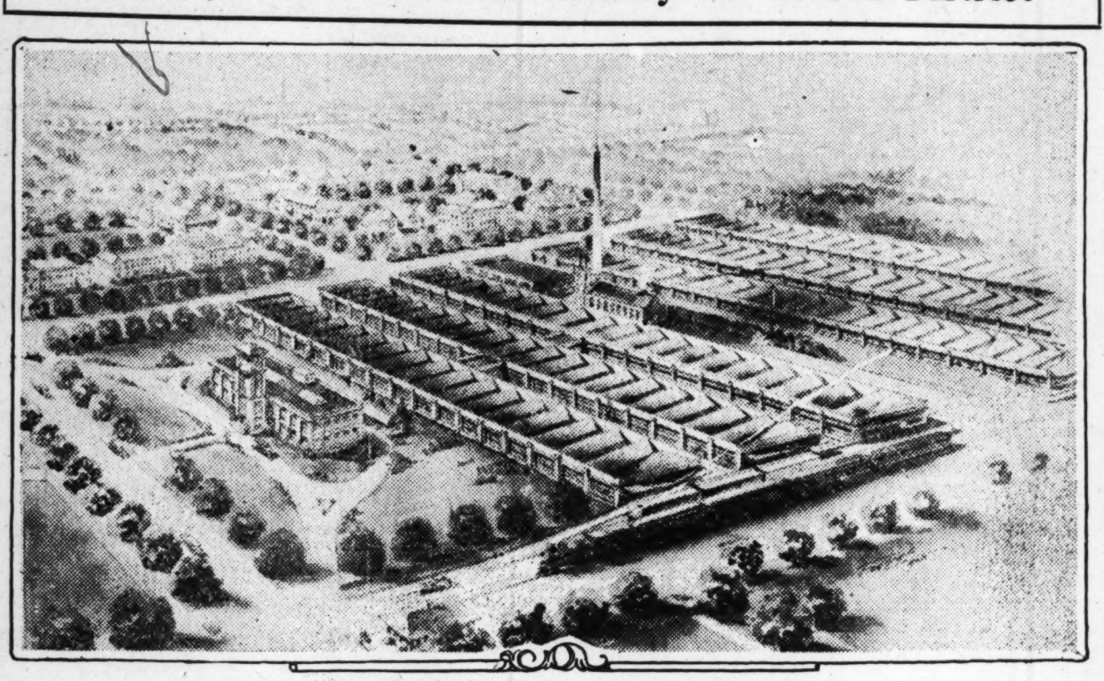
Architects Form Organization.

The Southern Illinois Architects' Business Association was formed yesterday at a meeting in Edwardsville. The following were present: M. B. Kane, Edwardsville; Albert B. Frankel, Frank P. Riester and Bernard A. Mueller, East St. Louis; Otto W. Rubach, Belleville; George D. Pfieffenberger and James M. Maupin, Alton, and Edward C. Pauley, Granite City. Pfeiffenberg was elected temporary chairman and Riester temporary secretary. Permanent organization will be effected at a meeting in East St. Louis on Oct. 29.

Cigar Company Leases Corner Store.

C. M. Turley of Isaac T. Cook's office, reports having leased the ground floor of the Columbia Building, Eighth and Locust streets, to the General Cigar Co., Inc., which will open there its first retail store in St. Louis.

Property Interests Back Industry for Closed District



The POWER TRUCK and TRACTOR CO..

As was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the Power Truck and Tractor Co. of Detroit has contracted with the John Grether Real Estate Co. to purchase a tract of 12¾ acres, bounded by Switzer and Goodfellow avenues and the Wabash tracks, as a site for an extensive factory.

This company operates on the postal coupon bond system, under which each member, when he finds a person in the market for a truck, turns in his name and address to the plant.

Spokesmen for the company say it is planning to expend between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in putting the St. Louis plant into operation.

The site which the company prefers is in what is known as a second residential district, from which factories are excluded by the new zoning ordinance. Because of this, approval by the city plan Commission must be had before a permit can be obtained for the erection on it of an industrial plant.

B. B. Craven, representing the Power Truck & Tractor Co. has laid before the City Plan Commission a petition subscribed to by property holders in the district in question in behalf of the enterprise. In the petition it is set forth that: "Approximately 1000 of the 2500 people already interested in the company as shareholders are residents of St. Louis, and the company expects to have over 3000 residents of the city interested, and the company expects to make this its main plant, and will employ a great number of skilled workmen, and this will tend to build up the neighborhood surrounding the district."

DRIVE ADDS MANY TO REALTY EXCHANGE

Organized Effort to Build Up Associate Membership of Body to Continue Three Weeks.

Reports from the membership campaign of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange show two of the large department stores among the new associate members, also a number of women, several architects and contractors and many individuals not directly concerned in real estate affairs. The department stores are Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney and B. Nugent & Bro.

Realtors in the drive believe the wide interest is due to the announced program of the exchange, which is to actively work for a change in the existing income tax laws and for laws which will bring more money into building, thereby alleviating the housing shortage.

The drive began three weeks ago, and will continue another three weeks. The teams are working to bring into the exchange all men and women who will have interest in membership. Two meetings of team captains have been held and two others are contemplated. The next one being scheduled for Wednesday noon, at which reports on the campaign will be given. President Joseph W. Hannauer is acting jointly with Maj. James L. Barngrove, chairman of the Campaign Committee, in managing the drive.

At the last meeting a total of 240 new members were reported. Some of these were actives, but most of them were in the new associate membership class. C. M. McDonald, captain of one of the teams, reported the largest number of members of both classes.

74 OF 75 PAIRS OF STOLEN TROUSERS RECOVERED IN CELLAR

Seventy-four out of 75 pairs of trousers stolen from the A. W. and H. Lucke Dry Goods Co., 2005 Lynch street, by "truck burglars" Friday night, were recovered yesterday by detectives in a cellar beneath the lunch stand of Frank M. Hemmings, 45 years old, a negro, at 218 Poplar streets, after Chief Hannegan had received information that "something of interest" might be found by a search of the cellar. Five overcoats, also part of the $1000 worth of clothes taken in the burglary, were found also in the cellar.

Hemmings was not at home at the time and on his arrival later was arrested. He declared he did not know how the stolen goods got in the cellar and advanced the theory that possibly the burglars, hard pressed, had shoved the goods through a trap window that opens inward from the sidewalk, intending to return for the goods later.

Police records show Hemmings served part of a 12-year sentence for burglary in 1910 and served another sentence of two years in prison which was a reduction from a 10-year sentence on his conviction of murder in the second degree for killing another negro with his fist.

RULING ON SWEET CIDER SALE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Sweet cider containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol may be manufactured and sold without permits, under a ruling issued today.

It must be marketed, however, in closed containers or so treated as to prevent fermentation with resulting increase in alcoholic content. Responsibility for this rests with the manufacturer.

DELMAR HEIGHTS LOT BUYERS PLANNING EARLY IMPROVEMENT

Delmar Heights, the bungalow subdivision being marketed by the Schollmeyer Real Estate Co., is reported moving well, several sales being made during the week to purchasers who intend to build without delay.

The lots are being sold with a guarantee as to the installation of improvements, and the company expects that prices will advance as soon as work commences on the grading, within the next 10 days.

The subdivision is close to the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line, at Central avenue. Delmar boulevard bisects the tract from Hanley road to the North and South road.

SALESMAN HELD IN CARUSO ROBBERY AFTER TRAP IS LAID

Detectives Listen in While He Makes Offer to Sell Diamonds to Sisters.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Harry C. Toback, 32 years old, who says he is a salesman living in Brooklyn, was arrested this evening after he had offered to dispose of $45,000 worth of unset diamonds which he represented as comprising part of the loot taken from the home of Enrico Caruso, the tenor, in East Hampton, L. I., last June.

Toback was arrested as he was leaving the rooms of Mrs. Catherine Poillon Smith and her sister, Charlotte Poillon, both of whom in recent years have received much newspaper publicity under the title of the Poillon sisters.

According to the police, Toback was introduced to the sisters several months ago. Several days ago, on a visit to their apartment, he informed them he was in possession of the jewels that had been stolen from the Caruso home. He said, according to the police, he would sell the jewels, valued at $93,000, for cost.

There has been a standing reward of $10,000 for the recovery of the Caruso gems since last summer. After Toback left their apartment the sisters reported the affair to the underwriters for the company which had the risk on the Caruso jewels, who got into communication with the police.

The Poillon apartment was rigged with dictaphones and the Poillons made an engagement with Toback to call this afternoon. Two detectives and an Assistant District Attorney listened in and heard Toback offer to sell $45,000 worth of the Caruso diamonds for $30,000. The women made a further appointment with him and as he left the apartment he was arrested. At headquarters he denied any knowledge of diamonds or of the Caruso robbery.

MACSWINEY REPORTED BRIGHTER ON 65TH DAY OF HIS FAST

Family Said to Have Word That Pope Does Not Regard Hunger Strikers as Committing Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Terence MacSwiney, the hunger-striking Lord Mayor of Cork, was reported by the Brixton prison doctor this morning as having passed a fairly good night, says a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League. This was the sixty-fifth day of the Lord Mayor's strike.

AGENTS FOR NATURAL PARK OPEN NUTTING PRIVILEGE TO KIDDIES

Another week of activity in the General Motors district is reported by Franciscus & Kunz, agents for Natural Park, formerly the home of the late Capt. Clark, at Pine Lawn. This has long been known as the show place of St. Louis County. Capt. Clark was noted as a horticulturist. He grew many trees on the tract the like of which cannot be found elsewhere in this vicinity, including chestnut, walnut and cedar.

This is the nutting season, and the agents extend an invitation to the public to visit the tract, bring the kiddies, as the ground is covered with chestnuts and walnuts.

Natural Park can be reached by transferring from Wellston to Kirkwood-Ferguson cars.

TWO RESIDENCES AND SPACIOUS SITE IN COUNTY REPORTED SOLD

Albert T. Terry & Co. report the sale of 80x200 feet of ground on the south side of Cecil avenue, in Skinker Heights, for Henry T. Ferriss, to Robert Gaylord.

Also sold the home of the late Judge Rowell, 4579 West Pine boulevard, 15 rooms, lot 80x150 feet.

Also sold 5032 Westminster place, 13-room residence, for Warren Johnson, to Dr. Walter Baumgarten, represented by Hildenbrandt & Noble.

New Hamilton Hotel Agent.

Cornet & Zeibig have been appointed agents for the Hamilton Hotel building, at the southeast corner of Maple and Hamilton avenues, representing the owner of the property. The building is under lease to H. L. Weaver.

HAT COMPANY LEASES LUCAS AV. BUILDING

Direct-by-Mail Concern With Large Domestic and Foreign Trade Adds to Its Facilities.

The Apple Hat Co. has leased the seven-story building at the northwest corner of Seventh street and Lucas avenue as an addition to buildings it already occupies in the manufacture and sale of hats and caps. The lease was arranged by the John B. Krueger Real Estate Co., representing the lessee, and the Bush-Burns Real Estate Co. as agent for Patrick Burns, owner of the property.

The hat company was organized at Fort Smith, Ark., in 1898, but the growth of its business became such that in 1915 it removed to St. Louis, as the logical location for a new and larger corporation, which was then launched.

The concern is one of the foremost hat and cap makers and distributors in the United States.

In 1919 it changed its operating system to the direct-by-mail method, as a result of which, according to its members, Apple hats and caps are sold throughout the United States and in 11 foreign countries.

DOWN WITH A CRASH

When building material comes down, vacant ground will go up; this is inevitable. Vacant property is the only commodity that has not advanced since the war—there has been no inflation in the price of building lots; the advance is here NOW.

The more advantageously located, the more the advance, for location is the basis of all real estate values.

DELMAR HEIGHTS

HOMES MUST BE BUILT AT ONCE. ST. LOUIS MUST WAKE UP AND TAKE CARE OF HER PEOPLE. VACANT LOTS ARE BOUND TO ADVANCE IN PRICE. BUY NOW IN THIS NEW SUBDIVISION AND GET THE BENEFIT OF THE ADVANCE.

Prices, $25 Per Foot and Up. Easy Terms

Delmar Heights has all the conveniences of the city and yet is far enough to have all the advantages of the country. Located on Delmar Bl., just west of Hanley Road. Take Kirkwood-Ferguson car to Central Av. in Clayton, walk two blocks or drive out Delmar Av. to the property.

Do You Want to Live in Your Own Kenwood Springs Efficiency Bungalow?

Come out and inspect the three new bungalows just being completed in Kenwood Springs. Kenwood Springs is a delightful place to live and property is increasing in value every year. You can move in one of these bungalows in about two weeks. Payment just like rent—$50 to $75 per month.

These beungalows have every convenience. Two on Salome avenue have five rooms with seven-room efficiency, and the other, on Sylvan place, seven rooms with nine-room efficiency. One bungalow has a garage connected with the house.

If you do not want to own your own home until next Spring, buy a lot now. We have four good lots left; all improvements. Terms—$10 cash and $10 per month, and arrangements can be made to build a bungalow for you.

To get to Kenwood Springs drive out Natural Bridge Road to 6500 west, or take a Kirkwood-Ferguson car to Kenwood Springs.

Phone Mr. A. A. Fischer—Cabany 1310—who has an office at Kenwood Springs, for an appointment to show you the bungalows, or get particulars

TORN SHIRT TAIL USED TO CONNECT MAN WITH HOLDUP

Theodore Jacobsmeyer Says Highwayman Who Shot Him Had Garment Like Police Suspect's.

A shirt tail which wasn't all there was the distinguishing mark by which Theodore Jacobsmeyer of 2026 College avenue yesterday identified Richard Jones, 24 years old, of 4450 Swan avenue, as the man who attempted to hold him up, and shot him in front of 2172 Linton avenue, Thursday night.

Jacobsmeyer said that in the struggle he pulled the robber's shirt from his trousers, and noticed that a corner of the shirttail had been cut or torn off. Policemen examined the shirt worn by Jones when arrested Friday afternoon, and found that a corner was torn off, as Jacobsmeyer had said.

Too Friendly With Cop.

Jones was one of three men arrested as a result of being too friendly and hospitable to a policeman. The others are Thomas Lahert, 25, 4234 Kennerly avenue, and John Votava, 23, a service car chauffeur, of 6141 Bertha avenue. The three were identified by four of 17 persons waylaid in various parts of town in 10 highway robberies Thursday night and early Friday. In each instance the robbers had an automobile in which they escaped.

Patrolman Theodore Boss of the Angelica Street District Friday afternoon saw three men in an automobile drive up to Alfred Shinneman's saloon at 7200 North Broadway. He noticed that the men conferred with their heads together before entering the saloon. He went to a side door and entered the saloon just as the three were entering at the front door.

Men Grow Hospitable.

The men saw him and greeted him effusively, saying "Good-day, officer. Come and have a drink." Boss accepted the invitation and took a glass of soda. The strangers then insisted that he have a cigar. This aroused Boss' suspicions. He drew his revolver and covered the men, while the saloon keeper telephoned the police station. A passing mounted policeman was called in. He searched the automobile and found an automatic pistol under the front seat.

Bernhardt Kaemmerer of 4234 West Kossuth avenue, identified Jones and Lahart as men who held him up at Kossuth and Clarence avenues at 11:30 p. m. Thursday. They took a new blue serge coat from him. Lawrence Dietz of 5863 Cote Brilliante avenue, who was held up with Kaemmerer and robbed of a watch and chain, identified Lahart.

Carl Livingston, a Jefferson avenue line street car conductor, who was held up and robbed of street car tokens and money at Jefferson and Geyer avenues at 1 a. m. yesterday, identified Votava as the taller of two men who searched him and escaped in an automobile.

The three men arrested made no statement except general denials that they were highwaymen.

Two more victims of the automobile highwaymen gangs were added to the list yesterday.

Rev. Father Heffernan of the Holy Rosary Church, 3916 North Newstead avenue, told the police he was walking on Kossuth avenue between Newstead and Clarence avenues at 11 p. m. Thursday when an automobile containing, he believed, five men drove up to the curb.

Two men got out with revolvers and ordered him to throw up his hands. He complied, and the men searched the pockets of his clothes, found nothing of value and drove away after warning him to keep quiet. Rev. Heffernan said he was attired in the clothes of a priest at the time.

The other victim was Oliver E. Bruening of 4206 W. Kossuth avenue, who had a similar experience near his home. The men obtained 75 cents from him.

NEWSBOY KILLED BY AUTO PASSING STANDING CAR

Struck When He Runs to Offer Papers to Passengers—Machine Driven by Salesman.

Russell Anderson, 12 years old, a newsboy, was killed at 5:30 p. m. yesterday in front of his home at 6701 Manchester avenue by an automobile driven by Roy S. Kemper, 32, of 7379 Flora avenue, Maplewood, a salesman. He was struck when he ran out to offer his papers to passengers on a Manchester street car which was standing in front of the Manchester car sheds taking compressed air.

His death, with that of Clemen A. Martin, 22, a negro, who died at City Hospital No. 2 at 1 p. m. yesterday of injuries suffered Friday, made the ninetieth motor vehicle fatality in the city since Jan. 1.

Started to Pass Standing Car.

Kemper related to the police that he had been following the street car westbound for some distance and had slowed down and stopped with it in front of the car sheds. He said that he kept the automobile at a standstill until all passengers had alighted and until he saw the motorman alight to make the air connection. He then started to pass the car, he said.

Other witnesses told the police that the newsboy had run from the south sidewalk toward the car, had passed ahead of it and had turned to go alongside to offer his papers to passengers who might be sitting at open windows on the right side at the instant that Kemper started to pass the car. The automobile knocked him down and passed over him. He was carried into the car sheds, where a physician said that he had died almost instantly of a fractured skull. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Anderson.

Injured Trying to Board Truck.

Martain, who resided at 1424 Singleton street, was injured Friday at 6:15 a. m. as he tried to board a truck of the St. Louis Cordage Co., 1128 South Eleventh street, while it was moving on the Free Bridge near the west approach. He suffered back and internal injuries.

Louis Ruesbueldt, 74, of 2609 Elliot avenue, suffered scalp wounds and cuts and bruises yesterday at 1 p. m. when struck in front of 2535 North Market street by an automobile driven by Joseph Heiden, 23, of 2737 Cass avenue. Ruesbueldt had started across the street from a wagon with which he goes about selling pork products.

Edward D. Roberts, 52, of 3120 Washington avenue, suffered cuts and bruises when struck at 3 p. m. at Seventh and Chestnut streets by an automobile driven by Mrs. Charles D. Polt of 1280 Hamilton avenue. No arrests were made.

COTTON INTERESTS OF GEORGIA ASK WILSON TO OUST HOUSTON

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—Resolutions calling on President Wilson to remove Secretary of the Treasury Houston from office because of his, "persistently unfriendly attitude toward agriculture," weer adopted today at the annual meeting of the Georgia division of the American Cotton Association. The resolution, which was adopted after a half hour's discussion, makes the following complaint against Secretary Houston:

"That he started the raid on cotton in September, 1918, with an interview declaring that 25 cents a pound was a fair price for cotton, when it was then selling for 38 cents; that his well-known unfriendly attitude toward the agricultural interests while he was Secretary of Agriculture caused the farmers of the country to object strenuously to his appointment as Secretary of the Treasury, but these objections were disregarded by President Wilson; that since his appointment as head of the Treasury Department he has continued his unfriendly attitude toward agriculture by issuing statements and propaganda to reduce the price of farm products, and has continued this propaganda so persistently and effectively that the price of cotton and other agricultural products has declined below the cost of production, thereby causing the loss of millions of dollars to the farmers of the United States."

City News in Brief

FRANK TURNER OF 3649 WISCONSIN avnue has appealed to the police to aid him in searching for his son, Paul, 15 years old. The boy has been missing from his home since Tuesday night.

EDWARD T. HALL WILL BE THE speaker at the luncheon of the Advertising Club at Hotel Statler Tuesday at 12:15. Following his talk, there will be a short play enacted by the advertising department of the club.

MRS. ADELE FRANK OF 4328 DELMAR boulevard was robbed of a handbag containing $1 and some trinkets on an Olive car yesterday. J. O. Hayes of San Francisco, staying at the Marquette Hotel, was robbed of a purse and $60 when boarding an Olive car at Eighteenth street.

BURGLARS KNOCKED THE COMBINATION off a safe in the office of the Eckhoff Furniture Co., Twenty-first and Branch streets, early yesterday and removed the caps from the singles but failed to get the outer doors open. A wrench and crowbar which they used were taken from an engine room in the plant and left in front of the safe when they abandoned their efforts.

VINCEL E. ROBERTS, 27 YEARS OLD, of 1651 South Jefferson avenue, a driver for the American Express Co., was arrested by detectives yesterday and admitted, they say, the theft of 1 overcoats and four suits from shipments on his wagon which had been intrusted to him to deliver. On his statements the detectives later arrested Hobart Eaton, 21, of 1121 Rutger street, who admitted having sold some of the clothing for Roberts. Five overcoats and the suits were recovered.

Just one year ago you left us,
How we miss you, Mary, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we shed our silent tear.
We know that you are happy
Now in a mansion of the blest,
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
In one sweet eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
MR. AND MRS. H. J. SCHMIDT.

In loving memory of our dear son, Charles Slater, who died just two years ago today, Oct. 17:

Oh, dear Charlie, how I miss you;
None but your mother can tell
How my poor heart did ache
When you went to heaven to dwell,
While I on earth do remain,
I never will be happy till we meet in heaven again.
May his soul rest in peace.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER, BROTHER, WIFE AND BABY.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Josephine Haberkorn, who departed this life one year ago, Oct. 17, 1919:

Oh, mother, dear, it is just one year,
Since you left us broken-hearted.
Those who saw you in your casket,
Pure and white, and oh, so fair;
Thought you were the light of heaven.
As you lay so sweet there.
We saw you waste and fade away,
We heard you pant for breath,
We saw upon your sunken cheeks,
The fatal sign of death.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, DAUGHTER, MOTHER AND SISTERS. (c)

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Bugler Gus R. Abeling, Company 239, Tenth Sanitary Train, who died in the service of his country at Fort Riley, Kansas, Oct. 15, 1918:

Two years have passed, our hearts still sore,
As time goes no we miss you more;
If we had seen you at the last
And held your dying hand,
And heard the last sigh from your heart,
We would not feel so bad.
Do not ask us if we miss him,
Oh, there's such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear his footsteps
Or we see his smiling face,
Though from you we had to part,
Your memory will always dwell in our hearts.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

F. L.—A 25c piece of 1840 is worth 25c to 35c.

WORRIED.—Ask at the bank concerning the money which you think is still on deposit there.

EDITH W.—A man might wear a pearl Ascot or once-over cravat to match his gloves, at an afternoon church wedding.

AN ANXIOUS READER.—A small cent of the year 1863, if it is copper-nickel, is worth 1c to 2c, if it is bronze it is worth 25c to 50c; a 3-cent piece of the year 1865, proof coin only, is worth 5c to 10c; Lincoln penny, 1909, is worth 1c to 2c. Old coin collectors pay premiums on rare coins.

HARRY.—The seven wonders of the ancient world are: The pyramids of Egypt; Pharos of Egypt; the hanging gardens of Babylon; the temple of Diana at Ephesus; the statue of Jupiter by Phidias; the mausoleum of Artemisia; the Colossus of Rhodes. The seven wonders of the middle ages were: the Coliseum of Rome; the catacombs of Alexandria; the great wall of China; Stonehenge; the leaning tower of Pisa; the porcelain tower of Nankin; the mosque of St. Sophia in Constantinople. The seven new wonders of the world are: the wireless, the telephone, the aeroplane, radium, antiseptics and antitoxins, spectrum analysis, and X-rays.

C. C. MAA.—Capt. Edward Vernon (Eddie) Rickenbacker was born at Columbus, O., Oct. 8, 1890. He became widely known as an auto racer and won championships at national and international meets. He accompanied Gen. Pershing to France as a member of the Motor Car Staff, June, 1917. He was transferred to the Air Service at his own request, Aug. 25, 1917, and assigned as an engineer officer to the Issoudan Training Field. He then became commanding officer of the Ninety-fourth Aero Pursuit Squadron, the first American aero unit to actively participate on the Western front. This unit was credited with 69 victories, the largest number of victories of any American unit, and Rickenbacker headed the list with 26 victories to his credit. He was also the first commanding officer to conduct his own squadron into Coblentz. He retired at the close of the war with the rank of Major, having been decorated with the D. S. C. with nine palms; the Legion of Honor, and the French Croix de Guerre with four palms. In 1919 he published a book entitled "Fighting the Flying Circus." Rickenbacker's home is at 1334 East Livingston avenue, Columbus, O. The navy seaplane NC-4 weighs eight tons, fully equipped and manned it weighs 28,567 pounds. It has a maximum speed of 93 miles an hour, and has carried as many as 50 persons. The length over all is 68 feet, having a wing spread of 126 feet, and a hull 46 feet.

INQUISITIVE.—Patent leather for boots and shoes is prepared from sealskins. The process of tanning is what is called "union tannage;" a mixture of oak and hemlock barks. These tanned skins are subjected to the process of soaking, unhairing, liming, etc., and are then subjected to the tanning process. When they are about one-third tanned a buffing is taken off (if the hides are heavy), and the hide is split into three layers. The top or grain side is reserved for enameling in fancy colors for use on carriage tops, the middle layer is finished for splatter boards, carriage trimmings, and some parts of harness; the underneath layer, or flesh side, is used for tops of shoes and other purposes. The tanning of the splits is completed by subjecting them to a gambier liquor instead of a bark liquor. When the splits are fully tanned they are laid on a table and scored then stretched in frames and dried, after which they are covered on one side with a certain compound to close the pores of the leather so that it may present a suitable surface for the varnish. The frames are then put into a rack in a drying closet, and the coated leather dried by steam heat, the heat being gradually raised. After removal from the drying closet, the grounding coat previously laid on is pumiced, to smooth out the surface, and then given two or three coats of enameling varnish. When spread on with a brush, each coating of the enamel is dried before applying the next, and pumiced or rubbed with tripoli powder on a piece of flannel (the coat last laid on is not subjected to this rubbing), and the leather is then ready for market.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

M. E. N.—The divorce granted in St. Louis is legal in England.

READER.—You will not require a license to put a sign proclaiming your business on your front door.

CUMMINGS.—If the other party wishes to hold you, you are bound by your contract and must pay the notes.

J. F. C.—You are required to live in St. Louis one whole year before filing suit for divorce. The suit will cost from $50 to $75 if it is not contested.

VERY ANXIOUS.—If a boy and girl are married, the boy being a minor, the parents cannot cause any trouble, but if the boy made a false affidavit as to his age he may be prosecuted for perjury.

WORRIED.—A common law marriage is effected by an agreement between a man and a woman, neither of whom is then married, to live together as man and wife, followed by an actual living together as such, each one holding the other out to the world as husband and wife. In the case you mention, if there was a common law marriage, the second marriage would be illegal.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

CHEMICAL TESTS.—Tests for grain, wood and denatured alcohol are too intricate to be performed excepting by a chemist. Their description would be too long for this column.

WORRIED.—We do not know of such a thing as "herb-nip." If you mean catnip, which is a herb, this is used as an infusion, or tea, to relieve gas in the stomach and bowels, and as a mild stimulant. The dose is a dessertspoonful. We know of no reliable method for reducing the bust.

ANXIOUS.—In treating such an itch we would advise you to take a full hot soap and water bath, using a coarse wash rag. After drying, rub in thoroughly, from the chin down, the following: Sulphur and balsam of Peru, of each 4 drachms, vaseline 4 ounces, made into a fine ointment. Use this night and morning for five rubbings, then take a hot soap and water bath. On starting this treatment provide clean bed linen and night and undergarments. Do not change these until after the second bath, then again provide clean bed linen, night and undergarments. Do not bathe while taking the rubbings.

THE BEAVER BOARD COMPANIES.

This man has been selling in the Middle West and is familiar with such lines as lumber, sash and doors, paint, roofing or some other building specialties. He is a clean-cut, energetic fellow, between the ages of 25 and 35. He is ambitious to establish his future and realizes the limitations of his present connection. He is an analytical business man rather than the old-time drummer, he believes in co-operating closely with his dealer; he knows the ethics of the business man and formulates permanent connections with his trade. He has a clean record. We are the largest manufacturers of our kind in the world, the pioneers of our industry. We are greatly expanding our business, which makes it necessary that we immediately enlarge our sales organization. If this appeals to you and you have the qualifications, write to our St. Louis office, 1001-3 Arcade Bldg., giving full details of yourself, with our assurance that all communications will be strictly confidential. Your letter with full particulars, references and other information, including your telephone number will secure an immediate interview. We have a genuine opportunity for the right man. (c4)

High Class Salesmen

A large St. Louis corporation is organizing a new sales force. We want only salesmen qualified to earn from three to six thousand dollars per year. Real workers who want pay commensurate with their work will find this an opportunity to advance. A real opportunity for high-grade men. Communications strictly confidential. Box G-153, Post-Dispatch. (c7)

WE for "one" are "aware of the fact" that the "crash to high prices has come." All these "high-price merchants" will certainly have to come off their high horse ("Man-o'-War"). You can't pull that $65, $75 and $100 stuff and "get across with it" at all. "We are with you" for 10 years, have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today," by dressing them up at little or no cost. In cloth and wool suits, 20 to 40 per cent savings on our drummers' samples, suits and overcoats, $19.98, $24.98, $27.98, $29.98. Mackinaw Coat, $9.98, $11.98, $12.98, $14.98. "We claim $5 profit is all we need on any suit." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. (c)

IT AIN'T the "way out," but the way "back" that counts. Everyone in life must have some "incentive," some "goal to reach," something to look "forward" for, to go ahead, to rise, to be prosperous. You can reach it all if you don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have "helped the under dog" to "keep his head above water and looking prosperous" at "all times" we have driven "home" that "saving and prosperous-looking habit" to thousands of people, "dressing them up" at little or no cost to them. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; "start anew;" we are "calling you." What you save when you spend your dough is your profit. Install the "Abrams System" of clothes buying and save. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers; $10 to $20. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50c. Pants, $2 to $3.95. Coats, $5 to $10. Uncalled for Stetson hats, 95c to $1.50. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams, Cleaners and Dyers, 826 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones.

SURPRISINGLY cheap prices on men's sample suits; come and see. 2707 Lafayette. (c62)

TURN YOUR OLD CLOTHES INTO READY CASH.
I never haggle over prices; pay what article is worth; I buy men's suits, overcoats, shoes, etc.; will call on 15 minutes' notice. Write or phone. N. Oeslender, 3020 Glasgow pl.; Bomont 1397J. (c28x)

USED CARS —AT— Bedrock Prices

In order to move every used car in our stock we are making prices that can't be beat in this city.

Following are some of the very best used car values ever offered:

BUICK Touring Car; very little used; good mechanical condition; good paint, tires, top and upholstery; looks like, runs like new, good as new. 1919 model.

DODGE Roadster; good paint; engine just overhauled; four new tires; Goodyear all-weather treads on rear, Republic plain on front; one good spare; price way down.

OVERLAND 90 model Touring; five good tires, three Goodrich nonskid, one Federal, one Miller nonskid; all in A1 condition; this car in fine mechanical condition; good hill climber and speedy. You will be surprised at the price—it is cheap.

Also another just like the above, but repainted a beautiful brewster green with black trimmings. Very low price.

CHEVROLET Sedan, 1920 model; driven entirely by lady who took very good care of it; all tires are in good shape; paint and inside of car is in fine, clean condition; this car is equipped with nice seat covers. Price so low you can't help buying it.

MAXWELL Touring Cars; one as low as $200; all 1917 models. Come and try them out.

OVERLAND Sedan, 1918 model, being rebuilt and repainted; will paint to your order; this is your chance to buy an all-year car at the price of a common touring car.

NEW CARS, 1920 models, at the price of used cars:
1920 Overland Touring $900
1920 Overland Sedan 1275
1920 Chevrolet Touring 900
A special built roadster of the snappiest type, the kind everyone stops to gaze at.

Every car guaranteed unless otherwise specified. Reasonable terms.

Cadillac
STANDARD OF THE WORLD

REBUILT Cadillacs

They are not just overhauled and repainted, but are completely disassembled and rebuilt, each part being carefully inspected, and parts showing the slightest wear are replaced with new.

The inspection covers the smallest parts, even nuts, bolts and screws. After mechanical work is finished, all nickel parts are renickeled, and car is then equipped with new top, side curtains and new tires.

We rebuild so well that none except an expert can discern between the new and the rebuilt car.

All Rebuilt Cadillacs have been reduced in price and carry the NEW CAR GUARANTEE.

TIRES SACRIFICED

Globe Tires at ½ Price

Globe Tires cost more to make than ordinary tires, but they give you about 50 per cent more mileage. That is because mileage is built into Globe tires, slowly and carefully, by hand. Globe Tires are of wrapped-tread construction, large, powerful, oversize, with diamond-shaped depressions that grip the road and prevent side slipping.

$81,557 PERSONALTY LEFT BY WOMAN, WHO ENDED LIFE

Inventory of Estate of Mrs. Alice M. Van Cleave Filed for Probate—Son Only Heir.

Personal property valued at $81,557.49 is included in the estate of Mrs. Alice M. Van Cleave, who ended her life Sept. 16 by gas asphyxiation, at her home, 4732 Westminster place. An inventory was filed for probate yesterday.

Among the items are stock valued at $20,000, in the Buck Stove and Range Co., of which her divorced husband, Lee W. Van Cleave, is president; $16,000 worth of Illinois Central stock, and $25,450 in bonds. The residence in which she lived is mentioned as the only real estate holding of the estate.

Mrs. Van Cleave left no will. Her son, Eugene W. Van Cleave, 11 years old, is her sole heir, she having divorced Van Cleave June 4 last. Letters of administration recently were granted to the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

BANK ROBBER SLAIN BY POSSE WHOSE AUTO KILLS BOY

Two Men Had Fled With $2794 Cash and $3500 Liberty Bonds in Oklahoma.

By the Associated Press

TULSA, Ok., Oct. 16.—One of two men alleged to have robbed the First State Bank of Alluwe, Ok., yesterday, was shot to death near Vinita, in a skirmish with a posse, according to a telephone report to County Attorney C. F. Gowdy of Nowata late last night. The other man was reported to have escaped during the fight.

The two bandits escaped in a motor car with $2794 in cash and $3500 in Liberty Bonds. They were surrounded by four posses in the hills of Northern Nowata County. Posses went in pursuit from Alluwe, Nowata and Tulsa, Ok., and Coffeyville, Kan.

A motor car containing members of the Alluwe posse ran down and killed a 6-year-old boy playing in front of his home near Alluwe.

"PUSS IN BOOTS" AT ARTISTS' GUILD A HIT

Excited Audience of Children Fills Little Theater at First of Saturday Performances.

The Junior Players yesterday presented the first of three successive Saturday matinee performances of Belle Waddell's dramatic adaptation of "Puss in Boots," before an audience of breathlessly excited children and charmed mothers and big sisters that filled the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild.

The play was directed by Mrs. Alice Martin. Costumes were tastefully designed by Marguerite Breen, and the stage settings were by Laurence Ewald. The scenes for the first two acts, exteriors of a mill and a forest, were very pretty, and the last scene, the interior of the ogre's castle, was a fit setting for that gruesome character.

A prologue in behalf of all cats in general, and "Puss in Boots" in particular, was spoken by little Doris Remspecher, mutely assisted by an Angora cat almost half her size.

The children, constituting the larger part of the audience, followed the development of the familiar nursery tale with rapt attention. In the last act, when the ogre described his sanguinary conquests and his diet of dainty maidens and drink of blood and brimstone, there was first a horrified gasp, and then awed silence. A moment later, when Puss so played upon the ogre's vanity that he changed himself into a mouse in order to show his skill in magic, they rose to their feet to be in at the kill.

Most of the cast were new talent for the Junior Players, with the exception of Victor Woerheide, who had the part of Carouche, a brother of Carabas, the fortunate master of Puss in Boots; Adria Sykes, the Queen, and Anita Paul, a lady of the Queen's retinue. James Boe was Puss, James Higgins was Carabas, the part of the Princess was taken by Florence Boe, and that of the ogre by Will De Ford. Other parts were taken by Euel Simpson, Harry Hofmeister, Lalla Bauman, Maxine Williams, Bill Ewald, Raymond Griffin, Vernon Tietjen and David Wells.

Another performance of this play will be given Oct. 23, and the last Oct. 30. The next production, "Snow Drop and the Seven Dwarfs," will be presented about the middle of December.

PRESIDENT CARTER OF C. OF C. RENOMINATED FOR OFFICE

Committee Makes Recommendations, Naming M. L. Wilkinson for First Vice President.

W. Frank Carter, now serving his first term as president of the Chamber of Commerce has been nominated for re-election at the annual election, Nov. 10, by a nominating committee, which reported its recommendations yesterday.

Following are other nominations: First vice president, Melville L. Wilkinson; second vice president, Sidney I. Rothschild; third vice president, F. W. A. Vesper; directors, L. Wade Childress, Augustus O. Lueking, Charles B. Fox, Marshall Hall, Carl F. G. Meyer, John F. Shepley, Robert E. Adreon, Joseph C. Reed, T. W. Van Scholack and Henry A. Boeckeler.

The by-laws of the chamber permit nominations by petition of [illegible] members at any time during the week in which the nominating committee holds daily meetings for the receipt of suggestions. Under this by-law, Phil H. Brockman and Carl F. G. Meyer, the latter also nominated by the committee, were nominated.

Nominations by petition of 50 members is possible at any time during the next seven days, after which the ballot will be composed. [illegible] King Kaufman was chairman of the nominating committee.

GIRL SENIORS DUCK "FRESHIES," 'CLAD' AS 'SEPTEMBER MORNS'

Hazing Prank at Philadelphia School Results in Upper Classers Having to Apologize.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 16.—Hazing of the girl "freshies" at Drexel Institute, for which Seniors have just apologized, was perhaps more colorful than pranks played by college boys. The hazing occurred Wednesday night, when the Seniors broke into a meeting of the Freshmen in the gymnasium. After locking the doors the Seniors led the first-year students to the locker room, where they were compelled to disrobe. Each was then given a small towel and marched back to the "gym."

There they were put through the regular Drexel calisthenics, while the delighted Seniors counted one-two-three. Then they were "ducked" under a shower bath, after which they were permitted to dress and go home.

It was the "September morn" feature that made the younger girls cross.

Dean Mable D. Cherry of Drexel Institute today characterized the actions of the Senior class as a "girlish prank" and declared no cognizance should be taken of it. At the same time Dean Cherry demanded that the Seniors apologize.

Sixty Enroll in Medical Corps Unit.

Dr. Nathaniel Allison, dean of Washington University school of medicine, has forwarded to the medical section of the War Department report of the enrollment of 60 students in the Medical Corps Unit of the R. O. T. C., with formal application for installation of the unit, in line with the proposal of the War Department two weeks ago. It is expected that the special officer detailed by the department will be here and the unit put in active operation this week.

IRISH COUNCIL CALLS FOR DEFEAT OF LEAGUE

National Body's Resolutions Also Declare for Stopping Trade With England.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Repudiation of the League of Nations by the American people at the approaching national election was urged in a resolution adopted by the National Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom, made public today.

The resolution declared the league is "an attempt to undermine and eventually destroy the sovereignty of the United States and make it subordinate to a super-Government controlled by the imperialistic powers of Europe and Asia in whose councils England would have a controlling voice and influence."

The resolution declared "the time had come for crippling the resources of the English enemy, and that no better weapon could be used on this side of the Atlantic than ceasing to trade with the enemy and purchasing American commodities instead."

Every Irish organization in America was urged to "give its best attention to this subject.

DIVORCE ACTION AGAINST WRITER OF "ANTHOLOGY OF SPOON RIVER"

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Edgar Lee Masters, lawyer and poet, has been sued by his wife, Helen Jenkins Masters, for separate maintenance. She charges desertion and nonsupport. Thus may be added another stanza or so to the gossipy "Anthology of Spoon River," the work that brought Masters prominently into the public eye.

According to the suit, they were married June 21, 1898, and separated March 1, 1919. There are three children—Harding, 21 years old, who eloped a couple of weeks ago with Miss Thelma Kenyon of Los Angeles; Madeline, 13, and Marcia, 11.

Mrs. Masters says her husband owns property valued at $20,000 and has an anual income of $12,000. Ever since the separation Masters has been living at a downtown hotel, while his wife and children resided in the home.

Masters first literary effort that attracted more than local attention, was "A Book of Verses," published about the date of his marriage. Since then he has put out a dozen other publications but nothing he has done compares with the "Anthology."

HARDING CLEARLY REJECTED LEAGUE, JOHNSON SAYS

Californian in Chicago Address Quotes at Length From Nominee to Show He "Turned Back on It."

"NO LANGUAGE COULD BE MORE EXPLICIT"

Senator Resents "Imputation on Nominee's Sincerity by Those Who Contend He Will Go In."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, in his first public appearance in Chicago since his defeat for the Republican nomination for the presidency in June, tonight said he was "willing to declare a truce upon all issues and all men" to oppose the League of Nations as the "greatest issue in the United States since the Civil War."

Senator Johnson is concluding a speaking tour through the Middle West at the behest of the Republican National Committee.

During the evening the Senator deviated from the speech he had prepared to defend the Republican nominee against "men and newspapers who pretend to be friends of Senator Harding and who assert that he is to take this country into the League of Nations."

"Put League Behind Him."

Senator Johnson said in part:

"Just now the overshadowing pall on the republic which we love is the Wilson League of Nations. It is the greatest issue in the United States since the Civil War. The line of demarcation in the present campaign is clear—the Democrats are on one side and the Republicans are on the other. There is no ambiguity in the stand of the Republican party or in the stand of Mr. Harding on the League of Nations."

"There is nothing ambiguous or uncertain in our candidate's declaration. He has courageously taken his stand. He has put the league behind him. He wants neither interpretations nor reservations, but outright rejection.

"Where the treaty disposes, the league perpetuates for all time.

"The men and newspapers who pretend to be friends of Senator Harding and who assert that he is to take this country into the League of Nations do him a distinct disservice and pay him a sorry compliment. I speak, of course, solely from the public utterances of our candidate and these utterances make it plain beyond cavil that when Senator Harding is President he will not take the United States into the league.

"In his speech of acceptance he characterized the league as 'a military alliance which menaces peace and threatens all freedom.' He called it the 'supreme blunder' and asserted that he would leave 'America free, independent and self-reliant, but offering friendship to all the world.' He instanced the war between Poland and Russia as indicating what we would have been let in for, in the language of Secretary of State Lansing, but for the action of the Senate, and this Polish-Russian war, he said, 'brought home to us the danger of committing ourselves in advance to causes that we know nothing of. Again he referred to America as a member of the league as 'one in a pitiful minority among many states merged in world government,' and included himself among those who had opposed what 'we sincerely regarded as a betrayal of our own country in the interest of others.'

"Deprecated His Vote."

"He deprecated his vote for reservations and said that conditions had now changed. Experience had brought enlightenment, and he solemnly added:

"'We know now that the league constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventive of wars. It is so obviously impotent that it has not even been tried. It could not survive a single test. The original league, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the period of restoration. The maturer judgment of the world will be that it declined to pass for the simple reason that, contrary to all of the tendencies developed by the civilizing processes of the world, it rested upon the power of might, not of right.'

"To make doubly plain his meaning, in his speech of acceptance, he said: 'I am opposed to the very thought of our republic becoming a party to so great an outrage upon other people who have as good a right to seek their freedom as we had in 1776, and the same right to develop eminence under the inspiration of nationality as we had for ourselves.'

"And yet men and newspapers who claim to be friendly and assert that Senator Harding is 'going into the league' would have him guilty of the very outrage he denounces.

"At Marion, on Sept. 17, Senator Harding said:

"'The constitution of the covenant—that, my countrymen, is the paramount issue. The nation cannot follow Woodrow Wilson without forsaking George Washington.'

"There is, of course, but one answer to this, and that is that Washington's policy of no entangling alliances is the policy of Senator Harding, and that when Harding is President the American policy will be, as ever since we became a nation, the policy enunciated by George Washington. No language could be more explicit or more emphatic than Senator Harding's expressions upon this subject in his speech of acceptance, in his Des Moines speech and at Marion, and I resent the imputation upon his sincerity by those men and newspapers, who, while conceding that he has stated his attitude plainly, contend that he will act at variance with his unequivocal utterances.

"The League of Nations and the treaty are the same instrument, and inextricably commingled.

"Every wrongful, wicked territorial disposition under the treaty of peace, the league and its members are pledged to maintain.

"It would be unjust to future generations for us to guarantee the territorial integrity of other nations.

"America broke faith for the first time in her history at Paris, when President Wilson permitted the robbery of Shantung—the turning of 40,000,000 Chinese over to Japan. We are as babies in swadding clothes in the hands of European diplomats. We are different from the peoples across the seas. They are imperialists; they want new territory; new peoples; we are not imperialists, and desire no additional lands, no new subjects.

"I offered an amendment in the Senate giving the United States six votes in the assembly, the same as England, instead of one. I was denounced as pro-German, Bolshevik, anarchistic, and I don't know what also, and the amendment was lost by two votes. Then Lord Grey of England said that he was perfectly willing that we have six votes! I'll wager the Senators who voted against my amendment put in a bad half-hour when they read that."

Referring to the accusation that the Republican party seeks to fix upon the United States a policy of isolation by not entering the league, Senator Johnson said:

"We've never been isolated in this country, either financially, socially, or politically. We have only been isolated geographically by the two oceans which God gave us, and which President Wilson, or the League of Nations cannot dry up. America never failed to respond to a call of distress, and it never will; but let the American people, and not the European nations decide when."

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

A LETTER

Personally, I feel that Mr. Harding, by repudiating the existing League of Nations, has challenged the Republican Family Men of America, their ability to discern moral and legal values and their fidelity to their greatest trust—the gift of time.

Manifestly, if Law is necessary and good for an individual, it is good and necessary for a nation; and if it is necessary and a good thing for a nation, can it be gainsaid it will be good and necessary for a group or family of nations?

The issue is a moral one. Mr. Harding seemingly has forgotten August, 1914. He has challenged. My sincere hope is that the Republican Family Men of America will take up the challenge; that they will read again and again the Covenant and the wonderful, spiritual Preamble; and after doing this that they will rise above all thought of Party and support Mr. Cox, who so openly champions the idea of joining the rest of the world in placing human welfare in the realm of accepted principles of international law.

OLIVER J. GRACE, Republican.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST WILL CONVENE AT COLISEUM TUESDAY

Three Meetings to Be Held Daily Through Next Sunday—More Than 5000 Expected to Attend.

The annual international convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) will convene Tuesday afternoon in the Coliseum and thereafter each morning, afternoon and evening through next Sunday, except that on next Sunday morning services will be held in the various St. Louis churches.

More than 5000 of the Christian Brotherhood usually attend the international conventions. The Christian Church has a membership of about 2,000,000.

The "Restoration Congress" of the church, which is a gathering of those delegates to the convention who are eager for a return by the church to its primitive principles will conclude its meetings, which have been in progress in the Odeon since Friday, tomorrow afternoon. At that session it is expected that resolutions for presentation to the convention will be passed.

WAR VETERANS BY THOUSANDS PARADE IN BONUS DEMAND

"Say It With a Bonus," Typical Banner in Large Uniformed Procession at New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Thousands of former sailors, soldiers and marines laid their mufti aside today and put on uniform again, to let the country know they want the national bonus. Parading up Fifth avenue with innumerable flags and more than a score of former military bands, the war veterans formed the largest column of uniformed men that has assembled here since the home-coming of various divisions from France. The procession required more than two hours in passing one point.

Leading the lengthy line was Capt. Robert G. Woodside, Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. American Legion posts by the score and other organizations of World war veterans followed in the wake of an army of taxicabs in which the wounded and disabled fighters were given the place of honor.

Riding between the hundreds of disabled and former soldiers on foot were five Indian chiefs who received wounds while fighting with the Americans in France, wearing their tribal costumes and war paint thickly dabbed on their faces. Chief Yellow Hank of the 104th Field Artillery, sat with Chiefs Running Elk, Little Bear, Red Eagle and T. A. Bell in the automobile of Mrs. Randolph Hearst.

Mayor Hylan and a group of municipal officials reviewed the paraders from a stand in front of the public library. Places of honor on the reviewing stand were given "gold star" mothers, whose sons died in the service.

Waving signs and placards, the disabled who rode in cars made clear what the parade was all about. "Omit the Flowers; Say it With a Bonus," and "We Favor the Bonus" were typical of the many banners. "What We Gave Cannot be Replaced" read another.

Hamilton Beach Carpet Washer

An Astounding New Invention

Washes carpets (and dries them) right on the floor

NOW—an absolutely new way to have clean floorcoverings. Rugs and carpets not merely surface-cleaned, but cleaned through-and-through with this amazing device that brings out all the original exquisite design and rich color, that brings back the charm and freshness that first delighted you, that completely renews the life of rugs and carpets that used to be discarded.

In front of the Carpet Washer is dirty carpet, dull design, drab color. Behind it, as it moves forward, gorgeous colors spring into life, the original delicate traceries reappear, the entire rug glows irresistibly new and refreshened, so lustrous, soft, and taintless!—clean smelling, bright as a new penny! And in twenty minutes, these immaculate rugs, with their cleanness convincingly apparent, are ready for immediate service.

For this reason, homes, fine clubs and great hotels, accustomed to sending their carpetings to be laundered, will want them washed the Hamilton Beach way. Rugs used to be rolled up, carpets torn from the floors, and for two weeks rooms were bare, cheerless, and uninhabitable, while rugs were at the cleaners. But now—all this discomfort!—all this hardship!—and the greater part of the expense of this proceeding is entirely unnecessary.

A Permanent Business With a Big Income

With the Hamilton Beach Carpet Washer it is easy to make from $30.00 to $50.00 a day. Only 30 minutes is needed to clean a 9x12 rug, which at only 3c a square foot pays $3.24 or better than $6.00 a hour. In all the large cities the cleaning establishments charge from 8c to 10c a square foot for cleaning Orientals and at these prices the machine would earn an immense income. And the Hamilton Beach Carpet Washer, that enables you to get into this well-paying business with its amazing profits, costs only $285.00.

Get the full facts! Send for proof of profits and learn all about this quick, easy, big money-maker. Check the coupon and send it today.

Famous chef sends recipe for new cream soup

Mr. Edouard Panchard, world-famous chef of the Hotel McAlpin in New York City, has revealed to us a recipe we know will interest you.

Next time you want something particularly good, something out of the ordinary—something with that subtle flavor which only the French cook knows how to achieve—try M. Panchard's recipe for Cream Soup Royale.

Cream Soup Royale

1-2 pint Libby's Evaporated Milk	1 sprig parsley
3 tablespoons butter	1 sprig thyme
6 tablespoons flour	1-2 bay leaf
1 pint chicken broth	1 slice onion
	Cayenne to taste

Salt to taste

Melt the butter in the saucepan. Put in the flour which should be sifted, stir briskly over the fire for five minutes, gradually adding the chicken broth and Libby's Evaporated Milk.

The soup should be withdrawn from the fire, while the liquid is stirred in, then returned to the fire to thicken. Add parsley, bay leaf, thyme and onion and cook for 15 minutes.

If the soup has been properly made it should be perfectly smooth. When seasoned it will be ready to serve.

Libby's Evaporated Milk is so rich and creamy that it makes all your cooking noticeably more appetizing. Order a supply from your grocer today.

Skin Blemishes
How to get rid of them

Skin specialists are tracing fewer and fewer troubles to the blood. They say that more often skin blemishes can be traced to the bacteria and parasites that are carried into the pores of the skin with dust, soot and grime. To clear your skin of blemishes caused by this insidious and persistent enemy, use regularly the following special treatment:

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap; then dry your face. Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this soap cream and leave it on for ten minutes. Rinse very carefully with clear, hot water; then with cold.

In addition to this special treatment, use Woodbury's regularly in your daily toilet. This will make your skin firm and active. It will help the new skin to resist the frequent cause of blemishes. Before long your complexion will take on a new clearness and freshness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs. You will find Woodbury's on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. A 25 cent cake will last a month or six weeks.

"Cameos and Roses"

A poet compared a certain lovely woman to "Cameos and Roses."

She accepted the tribute with a knowing smile—for she knew two beauty secrets, shared only by the little cretonned dresser in her boudoir.

But the cretonned dresser innocently betrayed the secret to an observing eye—

The soft-toned translucence of the cameo came from France in the form of Bourjois' "Java" Face Powder—

While the roses, too, came from France, in a little round box bearing the romantic label "Ashes of Roses" (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.).

When you cut the cuticle you leave unprotected places all around the delicate nail root

Remove the surplus cuticle without cutting—have the firm, smooth, even edge Cutex gives

The wrong and the right way to manicure

WHEN you cut the cuticle, you leave little unprotected places all around the tender nail root. These become rough, sore and ragged; they grow unevenly and cause hangnails.

Soften and remove surplus cuticle without knife or scissors. Just apply a bit of Cutex, the harmless cuticle remover, to the base of your nails, gently pushing back the cuticle.

Cutex does away with all need for cutting or trimming, and leaves a firm, smooth, even line at the base of your nails.

In a few minutes the loveliest manicure you ever had

Wrap a little cotton around the end of an orange stick, dip it into the Cutex bottle and work around the base of the nail, gently pressing back the cuticle. Wash the hands, pushing the cuticle back with a towel. For snow-white nail tips apply a bit of Cutex Nail White, underneath the nails. Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish.

To keep the cuticle particularly soft and pliable, so that you need not manicure so often, apply Cutex Cold Cream at night.

Cutex, the cuticle remover, comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White and Cutex Cold Cream are each 35c. Cutex Nail Polish in cake, paste, powder, liquid or stick form is 35c.

CHENEY SILKS

FOR THE SMART DECOLLETAGE

WHETHER it be to interpret the freshness and chic of the debutante's dance frock, or the distinctive grace and dignity of the formal evening gown, it is decreed that the season's smartest decolletage be of silk.

And because of their radiance and richness of colouring, their sheer beauty and variety of texture, the knowing frock enhances its charm by choosing Cheney Silks.

The charming dance frock pictured above has a princess slip of orchid Cheney Satin Brocade, caught up at the sides. Over it, violet Crêpe Chenette, criss-crossed with silver thread, forms a tunic. Amethyst beads are strung on silver for the shoulder straps.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

Don't wait for it to "wear" off. You can easily make your skin fair and smooth in a short time. There is a simple, sure way. Test it just one day or one evening.

Begin today and make your skin more beautiful by this easy formula:

A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a little Elcaya Rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the Cream is quite dry; and after that, the film of Face Powder over all.

Your dealer has ELCAYA and has sold it for years. Ask him.

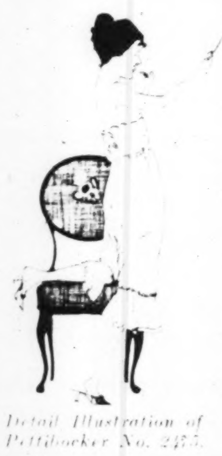
SILK UNDERWEAR



Detail Illustration of Pettibocker No. 2475.

THAT'S just what the Pettibocker is—a combination of the frilly petticoat and the comfortable knicker! There's an elastic at the waist and below the knee—then from above the knee hangs a ruffle which adds a feminine touch.

This is only one of the Vanity Fair creations. There's the knicker with the double back—the Union Suit with the patented "sure-lap" closing—the Vest with its extra length and "non-skid" shoulder straps—the Step-In Envelope Chemise with no snaps nor buttons and the Vantie with step-in drawer effect and elastic waist. All made of Vanity Fair glove silk. Be sure that the Vanity Fair label is in every article of underthings you buy. You will find them at your favorite shop.

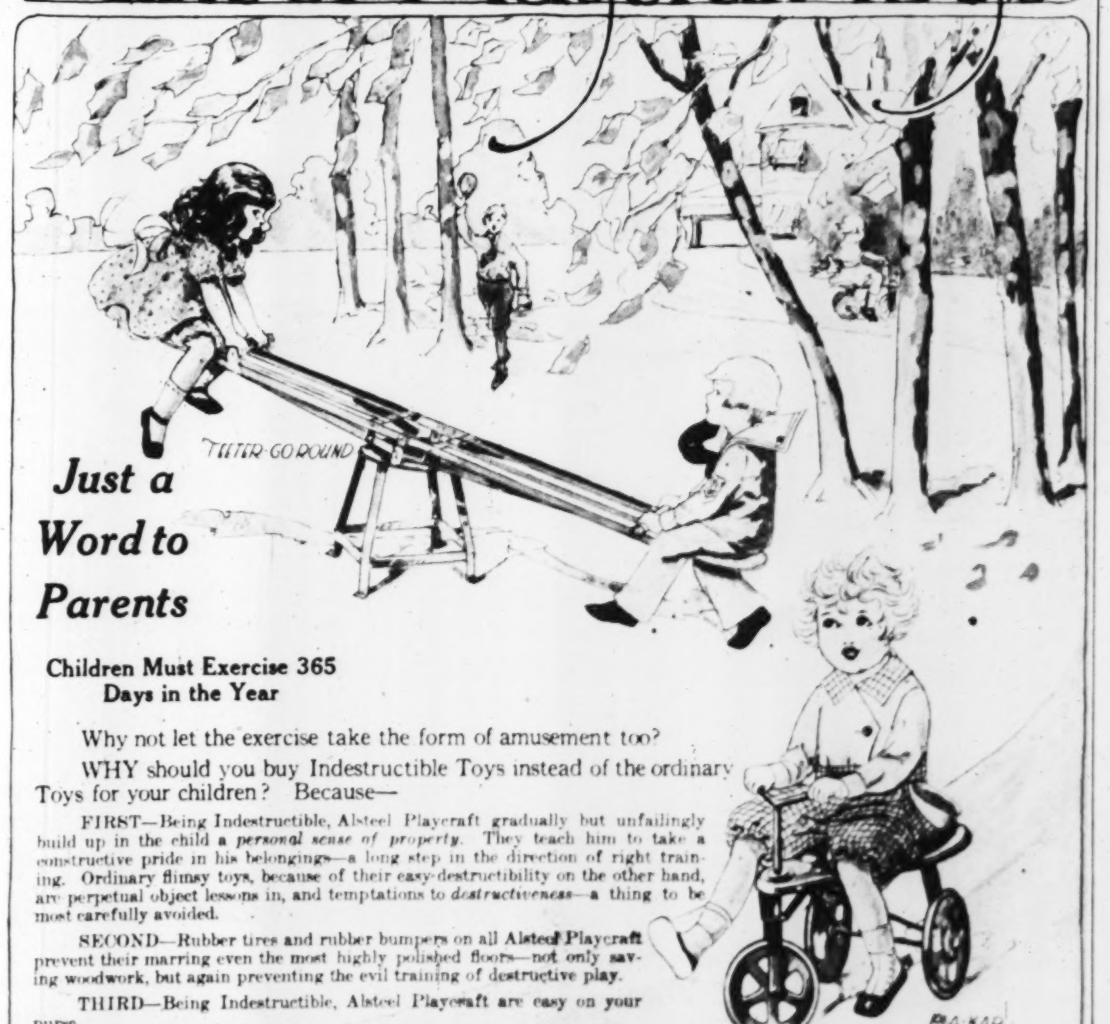
Alsteel Playcraft Toys



Just a Word to Parents

Children Must Exercise 365 Days in the Year

Why not let the exercise take the form of amusement too?

WHY should you buy Indestructible Toys instead of the ordinary Toys for your children? Because—

FIRST—Being Indestructible, Alsteel Playcraft gradually but unfailingly build up in the child a personal sense of property. They teach him to take a constructive pride in his belongings—a long step in the direction of right training. Ordinary flimsy toys, because of their easy-destructibility on the other hand, are perpetual object lessons in, and temptations to destructiveness—a thing to be most carefully avoided.

SECOND—Rubber tires and rubber bumpers on all Alsteel Playcraft prevent their marring even the most highly polished floors—not only saving woodwork, but again preventing the evil training of destructive play.

THIRD—Being Indestructible, Alsteel Playcraft are easy on your purse.

Do you first consider quality? You should, because pure food is nourishing and wholesome. Pure products mean much more real food value for your money. Every ingredient used in a Gambrill product is the best that money can buy. Every Gambrill product must measure up to the highest standards of purity.

Do you next consider your time? You should, because in these days when it is necessary to do so many different things each day—every minute saved is really money earned. Gambrill products—Pat-a-cake, Pantex and I-Spy—save your time because they are already mixed, all you have to do is add water and bake.

And third, of course, comes the question of economy. Gambrill products are all reasonably priced and they contain the very best ingredients. It would cost you a lot more to buy the individual ingredients and mix them, because Gambrill buys in enormous quantities, and bases the price of their products on a very small margin of profit.

Finest quality! Greatest saving of time! Fairest price!—these have always been the first considerations of the Gambrill Company.

Every package carries a money-back guarantee—this is your assurance of quality.

Pat-a-cake is a complete and perfect cake batter in flour form. You can mix it in a minute and with it you can easily make any one of dozens of different cakes.

* * * *

Pantex is pancake batter in flour form. It makes delicious hotcakes that are light and fluffy and that always brown evenly on both sides.

* * * *

I-Spy is buckwheat pancake batter in flour form—and it makes tender hotcakes that have the real nutty flavor of wholesome buckwheat.

The Anatomy of a One-Reel Comedy

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

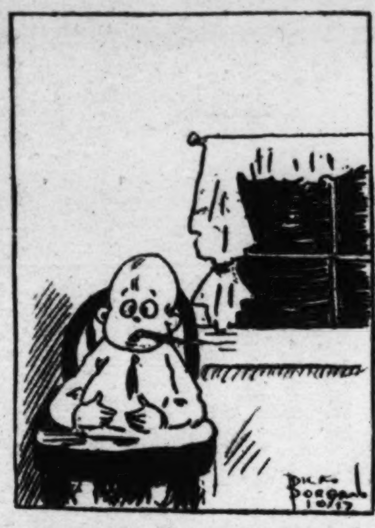
In last week's letter I give my readers the story of a friend of mine name Joe Cooper that wasn't getting along so good in his regular job and finely begin to take correspondents coarses by mail in other lines like short story writeing and expert acct. and cartoonist and etc. and after a wile he got so as he was knocking out close to 50 thousand per annum in his spare time.

Well they's still anothe? field yet that Joe hasn't went in it and that is writeing photo plays and great big money is promised for good ones because god knows they are a rare bird and if they is some of my readers that finds trouble makeing both ends meet the other and could use a couple 1000 thousand a yr. extra earned in their spare time, why here is the field.

You can pick up most any magazine and find a dozen ads of correspondents schools that learns you how to write photo plays or movies as I have nicknamed them, but how are you going to know that the people that runs them schools has ever wrote a photo play themself and for all as you know you may be paying your tuitions to a bird that ain't done nothing all their life but pluck pimples off a putting green.

So in order to protect my readers from these kind of vippers I have made it up in my mind to start a school of my own along these lines and my qualifications is that I have wrote 2 photo plays and they both flopped like the White Sox, and I got paid pretty near 10 per cent of what was owed me, witch is also like the White Sox, and my system of teaching will be to learn my pupils to write photo plays opposite to like I wrote them.

The big money in the scream game today lays in 1 reel comedy as the market is flooded with 5 reel comedys witch the author didn't mean for them to be funny. Producers is willing to pay $1000.00 for a good 1 reel comedy. Try and get it. Well, when a author sets down to write a 1 reel comedy they should do it with the idear of fitting some comedian and then submit their play to the Co. that has got that bird under contracts and the Co. will have the picture made whenever the artist ain't too busy makeing a change of wifes or husbands.



"Eat jelly fish. No bones."

The things that is necessary in writeing a 1 reel comedy is (1) a catchy title (2) a funny idear (3) plenty of laughs and (4) witty sub titles. As a sample of what will go and go big the Ring School of Photo Play Writeing gives the following speciment of a 1 reel comedy witch is a model in construction and contains 4 nessary ingredience in all that the word implys.

As a title for this picture we have chose "The Finny Tribe" witch in itself will knock them for a goal. The scenario follows.

CHARACTERS.

Geo. Wottle, a fishmonger (Comedy lead).

Gertrude Wottle, his wife (Comedy lead).

Minnie Quagmire, her rival (Soubrette).

Al Swamp, a private detective (Heavy comedy).

Baby Wottle, the Wottles' baby (Juvenile).

A Minister of the Gospel.

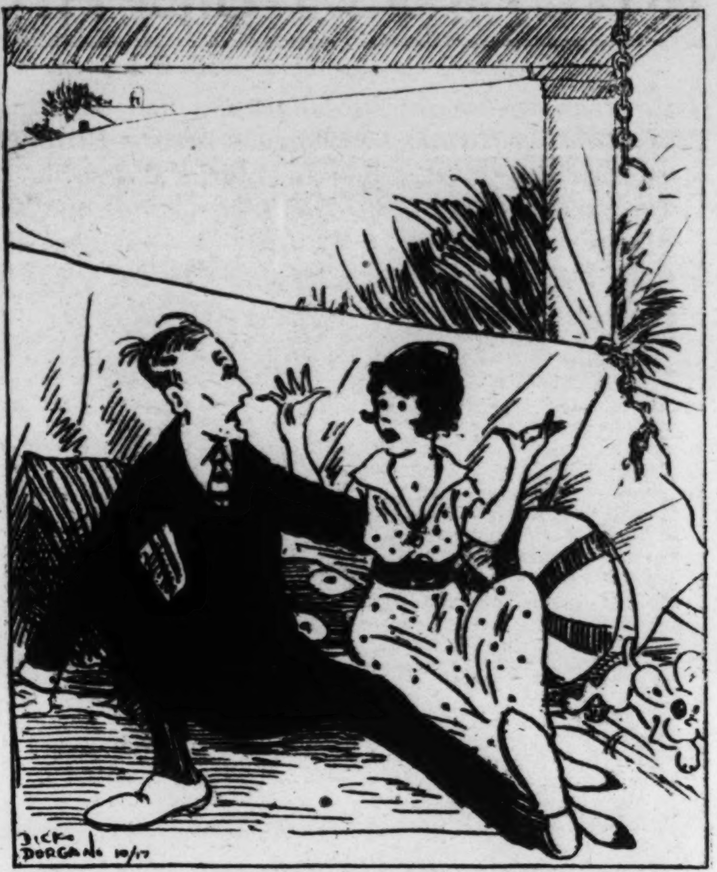
Wottle's clients, etc.

CONTINUITY.

Scene 1.—Geo. is in his store sorting fish. A client comes in and looks over the stock. Sub title: "The customer asks for a flounder. Geo. picks up a fish and hits the client in the eye with it, knocking him down. Sub title: "I guess that will flounder you." Another client comes in the store. Sub title: "The customer asks for finnan haddie, but Geo. tells him he only keeps weak fish." The client falls down and tears his trousers.

Scene 2.—Gertie is at home setting on the lounge and pulling superfluous hairs out of Baby Wottle's head. The telephone rings. Gertie goes to answer it. Sub title: "The wrong number." Baby Wottle falls off the lounge and lands on its bean. Sub title: "Oh what a headache."

"Scene 3.—Geo. and Minnie are spooning in the hammock on the Wottle's porch. Gertie comes out of the house and catches them. Sub title: "Caught in the act." The hammock breaks and the lovers set down suddenly on the floor. Sub title: "It couldn't of been a very good hammock."



"The hammock breaks and the lovers set down suddenly on the floor."

Scene 4.—Gertie goes to Swamp's detective agency and hires Al Swamp to take up the case. Al puts on his shoes and starts out with Gertie. Sub title: "The plot sickens." As they are leaving Al's office a swing door hits them in the eye and knocks them down. Sub title: "In again out again Finnegan.

Scene 5.—Geo. and Minnie are spooning in the fishstore. Minnie steps on a eel and falls down. Sub title: "Minnie says her eel slipped. Geo. tells her she should ought to wear rubber ones." Al and Gertie come in the store and surprise the lovers. Geo. runs to the fish box and sets on a perch. Gertie follows him. Sub title: "Get down off your perch." Geo. tries to get down, but falls and tears his trousers. Al tries to pick him up, but slips on the slippery floor and tears his trousers. Sub title: "Al think they's more to be patched up than the marital affairs of the Wottles."

Scene 6.—They all go to the Wottles' home. Minnie loses her interest in Geo. and falls in love with Al. They decide to get married. Sub title: "Al asks the fair Minnie to become his bride. She says O. K." Al summons a minister and him and Minnie are married with the Wottles as witnesses. Sub title: "The knot is tied."

Scene 7.—The party adjourns to the dining rm. where a fish breakfast is served. Sub title: "London Bridge is falling down." In the midst of the hilarity Baby Wottel chokes on a fish bone and croaks. Sub title: "Eat jelly fish. No bones."

There you have got your catchy title, your funny idear, your laughable situations and your humerous sub titles. Further and more, the construction is perfect you might say.

THE CITY BLACKSMITH

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

BLACKSMITH shops aren't as numerous as they used to be. And those of them that are left to us aren't always under the spreading chestnut tree. Some of them are right in the middle of the cruel city—to which they add a wholly supererogatory cruelty.

Having been to school, you know, of course, "something attempted, something done," earns his night's repose. It is different with the city blacksmith.

What he does in the daytime I don't know. But he neither takes any night's repose himself, or permits anybody else to take it.

As soon as the other noises of the city lull down a little—when the elevated trains are fewer and farther between, the rattle of the taxicabs less infrequently heard, and the cry of the huckster silent, the city blacksmith ties his leather apron around him and goes to work.

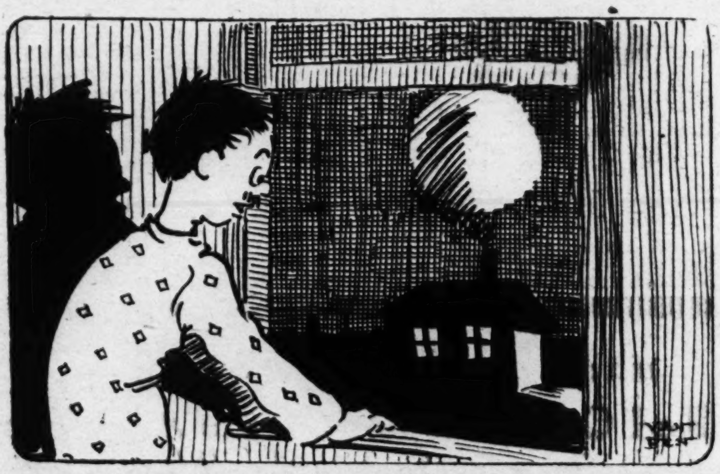
I don't know why he should work at dead of night unless the only occupation left him by the passing of the horses is the manufacture of burglars' tools. But anyway, that's what he does. I know, because I've been trying to sleep in the city and the blacksmith wouldn't let me.

It was this way: When the family was out of town, I went to the theater with a man in the office and he invited me to spend the night in his apartment. His family was out of town, too. It was a beautiful apartment. I'll say that for it. It had a room whose furnishings extended the most pressing invitation to slumber.

The windows looked out on the park, and the mingled conversation of the passing theater crowd came, softened, from below.

For a time I was troubled by automobile horns, and the banging of an elevated train on the next street back.

Then, too, the reproaches of a policeman directed at a young man who tunefully asked himself what was the matter with Casey, and replied that he was all right, kept the raveled sleeve of care from knitting as rapidly as it should.



After I had looked out of the side window and located the shop directly across the street I felt easy.

But gradually these sounds subsided and I began to drowse.

Then the blacksmith fell to work,

He was merciful at first. The tinkle of the coal as he shoveled it into the forge, the rhythmic blow of the bellows, the dreamy song that he hummed as he moved about the shop, were all more or less sedative.

After I had looked out of the side window and located the shop directly across the street I felt easy. What could be more bucolic than a blacksmith shop, and what could me more conductive to slumber than this bit of rural life brought to the throbbing heart of the city?

But when I began groping around to pick up the thread of a pleasant dream I had just started, somebody brought in a horse.

The man who brought in the horse was named Jake, or the horse was named Jake. Anyway the blacksmith used the name Jake a number of times in succession, and Jake is a word that no one can pronounce except harshly. Jake's owner, or Jake, needed to be

WEST WIND DRIFT - -

"Have you count the cost of victory? You may lose more than you will gain."

Percival looked at her intently for a moment; then, in a flash, the meaning of her words was revealed to him.

"Even so, Mme. Obosky," he returned, his jaw setting, "I am a good loser."

"The spoils do not always go to the victor," she warned him.

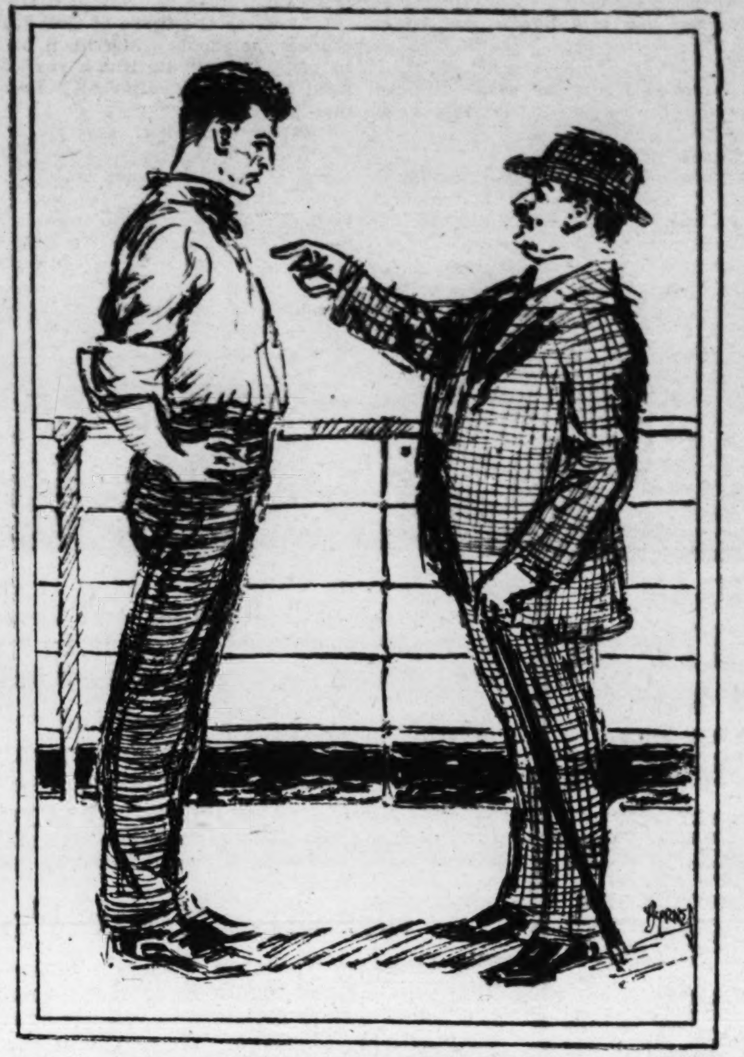
"I still have your luck piece," said he, smiling, as he struck his trousers leg.

"It has always brought me luck," she said, looking straight into his eyes. "It may continue to do so, who knows? Alas for you, my friend, you may yet have to turn to me for consolation. It is the ill wind that blows nobody good. Am I not shocking, Mr. Percival?"

They had lost Mme. Careni-Amori, who was behind them, shrieking a command through a porthole to her maid.

He looked at her in amazement. "I don't know what to think of you, Mme. Obosky." Then he grinned. "Good Lord! You—you can't be making me an offer of marriage?"

"Heaven forbid!" she cried. "I have had all I want of marriage, my friend. You will never catch me doing anything so foolish as that again. No, no! I do not desire to marry you, Mr. Percival. Nothing so dreadful as that! Suppose we would be married—what zen? Poof! Because I am an honest woman I would have to tell you some time zat I have had ze honor to be once the mistress of a Crown Prince, and then you would hold up your holy hands and cry out, 'My God, what kind of a woman is this I have marry?' and—oh, but I would not tell you about zat Crown Prince until we have been married a year or two, so do not look so pleased! In a year you would rejoice to hear about the Crown Prince, and I would be loathing you so much zat I would probably have to kill you, because I do not believe in divorce any more than I believe in marriage. You see? Most women hate their husbands. They never hate their lovers. It is so difficult to get rid of the one and so easy to keep the other; zat is the explanation. So! Now you may know zat love is the humblest thing in the world and passion the noblest, for love is for the weak while passion is for the strong. Love is easily deceived, passion never. Love endures, passion conquers. Love is blind, passion is sight itself. Love rules the world, but passion rules love. Love consents, passion demands. Love is law, passion is life. I could go on forever, but I see you do not like my discourse. Zat is because you are already in love, my friend. Poof! You will get over that!" She laughed.



"Now, see here, Percival," began Nicklestick, "you know you can't do this sort of thing."

Percival was white clear through. He was red-blooded, but at the same time his heart was clean. Once more he found himself contrasting the honest-eyed, pure hearted Ruth with this sensual scoffer. There was no denying the physical appeal of the lithe, sinuous Russian, there was no gainsaying the call of the blood. On the other hand, the American girl stood for everything his own mother exemplified in flesh and spirit.

"By Jove, you've got me guessing, Mme. Obosky," he exclaimed, frankly puzzled. "I can't make you out at all."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Zat is because I am a thousand years old and very, oh, so very, wise, Mr. Percival," she returned with a smile. "Au revoir!"

Percival went straight to Capt. Trigger.

"See here, captain," he said at once, "I'm up against it with Landover. He refuses to take orders from me. I don't want to do anything drastic without consulting you. If you say I'm to let him off, that's the end of it so far as I'm concerned. Of course, I can't answer for the rest of the crowd. But if you say I'm to go ahead along the line originally laid out, I'll do it."

Capt. Trigger's eyes, red from loss of sleep, pinched with anxiety, rested for a few seconds on the three boats coming across the basin. Then he turned to the young man.

"Mr. Landover is one of the owners of this steamship line, Percival."

"So I understand, sir."

"He notified me this morning that he will see that I am dismissed from the service if I continue to support this silly, suicidal plan to build a camp on shore."

"Yes, sir. And you?"

"I promptly tendered my resignation as master of this vessel," answered the captain.

"You did?" cried Percival, dismayed.

"To take effect when I have tied her safely up to her pier in New York," said the old man, striking the rail with his fist.

"Great!" cried Percival.

"He has just come to me with the complaint that you have threatened to throw him overboard. Is that true, Percival?"

"Yes, sir, in a way. I mentioned an alternative."

"Mr. Landover is no better than any of the rest of us. You will proceed to throw him overboard, Percival, if he refuses to do his share of the work."

Percival gulped, and then saluted.

"Orders, sir?"

"Orders."

The young man started away, but the captain called him back.

"What are you going to do after you have had him thrown into the water?"

"Why, dammit all," exclaimed Percival, "what can I do but jump in and save his life? You don't suppose I'd let him drown, do you? And, God knows, nobody else would save it. They want to tar and feather him, as it is, or lynch him, or make him walk the plank."

shod on all four, and one of them was reluctant to submit to the operation.

The reluctance was first manifested by heavy stamping on the floor of the shop. When that did not serve its purpose the noble animal laid down a hoof barrage on a partition, and the partition apparently came down. It came down with a crash, too—a crash that brought me into a sitting position with a gasp of terror.

There was silence after that, but it didn't last long. Evidently the horse had had his way, and the blacksmith, philosophically murmuring, "Oh, very well!" took up the work that fell next to his hand.

This appeared to be the repairing of a boiler, although up to that time I thought blacksmiths were inhibited from the repairing of boilers by the rules of the boiler makers' union.

It took two hours to repair the boiler—during which I thought of the deep peace of my suburban home, with the hum of the crickets outside the window and the song of the brook in the distance.

It would have taken me only an hour after the theater to have been there, enjoying the blessed honey dew of slumber. But it was too late now, the last train had gone, and one doesn't walk 21 miles in the middle of the night, even for the sake of sleep.

I hoped the blacksmith would be tired when he finished the boiler, but he wasn't.

He began to take a wagon apart, and it came apart hard, being obviously a well-built wagon.

I noted the creak of every bolt as it was drawn from its place. I heard the thump of every fragment as it was tossed to the floor.

And I longed for the noise of the boiler repairing, for I had just about got used to that. I got used to the decimation of the wagon, after a while, but as soon as that happened the blacksmith shifted his job on me and began forging shoes on the anvil, not with measured beat and slow, but with an irregular, hesitating, uncertain hammering that got me awake permanently and kept me so till breakfast.

I felt so sorry for my friend, doomed to spend every night next door to the inferno, that I invited him out to my house for the week end.

He came down to breakfast next morning looking not so refreshed as I hoped he would.

"Well," I said, "I hope you had a good sleep, at last."

"Sleep!" he said. "How the devil could a fellow sleep with those dod-gasted crickets buzzing in his ears all night?"

across the frozen ruts to the old clothing and trunk store and the doctor put him to bed.

"That was all.

"So he's gone."

The stern wheel of the Denman Prior still churned the black, oily current of the Mississippi; the stacks, with their exhausts, still said, "Chow—chaow! Chow-chaow!" like some kind of mother nursing some kind of children to sleep. The distant shores slid by.

The perfumed woman leaned forward so that her face showed suddenly in the moonlight. A little smile of comfort was on her lips.

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women! It is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powder say they can not buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration

ANDREW CARNEGIE'S BEST ANECDOTES OF CELEBRITIES, TOLD BY HIMSELF

Late steel master, in autobiography just published, tells of chaffing former German Emperor—Prophecy of President Wilson's role in World War—Stories of Herbert Spencer and Gladstone, and meeting of Matthew Arnold and Josh Billings—Sketches of Lincoln and Grant—Why Carnegie disliked W. J. Bryan

THE expectantly awaited "Autobiography" of the late Andrew Carnegie has just been published, consisting of jottings made each summer during his playtime in Scotland, after his retirement from business. These were arranged by Dr. J. C. Van Dyke for the reader, and are introduced by a preface written by the widow, Mrs. Louise Whitfield Carnegie. (Houghton-Mifflin.)

The Scotch immigrant boy who rose from an engine tender at $1.20 a week to the world's master of steel, and who made and gave away hundreds of millions of dollars, met many celebrities in his time, and tells numerous fascinating anecdotes concerning them, of which a few are reproduced here.

The memoirs end abruptly with a notation concerning the outbreak of the war. "The world disaster was too much; his heart was broken," says Mrs. Carnegie concerning the man who founded the Peace Palace at The Hague. This notation is striking because of its prophecy concerning the role President Wilson would play. Ironically enough, it is directly preceded by an account of Carnegie's meetings with the German Emperor, who, the American believed, "was indeed a Man of Destiny," and who, in his opinion, might "rise to his appointed mission as the Apostle of Peace among leading civilized nations."

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie, from a photograph taken in 1915.

Carnegie and Wilhelm.

MY FIRST Rectorial address to the students of St. Andrews University attracted the attention of the German Emperor, who sent word to me in New York by Herr Ballin that he had read every word of it. Invitations to meet him followed, but it was not until June, 1907, that I could leave, owing to other engagements. Mrs. Carnegie and I went to Kiel. Mr. Tower, our American Ambassador to Germany, and Mrs. Tower met us there and were very kind in their attentions.

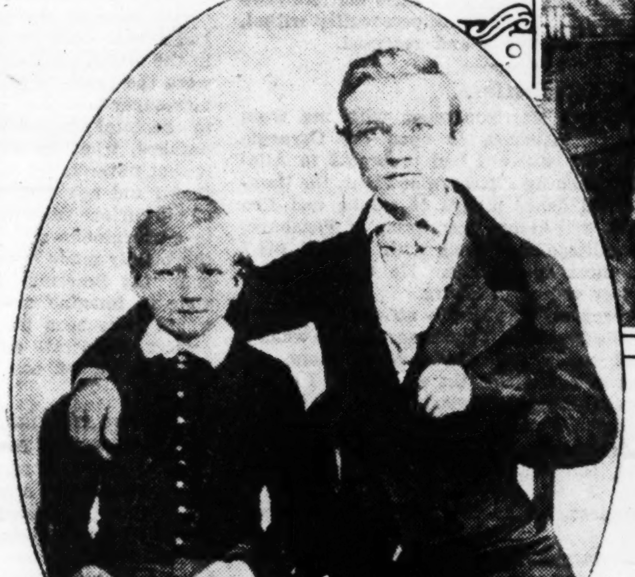
The first morning, Mr. Tower took me to register on the Emperor's yacht. I had no expectation of seeing the Emperor, but he happened to come on deck, and, seeing Mr. Tower, asked him what had brought him on the yacht so early. Mr. Tower explained that he had brought me over to register. The Emperor asked:

"Why not present him now? I wish to see him."

I was talking to the Admirals who were assembling for a conference, and did not see Mr. Tower and the Emperor approaching from behind. A touch on my shoulder and I turned around.

"Mr. Carnegie, the Emperor."

It was a moment before I realized that the Emperor was before me. I raised both hands and exclaimed:



Andrew Carnegie (right) at 16, and brother Thomas.

"This has happened just as I could have wished, with no ceremony, and the Man of Destiny dropped from the clouds." Then I continued: "Your majesty, I have traveled two nights to accept your generous invitation, and never did so before to meet a crowned head."

Then the Emperor, smiling—and such a captivating smile:

"Oh, yes, yes; I have read your books. You do not like Kings."

"No, your majesty, I do not like Kings, but I do like a man behind a King when I find one."

"Ah! there is one King you like, I know, a Scottish King, Robert the Bruce. He was my hero in my youth. I was brought up on him."

"Yes, your majesty, so was I, and he lies buried in Dunfermline Abbey, in my native town. But Bruce was much more than a King, your majesty; he was the leader of his people. And not the first. Wallace, the man of the people, comes first. Your majesty, I now own King Malcolm's Tower in Dunfermline—he from whom you derive your precious heritage of Scottish blood. I should like to escort you some day to the tower of your Scottish ancestor, that you might do homage to his memory." He exclaimed:

"That would be very fine. The Scotch are much quicker and cleverer than the Germans. The Germans are too slow." He laughed and waved adieu, calling out: "You are to dine with with me this evening." * * *

We dined with Mrs. Goelet upon her yacht, one evening, and his majesty being present, I told him President Roosevelt had recently said to me that he wished custom permitted him to leave the country, so he could run over and see him (the Emperor). He thought a substantial talk would result in something good being accomplished. I believed that also. The Emperor agreed and said he wished greatly to see him and hoped he would some day come to Germany. I suggested that the Emperor was free from constitutional barriers and could sail over and see the President.

"Ah, but my country needs me here! How can I leave?"

. I replied: "Before leaving home one year, when I went to our mills to bid the officials good-by and expressed regret at leaving them all hard at work, sweltering in the hot sun, and told how one-half hour on the bow of a steamer, cutting the Atlantic waves, gave me perfect relief, my clever manager, Capt. Jones, retorted: 'And, oh, Lord! think of the relief we all get!' It might be the same with your people, your majesty."

He laughed heartily over and over again. He repeated his desire to meet President Roosevelt, and I said:

"Well, your majesty, when you two do get together, I think I shall have to be with you. You and he, I fear, might get into mischief." He laughed and said:

"Oh, I see! You wish to drive us together. Well, I agree if you make Roosevelt first horse, I shall follow."

"Oh, no, your majesty, I know horseflesh better than to attempt to drive two such gay colts tandem. You never get proper purchase on the first horse. I must yoke you both in the shafts, neck and neck, so I can hold you in." * * *

The year before last (1912) I stood before the Emperor in the grand palace at Berlin and presented the American address of congratulation upon his peaceful reign of 25 years, his hand unstained by human blood. As I approached to hand him the casket containing the address, he recognized me and with outstretched arms exclaimed:

"Carnegie, 25 years of peace, and we hope for many more."

I could not help responding: "And in this noblest of missions you are our chief ally."

He had hitherto sat silent and motionless, taking the successive addresses from one officer and handing them to another, to be placed upon the table. The chief subject under discussion had been world peace, which he could have, and, in my opinion, would have secured, had he not been surrounded by the military caste which inevitably gathers about one born to the throne—a caste which usually becomes as permanent as the potentate himself, and which has so far in Germany proved its power to control whenever the war issue has been presented. Until militarism has been subordinated there can be no world peace.

Matthew Arnold and Josh Billings.

THE most charming man, John Morley and I agree, that we ever knew was Matthew Arnold. He and his daughter, now Mrs. Whitridge, were our guests when in New York in 1883. I knew Mr. Shaw (Josh Billings) and wished Mr. Arnold, the apostle of sweetness and light, to meet that rough diamond. Fortunately, one morning Josh came to see me in the Windsor Hotel, where we were then living, and referred to our guest, expressing his admiration for him. I replied:

"You are going to dine with him tonight. The ladies are going out and Arnold and myself are to said she would. Yes, Merrill. I lost her a month ago yesterday. I reckin it was my duty to stay by her. But ain't it strange how some men is balked? There won't ever be a chance again like this war. And here I am still in Buttonshell. Life ain't turned out as I'd like to have it, noways.'

"You've heard of spinal meningitis? Three or four years ago we never knew what it meant along these river towns. Least of all we knew how it would travel and jump from one house to another and kill folks right and left. Three towns on the east side were hit and one of 'em was the Bluffs.

"This was the boat I was taking out there and I went up to Buttonshell to hire three painters to get her insides cleaned up for the new season. There wasn't anything but talk about meningitis and how Calhoun County was thinking of putting on a shotgun quarantine against Buttonshell folks. The people would stand in front of the City Drug Store waiting for Doc Burton to show up so's they could ask if there'd been any new deaths and who it was, and whether there was any life insurance, and how the stuff they sent out from New York to shoot into people's backbones—the serum treatment, they called it—was working.

"Then the Doc would come in, looking at those who were stamping their feet outside or hanging over the counter inside, and his face was mighty solemn except when they would ask the questions, and then he'd rub the white bristles on his red chin and puff and say: 'Fiddlesticks! Fiddlesticks! Nothing to worry about. Go along home and don't be bothering.'

"The third day I was in town I happened to see the old red-painted trunk chained outside on the sidewalk in front of Jesup's store. So I walked over.

"It was getting dark and when I went in I thought I smelled something besides the smell of the old woolens in the stock and the creosote Cleaver always kept for aching teeth. It smelled like food cooking.

"The light was pretty dim and I couldn't see much of Cleaver except his face, and that was powerful white, I thought.

"'You aren't living here in your shop,' I says. 'Smells as if you cooked your meals here.'

"'Yes,' says he. 'I am and I do. I had to let the old home go. Business weren't good and it was the best way, I reckon.'

"'What's the matter with your voice?' I asks. 'You talk like a man with chills and fever—you talk like a man frightened.'

* * * * * *

"'I reckon I am,' he says. 'I never knew I'd be scared. I certainly never knew.'

"'Scared of what?' says I.

"'Scared of death,' he says, rubbing his knees. 'I'm so scared, Merrill, I couldn't go into the back room and go to bed. The doctor is coming again. He says I've got it—got this meningitis. It begins here in the neck. It feels tight there. And I never knew I'd be scared. But I'm lucky.'

"'Can't see how,' says I, watching his staring eyes.

"'I'll tell you, if you'll listen,' he says. 'There ain't but just enough of this serum in Doc Burton's office to treat one person. Some other feller came down with the ailment before I did and that left only enough for one. I came down with it just in time, so to speak. That's how I mean I'm lucky. Because there won't be any more of the treatment here for a week. There's been a rage of the disease in Texas and they can't manufacture the stuff fast enough, the Doc told me.'

"'Too bad,' says I. 'Too bad. Too bad. It's too bad there ain't just one more besides.'

"When I said that he looked up and thought a minute. Then he gave a cry and caught hold of my sleeve and he pulled himself to his feet, and the light from the old swinging coal-oil lamp was on his face. Darn me if it wasn't still freckled and if his left ear didn't stick out, and if his bad matched eyes weren't closer together, just as they were the first time I ever set eyes on him.

"'Whatcher mean?' he says, whispering and shaking. 'Somebody else, eh? Somebody else has come down? Why don't you say?'

"'Yes,' says I. 'Emma Daffin. She's a pretty little thing and ain't been married to Daffin more than three months, and it seems a shame.'

"'Then, by the Grace of God, I get my chance!' he shouts. 'Merrill, it has come to me! I won't die like a rat! I ain't lived for nothing, after all. Reach me that hat!'

"'Where you going?' says I.

"'Across to Doc's office. See that light there. Take your hands off.'

"He flung the door open and out he went, stumbling over the frozen ruts towards the doctor's. I followed him. He never stopped to knock and I followed him into the office, and there sat Doc Barton spraddled all out in a chair before the soft-coal fire.

"The doctor looked up.

"'I told you to go to bed,' he says, grabbing the arms of the chair. 'You're mad. You're crazy as a quilt!'

"'No, I ain't mad, Doc,' says Cleaver, catching the back of the old haircloth sofa. 'I come over about the Daffin girl. She's got it, ain't she?'

"The Doc nodded.

"'And she's got to have the treatment of serum to save her, ain't she?' says Cleaver.

"'What do you mean?' Burton asks, rubbing the white bristles on his red chin.

"'You ain't got any more treatments, Doc?' says Cleaver, looking at the floor. 'And you say fust come, fust served. So it's plain enough what must be done, Doc. I don't amount to nothing and never have, and I reckon I never will.'

"Then he stopped and gave a gulp. 'I want you to give the treatment to her. I want you to give her the serum you was going to give me.'

"After he said that, we were all quiet. You could hear the sputter of the oil in the soft-coal fire and the big clock in the hall. The doctor stood there looking at Cleaver and staring at him, and by and by two or three tears ran down his face. He smiled and he licked his lips. And then he spoke.

"'Ain't it funny how we can bet on the hearts of men, after all?' he says. 'God bless you, Cleaver Jesup. But you ain't the first. Why, what do you suppose, my friends? Who do you suppose had the right to the next to the last treatment and wouldn't let me give it to him, and gave up his life at 6 o'clock tonight because he wanted Emma Daffin to have it? Why, by the great horned spoon, it was that good-for-nothingest feller in Buttonshell—the town drunkard—Fred Stark!'

When Cleaver heard those words he just blinked his eyes and stood there playing with the buttons on his coat, and after a while he gave a patient sigh. That was all. The doctor and I took him back

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from such forms of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapor is inhaled into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs. It contains no cubebs or tobacco and may be used by women and children as well as men.

This medicated smoke carries medicine where sprays, douches and ointments cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless.

If you are a sufferer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness or subject to frequent colds, you should try this Remedy without delay. Send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 479 MD, Atlanta, Ga., and you will receive, by return mail, a trial package containing some of this Remedy made into cigarettes, also some of the powder and a neat little pipe.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 695g Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

done alone; you complete the trinity." To this he demurred, being a modest man, but no excuse would be taken; he must come to oblige me. He did. I sat between them at dinner and enjoyed this meeting of extremes. Mr. Arnold became deeply interested in Mr. Shaw's way of putting things and liked his Western anecdotes, laughing more heartily than I had ever seen him do before. One incident after another was told from the experience of the lecturer, for Mr. Shaw had lectured for 15 years in every place of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the United States.

Mr. Arnold was desirous of hearing how the lecturer held his audiences.

"Well," said Josh, "you mustn't keep them laughing too long, or they will think you are laughing at them. After giving the audience amusement, you must become earnest and play the serious role. For instance, 'There are two things in life for which no man is ever prepared.. Who will tell me what these are?' Finally someone cries out 'Death.' 'Well, who gives me the other?' Many respond—wealth, happiness, strength, marriages, taxes. At last Josh begins solemnly: 'None of you has answered. There are two things on earth for which man is never prepared, and them's twins,' and the house shakes." Mr. Arnold did also. The evening ended by Mr. Arnold saying:

"Well, Mr. Shaw, if you ever come to lecture in England, I shall be glad to welcome you and introduce you to your first audience. Any foolish man called a Lord could do you more good than I by introducing you, but I should so much like to do it."

In after years he never failed to ask after "our leonine friend, Mr. Shaw."

Anecdote of Gladstone.

ON THE night of the Queen's Jubilee in June, 1887, Mr. Blaine and I thought we should enjoy the streets and take our chances of getting to the hotel by pushing through the crowds. We were doing this successfully and were moving slowly with the current past the Reform Club when I heard a word or two spoken by a voice close to the building on my right. I said to Mr. Blaine:

"That is Gladstone's voice." We got close to the side of the house. I came to a muffled figure and whispered:

"And so the real ruler comes out to see the illuminations prepared for the nominal ruler." He replied:

"Young man, I think it is time you were in bed." We remained a few minutes with him, he being careful not to remove from his head and face the cloak that covered them. It was then past midnight and he was 80, but, boylike, he had determined to see the show.

—o—

Herbert Spencer and Cheese.

HERBERT SPENCER and I were fellow travelers on the Servia from Liverpool to New York in 1882. We sat at the same table during the voyage.

One day the conversation fell upon the impression made upon us by great men at first meeting. Did they, or did they not, prove to be as we had imagined them? Each gave his experience. Mine was that nothing could be more different than the being imagined and that being beheld in the flesh.

"Oh," said Mr. Spencer, "in my case, for instance, was this so?"

"Yes," I replied, "you more than any. I had imagined my teacher, the great, calm philosopher, brooding Buddhalike, over all things, unmoved; never did I dream of seeing him excited over the question of Cheshire or Cheddar cheese." The day before he had peevishly pushed away the former when presented by the steward, exclaiming: "Cheddar, Cheddar, not Cheshire; I said Cheddar!" There was a roar, in which none joined more heartily than the sage himself.

Spencer liked stories and was a good laugher. American stories seemed to please him more than others, and of those I was able to tell him not a few, which were usually followed by explosive laughter. He was anxious to learn about our Western territories, which were then attracting attention in Europe, and a story I told him about Texas struck him as amusing. When a returning, disappointed emigrant was asked about the then barren country, he said:

"Stranger, all I have to say about Texas is that if I owned Texas and hell, I would sell Texas."

One day my eldest nephew was seen to open the door quietly and peep in where we were sitting. His mother afterwards asked him why he had done so, and the boy of 11 replied:

"Mamma, I wanted to see the man who wrote in a book that there was no use studying grammar." Spencer was greatly pleased when he heard the story and often referred to it. He had faith in that nephew.

"Watch President Wilson!"

AS I READ this today (1914) what a change! The world convulsed with war as never before! Men slaying each other like wild beasts! I dare not relinquish all hope. In recent days I see another ruler coming forward upon the world stage, who may prove himself the immortal one. The man who vindicated his country's honor in the Panama Canal dispute is now President. He has the indomitable will of true genius, and true hope which we are told:

"Kings it makes gods, and meaner creatures kings."

Nothing is impossible to genius! Watch President Wilson! He has Scotch blood in his veins.

Rosebery's Sensitiveness.

ONE morning in London I called by appointment upon Lord Rosebery, then in Gladstone's Cabinet and a rising statesman. After greetings he took up an envelope which I saw as I entered had been carefully laid on his desk, and handed it to me, saying:

"I wish you to dismiss your secretary."

"That is a big order, your lordship. He is indispensable and a Scotsman," I replied. "What is the matter with him?"

"This isn't your handwriting; it's his. What do you think of a man who spells Rosebery with two 'r's'?"

I said if I were sensitive on that point life would not be endurable to me. "I receive many letters daily when at home, and I am sure that 20 to 30 per cent of them misspell my name, ranging from 'Karnaghie' to 'Carnagay.'"

But he was in earnest. Just such little matters gave him great annoyance. A charming personality withal, but shy, sensitive, capricious and reserved.

Schwab, the Boy Hustler.

IN 1891 President Harrison went with me from Washington to Pittsburg to open the Carnegie Hall and Library which I had presented to Allegheny City. Reaching Pittsburg at night, the flaming coke ovens and dense pillars of smoke and fire amazed him. The well-known description of Pittsburg, seen from the hilltops, as "Hell with the lid off," seemed to him most appropriate. He was the first President who ever visited Pittsburg.

The opening ceremony was largely attended owing to the presence of the President. Next morning he wished to see our steel works and was escorted there, receiving a cordial welcome from the workmen. I called up each successive manager of department as we passed and presented him. Finally, when Mr. Schwab was presented, the President turned to me and said:

"How is this, Mr. Carnegie? You present only boys to me."

"Yes, Mr. President, but do you notice what kind of boys they are?"

"Yes, hustlers, every one of them," was his comment.

Bryah and the Philippines.

MR. BRYAN had it in his power at one time to defeat in the Senate this feature of the treaty of peace with Spain (the purchase of the Philippines). I went to Washington to try to effect this, and remained there until the vote was taken. I was told that when Mr. Bryan was in Washington he had advised his friends that it would be good party policy to allow the treaty to pass. This would discredit the Republican party before the people; "paying twenty millions for a revolution" would defeat any party.

There were several stanch Bryan men anxious to vote against the Philippine annexation. Mr. Bryan had called to see me in New York upon this subject, because my opposition to the purchase had been so pronounced, and I now wired him at Omaha explaining the situation and begging him to wire me that his friends could use their own judgment.

His reply was what I have stated—better have the Republicans pass it and let it then go before the people. I thought it unworthy of him to subordinate such an issue, fraught with deplorable consequences, to mere party politics. It required the casting vote of the Speaker to carry the measure. One word from Mr. Bryan would have saved the country from disaster.

I could not be cordial to him for years afterwards. He seemed to me a man who was willing to sacrifice his country and his personal convictions for party advantage.

A Sketch of Lincoln.

I RETURNED to Washington (Carnegie, at the beginning of the Civil War, was placed in charge of military railroads and telegraphs) and this gave me an opportunity of meeting President Lincoln, Mr. Seward, Secretary Cameron, and others. Mr. Lincoln would occasionally come to my office and sit at the desk, awaiting replies to telegrams.

All the pictures of this extraordinary man are like him. He was so marked of feature that it was impossible for anyone to paint him and not produce a likeness. He was certainly one of the most homely men I ever saw when his features were in repose; but when excited or telling a story, intellect shone through his eyes and illuminated his face to a degree which I have seldom or never seen in any other.

His manners were perfect because natural; and he had a kind word for everybody, even the youngest boy in the office. His attentions were not graduated. They were the same to all, as deferential in talking to the messenger boy as to Secretary Seward. His charm lay in the total absence of manner. It was not so much, perhaps, what he said as the way in which he said it that never failed to win one. I have often regretted that I did not note down carefully at the time some of his curious sayings, for he said even common things in an original way. I never met a great man who so thoroughly made himself one with all men as Mr. Lincoln. As Secretary Hay so well says, "It is impossible to imagine anyone a valet to Mr. Lincoln; he would have been his companion." He was the most perfect democrat, revealing in every word and act the equality of men.

President Harrison and Chile.

PRESIDENT HARRISON had been a soldier and as President was a little disposed to fight. When the quarrel arose with Chile, there was a time when it seemed almost impossible to keep the President from taking action which would have resulted in war. I went to Washington to see whether I could not do something towards reconciling the belligerents, because, having been a member of the first Pan-American Conference, I had become acquainted with the representatives of our southern sister republics and was on good terms with them.

The President and I promenaded the streets of Washington in the dusk for more than an hour. I told him I was surprised and grieved to find that he was apparently threatening to resort to war in a paltry dispute with little Chile.

"You're a New Yorker and think of nothing but business and dollars," said the President. "That is the way with New Yorkers; they care nothing for the dignity and honor of the republic."

"Mr. President, I am one of the men in the United States who would profit most by war; it might throw millions into my pockets as the largest manufacturer of steel."

"Well, that is probably true in your case; I had forgotten."

"Mr. President, if I were going to fight, I would take someone of my own size."

"Well, would you let any nation insult and dishonor you because of its size?"

"Mr. President, no man can dishonor me except myself. Honor wounds must be self-inflicted."

"You see, our sailors were attacked on shore and two of them killed, and you would stand that?" he asked.

"Mr. President, I do not think the United States dishonored every time a row among drunken sailors takes place. I would be disposed to cashier the captain of that ship for allowing the sailors to go on shore when there was rioting in the town and the public peace had already been disturbed."

The Doraine was gradually being dismantled.

prevent the occupant from subsequently enlarging and improving his house. For the present, however, the interests of all were best served by speed and compactness.

The superintendent of construction was Algernon Adonis Percival. As a matter of fact, the end of the first week found him occupying the position of general manager for the whole enterprise, an unsolicited honor, but one which he was resolved that no one, great or small, should deride. He had one stormy "run-in," as he described it, with Mr. Landover and his group of satellites. This occurred about the middle of their first week on the island, when practically every ablebodied man from the Doraine was at work cutting a way through the forest or in constructing the dock at the water's edge. As the incident is entitled to a very definite place in this narrative, a more or less extended account of it may be given here and now, even at the risk of being classed as a digression or a step backward in the sequence of the history.

Mr. Landover, Mr. Block and Mr. Nicklestick and two or three other men were grouped on the after deck early one morning decrying the brainless scheme to build a camp out there in the open. Their audience included several women, among them Mrs. Spofford, Ruth Clinton, Mme. Careni-Amori, Mme. Obosky, Mrs. Block and a couple of loquacious Rio Janeiro ladies.

Percival bore down upon this group. He wasted no time in getting to the point.

"We've been at work for two days out there, gentlemen, and up to date not one of you has turned to with the rest of us. The understanding was that"——

Mr. Landover whirled on him, white with anger. "That will do!" he exclaimed. "Clear out! I do not intend to allow any such riffraff as you to order me to—— Oh, pray do not be alarmed, ladies! This rowdy is not likely to assault me. Nothing will happen, I assure you. Clear out, you bum—do you hear me?"

Percival was smiling. "I wish you wouldn't interrupt me, Mr. Landover. As I was saying, it was understood that every man on this ship who is well enough"——

"Can't you see that there are ladies present? Haven't you an atom of decency about you?"

——"understood that every man on this ship was to do his share of the work laid out. I owe these ladies an apology for reminding you in their presence that the boats are leaving for shore and that if you do not get off in the next relay you will be compelled to swim to that landing over there, and I doubt very much whether any of you can make it."

"Wha—what's that?" demanded Mr. Block.

Mr. Landover was speechless. A hard glitter came to Percival's eyes, the smile left his lips.

"You heard what I said, Mr. Block. I'll make it plainer, however. If you men don't get into the next boat leaving this ship, I'm going to have you thrown overboard and made to swim to your work. I regret exceedingly, ladies, that I have been obliged to resort to harsh words in your presence, but time is so precious I can't afford to give them a private audience."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" cried Mrs. Block, twisting her fat hands in an agony of alarm. "Maybe you better go, Moses. You vas nearly drownded twice yet in pool at White Sulphur."

"This is the most outrageous, high-handed"—— began Landover, explosively, but stopped short as Percival leveled his unlovely forefinger at him.

"Cut it out, Mr. Landover, cut it out," he snapped, inelegantly. "Now, listen to me. For two days you and these boon companions of yours have been loafing on the job. While the rest of us have been working like dogs, you and your friends—you needn't look insulted, because by the looks of things they are your friends—you've been sitting up here talking to the ladies, smoking cigars and telling everyone how successfully you conduct a bank in New York. Now, Mr. Landover, you're not an old man. If you were, I'd be the first to suggest the easiest sort of work for you. You are under 50 and you're a strong and healthy man. You ride every morning in Central Park, you play golf winter and summer, and you're one of the men who made Muldoon famous.

"You are able to work as the rest of us are working. Your hands are in much better condition than mine. If we were in New York I would take off my hat to you and admit that you're one of the greatest bankers in the world, and that you know your business. But we're not in New York. We're down here on a lonely island. You know how to build and conduct banks, I know how to build and conduct camps. We have no use for scientific bankers here, but we have considerable use for experienced camp builders. I have been put in charge of this work. I am going to see it through.

"You regard me as a four-flusher, a tramp, maybe a thief or worse. I am but little more than half your age and I am a person of absolutely no importance. That's neither here nor there. I have been selected to run this job because Capt. Trigger, with Mr. Mott and virtually every other man on this ship, believes that I know how to handle it. But even that's neither here nor there. What I'm coming to is this: As long as I am in charge of this job, every man, woman and child has got to do something. Just at present there isn't much that the women and children can do, but there is work for every man who can stand on his feet. You needn't glare at me. I'm not afraid of you, Mr. Landover. You say you are going to stay on this ship. Well, I've come here to tell you that you are not going to do anything of the sort. The women and children are to remain on board until we've got houses built for them on shore, or until the time comes when there is work for them to do. If they choose to come ashore occasionally, it will be to watch the men work and to cheer them up with their presence. But no man is to stay on this ship after we've got the real job going out there. Now you've heard my statement, sir. I am willing to listen for a few minutes to your side of the question. Don't all speak at once, and please be careful; there are ladies present."

While Percival did not take his eyes from Landover's face during his speech, he was aware that Miss Clinton and her aunt had turned abruptly away and were leaning against the rail a few yards distant, their backs to him. Olga Obosky and Careni-Amori were regarding him with shining, approving eyes, while Mrs. Block, gulping furiously, clasped her husband's arm and kept up a constant muttering. Something told him that Ruth Clinton and Mrs. Spofford had turned against him.

"I have nothing to say to you," said Landover, curtly. Turning on his heel, he joined the two ladies at the rail. He spoke a few words to them in a lowered tone, and then the three of them strode off without so much as a glance at the young man.

Percival flushed a dull red under his tan. His eyes followed them until they disappeared around a corner. Down in his heart he hoped that Ruth would not deny him a fleeting look of encouragement and approval.

"Now, see here, Percival," began Nicklestick, in a most cavalier manner, greatly encouraged by the lofty conduct of the money king, "you know you can't do this sort of thing. We won't stand for it, not for a minute. We object to this high-handed business. You got to realize what"——

"Object and be hanged!" snapped Percival. "The next thing you'll be calling yourselves conscientious objectors. Well, it's no use, Nicklestick. There's no such animal on board this ark. I see a couple of boats returning from shore. You've got about 15 minutes to go and shed that Stein & Bloch suit and hump into something that will never need pressing again—your working clothes. I'm doing you a kindness. That gang out there won't stand for slackers. If you're wise you'll take my word for it."

He was turning away when Nicklestick intercepted him.

"What do you think they would do, Mr. Percival?" he inquired in some agitation. "We are gentlemen. We got a right to decide for ourselves vat ve shall do. We can pay for"——

"You will find a lot of gentlemen out there who have already decided for themselves, and very cheerfully, too. You will not be lonely. If you desire any further information as to the class of laborers you will come in contact with, Mr. Nicklestick, I would suggest a study of the first cabin list, the second cabin list and, finally, the third cabin list, if you can find such a thing. You will run up against some excellent material from the United States navy, to say nothing of a fine lot of able seamen. They've adopted a common name. Do you know what they call each other?"

"No," said Nicklestick, wiping his brow. "Vat—vat do they call each other?"

"Men," said Percival, and walked away.

He was followed closely by Careni-Amori and Olga Obosky, and at some distance by the whispering, gesticulating men. The great soprano was profoundly agitated.

Obosky, a pace or two behind her, was tense and silent. Her head was slightly bent. There was a strange, dog-like expression in her eyes as they regarded the back of Percival's head.

"But what will you do?" Careni-Amori was crying, as she clutched his arm. "He is a great man. He is a millionaire. He owns part of this steamship line, so he have inform me. You will not throw him into the water, yes?"

"As sure as you are a foot high, Madame Careni-Amori," said he, grimly.

"Oh, Mon Dieu! You hear him, Obosky. He means what he have say."

"Be careful, my friend," said Obosky, drawing alongside of Percival. "Do you not see how the wind blows?"

"What do you mean?"

A NEW WAY TO REACH OLD AGE IS OUTLINED BY FRENCH PHYSICIAN

Eminent doctor declares that life is dependent on great vital current of the system, with blood circulation playing a secondary part —Its rotation is in same plane and direction as the earth, and may be stimulated by correct massage

FOR the sake of living to be 100 years old, would you add 20 minutes to your daily toilet routine?

A simple treatment, lasting just 10 minutes each night and morning, will preserve your health indefinitely, declares an eminent French physician. He states positively that his method will enable you to live a century or longer "in the plenitude of force and health."

And when death finally comes, for he says that Nature plainly intends all earthly life to be mortal, it will come not from gradual physical decay, but as the result of some external, unforeseen cause, such as a wound or a railroad accident.

A gentle rubbing of the surface of the body with the hand, from the crown of the head to the ends of the fingers and toes, is the newest remedy against growing old.

It is proposed by Dr. L. H. Goizet, himself 81 years old and a member of the Faculty of Paris. His book is entitled "Never Grow Old: How to Live for More Than One Hundred Years" (G. P. Putnam's Sons.).

Dr. Goizet devised his system of gentle tractile rubbing some 13 years ago, following the destruction of a magnificent elm tree upon his estate at Leognan, France. The elm was almost 600 years old when it was decapitated by a high wind.

An examination of the ancient trunk and branches started the disconsolate owner upon a train of thought which some day may cause this elm tree to rank in science with the fabled apple tree of Sir Isaac Newton.

At the time of the accident to the elm, Dr. Goizet was 68 years old, and he says: "I can affirm that my general health and my strength have considerably improved and that, for 13 years, the harmony of my functions has not been troubled a single instant."

To state Dr. Goizet's theory briefly in his own words, before describing the treatment itself, he aims at "the re-establishment of the interrupted rotatory molecular movement, the sole and unique cause of the bad functioning of organs."

He likens the earth to a motor, deriving its power from the planetary system of which it is a part, and distributing this motive force to the "organized bodies" (living organisms) on its surface. The motion which is the manifestation of life comes through a great "vital current" in each living body, which he says must not be confused with the circulation of the blood.

For he believes that the blood simply constitutes an independent stream which brings and empties into the great vital current the principles necessary to the formation of the living cell.

Rather picturesquely, he likens the whole circulatory system of the body to "a revictualing network for the great vital current which, going always from cell to cell, burns for the maintenance of its movement a certain quantity of these cells that it is obliged to renew in proportion to their destruction in order to assure its continuity."

And since man is bound to the surface of the earth by the immutable laws of attraction and weight, the author declares that man cannot escape the rotary motion of the earth around the sun and unconsciously he is drawn by it into this same movement with the same rapidity and necessarily in the same direction. The cells which form him submit to the same laws.

Since the vital current means man himself, or at least his life, then the direction of the movement of the vital current will be strictly the same as the direction of the earth in its revolution around the sun.

"The earth accomplishes its movement of revolution around the sun in the direction of west to east. It is in the same direction that the rotary movement of the vital current must be accomplished. If it were otherwise, the equilibrium would be broken and the final catastrophe would be the inevitable and immediate result."

To understand the description of the treatment for warding off old age, it must be further stated in the author's words that "in order that an organized being may preserve his static equlibrium (parity of weight between the right and left halves of the body) and the harmony of his organic functions, it is necessary that no alteration shall take place in the perfection of his form; and in order that the rectitude of his form may exist, it is indispensable that the circulation of the nutritive molecule through the living cells which constitute it should be absolutely free.

"Every obstruction to the free-circulation of this incessant rotatory current becomes the point of departure for the deterioration whose first manifestation is the alteration of form."

The first care, in beginning with a new patient, is to ascertain whether there is any alteration of his form from normal, and if so in what it consists. Remembering the dictum that no health, in the absolute sense of the word, is possible without static equilibrium and harmony of the organic functions, and that these two essential conditions cannot exist without rectitude of form, a plumb line is placed on the crown of the head and allowed to fall down to the end of the vertebral region.

If the posterior and anterior median lines are followed by the plumb-line, one may affirm absolutely the static equilibrium of the individual. Deviations require to be rectified.

To rectify an altered form, says the author, whatever may be the impertance and long standing of the deformation or the age of the patient, it will be necessary to proceed in the same general way in every case. The only thing which will vary will be the number of treatments necessary.

"Let us suppose," says the doctor, 'the case of an individual in whom, after careful examination, a deformation has been found. I have him undress and sit on a steel with his back toward the light. Placing myself directly back of him standing, I commence the application of my method.

"This application will have its point of departure at the center of gravity of the form which, as we have established previously, corresponds exteriorly to the crown of the head, and interiorly to the point of the brain which is the seat of the directing ego.

"Since the rotatory current of the nutritive molecule likewise starts at this same center of gravity to expand in successive circuits around the axis of the form, made up of the crown of the head and the spinal column, distributing on its course the materials for the incessant reconstruction of the being, I will, to accomplish my purpose, only have to follow the movement of the current in its immutable direction from west to east, that is to say, in the direction of the movement of the earth around the sun, to accompany it with my tractile and superficial rubbings in all its circuits in order to facilitate by these gentle frictions its march forward and the continuous efforts it makes to re-establish its course, interrupted by the muscular contractions.

"These rubbings, as light as possible, will then commence by the placing of the palm of the hand on the top of the cranium and will be continued under the form of tractile pressures, effected with as much slowness as gentleness, circularly around the head from left to right in back; then, to form the other half of the circle, from right to left in front.

"All these circular rubbings will have to overlap each other in such a way that no point can escape their helpful contact. They have not only the effect of making the current active and of provoking reactions which take place in the molecular materials by contact with the surrounding air, whose penetration through the pores of the skin they facilitate; but also by the impulse of the muscles whose parallelism they re-establish by relaxing them, they contribute to the reconstruction of the interrupted molecular current.

"That is the aim, and this aim is always attained at the end of a more or less long time which never exceeds three months, whatever the importance or the long standing of the deformation or the age of the subject.

"After the head, I continue my rubbings on the neck; then on the shoulders, on the upper limbs as far as the digital extremities; on the trunk, the abdomen, the lower limbs as far as the extremities of the toes. Not one point must be forgotten. Certain regions, like the base of the cranium, the loins, the hips, the joints, require more prolonged rubbings and a greater insistence.

"It is by his judgment and the delicacy of his touch that the operator will measure the duration of the time to give to this or that region. But what must never vary is the direction in which the rubbings must be executed, and their extreme lightness.

"One must never forget, in fact, that the most important facts of the life of the being are accomplished at the periphery; and that exterior pressures do not need to be very strong to provoke alterations of the form, and therefore interrupt the course of the molecular movement; that is to say, life.

"Just as the plant fades, withers, bows its head, dries up and ends by dying when the nourishing juices, lacking water, do not reach it any more, so also the organs, deprived of the molecular current which brings them the materials of renovation, wither, become atrophied and no longer accomplish their vital functions; the sick being languishes and dies if we do not come to his aid.

"To come to his aid is to re-establish the course of the nutritive molecule by destroying the muscular contractions. This is the role of the method.

"In these conditions the operator sees, to his great satisfaction, and above all to the great joy of his clients, the blessings of resurrection issue from his fingers. In following the contours of the organs with his hands he feels the muscular contractions untie themselves, the shoulders go back into their place, the head erect itself, the face find again the beauty of its features, the deflected joints extend, all the movements regain their suppleness, locomotion take place freely and without fatigue in an absolute rectitude.

"In a word, it is life that is reborn under the fingers with the vital current which, henceforth re-established, will carry the nourishing and living juices to the extreme limits of the extension of the form."

A thrilling mystery story with romance closely interwoven

THE STORY.

His money stolen in a South American port on the eve of his embarkation for the United States, Algernon Adonis Percival, American mining engineer, goes aboard the liner Doraine as a stowaway. The adventure begins to be amusing when, as he is at work scrubbing the deck, he is recognized by Ruth Clinton, a passenger, as her dancing partner of a few nights before. Percival's amusement is short lived, however. Before making his presence known to the captain he had observed certain strange goings-on about the ship and gives a warning which leads to the finding of several bombs in the hold, evidently placed by German agents, for it is the year of the United States' entry into the great war. The search averts complete disaster, but not all the bombs are found, and those that remain explode, partially wrecking the vessel and setting it afire. The surviving passengers take to the lifeboats while the crew battles desperately with the flames and, after a long fight, succeeds in extinguishing them. On being called back to the ship, the occupants of the lifeboats find it hopelessly adrift. Class distinctions are obliterated as everyone sets to work burying the dead and caring for the wounded, and Percival, his hands badly burned, finds himself the object of Ruth Clinton's friendly solicitude, as well as that of Olga Obosky, a beautiful Russian dancer, who has taken a great fancy to him. The ship is caught in a gale, from which it emerges in a sinking condition, but on the second morning after the storm land is sighted. A strong current draws the vessel into an opening in the rocks along the shore, and it finally runs aground in the shallow waters of an inland basin. Most of the steerage passengers promptly stampede for the boats, whereupon Percival takes command of the dangerous situation and quiets the mob with a masterly harangue in Spanish—a proceeding which causes much discussion among those in the first cabin. The next day the Stars and Stripes are planted on the island, and Percival prepares passengers and crew for the probable necessity of a long stay in the uninhabited place.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

"NOW, here is what we will have to do. We must select a site for our camp—or town, you may well say—and we must build upon it without delay. That is to be our first step. Details will come later. There are over 600 of us here. We represent a fair-sized village. We have mechanics, carpenters, farmers, surveyors, masons and merchants, to say nothing of cooks, housekeepers and so on. The ship contains all sorts of tools to work with; canvas for temporary quarters, beds and bedding, cooking utensils; in fact, we have everything that Robinson Crusoe didn't have, and, besides all that, we've got each other. We are not alone on a desert island. We are, my friends, as well off as the Pilgrims who landed on Plymouth Rock, and we are better off than the hardy colonists who laid the foundation for the country that flies that flag up there. Centuries ago bold adventurers set out to discover unknown lands. They were few in number and poorly equipped. But they ventured into the wilderness and built villages that grew to be cities. They went through a thousand hardships that we will never know, and they survived.

"Capt. Trigger and the others selected me to make this talk to you because I have had some practical experience in establishing and developing a camp such as we will have to build. Experience has taught me one thing above all others: Work, hard work, of a constructive nature, is our only salvation. Unless we occupy ourselves from one day's end to another in good, hard, honest toil, we will all go mad. That's the long and short of it. If we sat still on this boat for 30 days doing nothing we'd lose our minds. There isn't a man in this crowd, I am sure, who wouldn't work his head off to spare the women an hour of hardship. But the greatest hardship you women could possibly know would be idleness. There will be work for everyone to do, and we can thank God for it, my friends. We will have to work for nothing. We will have to help each other. There is but one class on this island at present, and that is the working class.

"We've all got people at home waiting for us. By this time the whole world knows that the Doraine is three weeks overdue at Rio Janeiro, and that no word has been had from her. The ocean is being searched. Our friends, our relatives, are doing everything in their power to get trace of this lost ship. You may depend on that. In a little while, a few weeks, at best, the ship will be given up for lost. We will be counted as dead, all of us. That's a hard, cruel thing for me to say, and I hate to say it, but we've just got to realize the position we're in. It's best that we should look at it from the worst possible angle. I do not speak jestingly when I say that we may as well consider ourselves dead—and forgotten. I am as full of hope and confidence as anybody, and I am an optimist if there ever was one, but I don't work on the theory that God takes any better care of an optimist than He does of a pessimist.

"It will require months, maybe years, for us to construct a ship, and even then it will not be big enough to transport all of us. The most we can hope for is a craft that will be stout enough to go out and bring help to the rest of us. I am trying, at Capt. Trigger's suggestion, to convince you that we can't build a ship, that we can't expect to get away from this island by our own endeavors, unless we go about it in the proper and sensible way. That means, first of all, that we must safeguard ourselves against time. We've got to live and we've got to keep our strength.

"Mr. Landover has made a very generous proposition. He agrees to give a hundred thousand dollars to any boat's crew that will take one of these lifeboats and make port somewhere. He fails to mention the compensation they are to receive, if they never make port. He forgets that this big ship floundered around for a good many days without sighting anything but water. He would have been perfectly safe in offering a hundred million dollars, because he would never be called upon to pay it. I understand, however, that this offer still stands.

"Tomorrow morning surveying parties will be sent ashore to look for a possible site for our town. Volunteers will undertake this work. As soon as possible thereafter a temporary camp will be set up and practically everyone on board will be moved from this ship. Capt. Trigger and a few chosen men will remain on board. It is his wish, ladies and gentlemen. He is the captain of the Doraine. He will not leave her. We are all here today, and alive, because Capt. Trigger would not leave his ship. We owe our lives to him. This is not the time to propose three cheers for the gallant master of the Doraine. It is not the time to cheer for anybody or for anything. We do not feel like cheering. We've done all the praying that is necessary. We've offered up all the thanksgiving that the situation calls for, so now we've got to roll up our sleeves and go to work."

He stepped down from the gun platform. There were no cheers. Every voice was stilled, every face was set. Many seconds passed before there was even the slightest stir among those who had listened so intently.

Then the few English-speaking people from the steerage began to whisper hoarsely to their bewildered companions.

The warm summer season was well advanced in this far-southern land before the strenuous, tireless efforts of the marooned settlers began to show definite results.

Some six weeks after the stranding of the Doraine, stanch log cabins were in course of completion along the base of the hills overlooking the clear, rolling meadowland to the north and east. Down in the lowlands scores of men were employed in sowing and planting. The soil was rich. Farmers and grain raisers among the passengers were unanimously of the opinion that almost any vegetable, cereal or fruit indigenous to Argentina (or at worst, Patagonia), could be produced here. Uncertainty as to the duration of the warm period, so vital to the growing and maturing of crops, was the chief problem. No time was to be lost if there were to be harvests before the cold and blighting weather set in.

It was extremely doubtful if the spring and summer season combined covered more than five months in this latitude. Assuming that the climate in this open part of the world was anything like that of the Falkland Islands, the rainy season was overdue. Midwinter usually comes in July, with the temperature averaging between 35 and 10 degrees above zero over a period of four or five months. At the time of the wreck the thermometers were registering about 70 degrees during the day, and dropping to 50 degrees or thereabouts after nightfall. This would indicate that spring was fairly well advanced and that midsummer might be figured on as coming in January. It was now the end of November. Warm weather probably would last until February or March. Possibly they would be too late with their planting, but they went about it speedily, determinedly, just the same.

All of them had had crop failures before. All of them had seen the labor of months go for naught in the blight of an evening's frost, or the sweep of a prairie fire. So, here on this virgin soil, in soil whose sod had never been turned, they sowed from the bins of the slumbering ship. Wheat and oats and flax, brought from the Argentina plains; potatoes, squash and beetroot; even beans and peas were tried, but with small hope. And there were women ready to till the soil and work the gardens, women to draw the strangely fashioned plowshares as willing beasts of burden, to wield the hoe and spade, and to watch for the cherished sprout that was to glorify their deeds.

The ring of the ax resounded in the forest; the clangor of hammer and nail, the rasp of the saw, the clatter of timber went on from dawn to dusk—for there was no eight-hour law in this smiling land, nor was there any other union save that of stanch endeavor, no other brotherhood except that of man. There was never a question of wage, never a dispute as to hours, never a thought of strike. Every laborer was worthy of his hire, and his hire was good!

The Doraine was gradually being dismantled. She was being stripped of every bit of material that could be used in constructing and furnishing the huts. The new camp lay not more than a mile and a half from the basin. A road had been cleared through the wood from the small, hastily constructed dock and runway on the eastern side of the basin to the open territory beyond.

Material, supplies, equipment were carried through the densely shaded avenue, and later on, after the warehouses and granaries had been built, the leafy lane witnessed the transportation of ton upon ton of stores, patiently borne in hundredweight lots, in bushel bags, in clumsy parcels, by men whose work seemed endless; wheat, barley, oats, sugar, coffee and other commodities intrusted to the steamship company for delivery in the United States. Tobacco, canned and refrigerated meats, olives, flour, figs and dates in large quantities were included in the vast cargo, to say nothing of the enormous supply of canned fruits and vegetables. Washed wool, tanned leather, homespun cotton and woolen cloth, silks, hides, furs, laces, linseed oil, blankets, all these came ashore in course of time, but of the sinister treasure that had inspired the destruction of the ship, i. e., the manganese, the rubber, the nitrates, the copper bars and the stacks of high explosives, not a pound was moved. All this was left for another and more leisurely day.

Much of this material was carefully stacked or stored away against the day when it could be utilized in the construction of a small but sturdy ship, in which a chosen company of sailors were to fare out to sea once more in search of the world they had lost.

Tireless and indomitable engineers later on succeeded in transferring portions of the damaged machinery, including dynamos, to the camp, where, in course of time, their skill and ingenuity bade fair to triumph over seemingly insurmountable difficulties in the matter of restoration.

Fully six weeks elapsed, however, before the women were allowed to leave the ship for their new homes on the land, and even then they came but a few at a time and only as huts were ready and fully equipped to receive them. Each hut contained a combination kitchen and living room, with a single bedchamber. A substantial fireplace, built of stone and mortar, with a tall chimney at the back, was a feature in every house. The cracks between the logs and all chinks were sealed with thick layers of mortar; the ceilings, made of stout saplings, were treated in a similar manner, while the roof, resting on a sturdy ridgepole, and securely anchored, was of three layers of poles, interstices mortared and the whole covered with a vast quantity of seaweed, moss and reeds, held in place by several well-fastened sections of iron railing from the decks of the Doraine. While the huts were uniform in size, shape and construction, there was nothing to

He Also Ran

SOMEWHERE on the lower deck of the Denman T. Prior a ribald voice sang a parody on the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

"I knew a man who went a-diggin for some clams.
I knew a man who went a-diggin' for some clams.
I knew a man who went a-diggin' for some clams.
And he didn't get a doggone clam!"

In the pilot house above there were four of us—the perfumed woman from some far-away city, whose polished nails gleamed where the moonlight, like a strip of white paper, fell across her lap; the State Senator, eternally chewing the ends of matches, one other, and the old man at the wheel.

"That ain't a nice song," said the last, addressing the North Star. "It makes me think of Cleaver Jesup, and some things haunt yer an' chill yer like malaria."

The pilot had been on the river since '53. He knew its whims, tantrums, snags, passes and shifting bars from the Eads Bridge north to the Twin Cities and south to the yawn of the lazy yellow gulf.

The river, the winds, the rains, the sun and the years had desiccated him. His hair was white and fine, but his skin was as brown and wrinkled as the corncob pipe which drooped from the corner of his mouth, and his eyes were framed in a narrow squint which seemed to spread all over his body. Growing ancient, he had shrunk like juiceless fruit, he had bent and shriveled below 5 feet 5.

Now that dusk had drawn night after it, we could see him only dimly in the feeble glow of the shaded pilot house lamp. The Mississippi had become a slow stream of silent, black oil, flowing between distant shores; stars low in the sky hung above the yellow lights of occasional habitations whose radiance wriggled out over the water. Behind us the stern wheel churned a laundry foam; in front the engine exhausts in the twin stacks said: "Chow—cha-ow, Chow—cha-ow," as some kind of mothers hushing some kind of children to sleep, and the old man moved from one side of the pilot house to the other like a restless spirit in a cage.

"Mark Twain?" said he, suddenly starting the big wheel with his foot to swing the Prior across the current.

No one had spoken of Mark Twain.

"You was speakin' of Mark Twain," he went on. "There's a case. He wanted to be a pilot. And he weren't any account as a pilot. Horace Bixby tried to make a pilot out of him and it weren't any use. No matter howsomuch as he wanted to be a pilot, he couldn't and had to write books.

"Jesso with me. I says to myself, 'Merrill Cutler, you'll be in the banking business some day.' But the river wouldn't noways let me go. Then you heard me mention Cleaver Jesup. Look yonder!"

On the background of purple night sky we could see the old man's finger pointing at one of the shore lights, which winked and glowed alternately as trees along the undulating black bank intercepted its gleam. The finger was gnarled and rheumatic, drawn into the arc of a scimitar, suggestive of the sickle of Father Time. He held it there, pointing, and its tense fixity and the curious little growl in the old man's throat infected us with some undefined emotion.

"That's his old house, all gone to ruin. It never was much of a place nohow, not even when Cleaver's father had it. I've got a note that the old man give me 40 years ago and it weren't never paid. You Eastern city people take powerful little interest in our little towns along the river, but I'm goin' to tell you about Jesup because I knew him, and livin' human beings are sawed out of the same lumber the world over. It's always been so and it always will."

The perfumed woman shut her eyes. Whether it was to feel better the breeze upon her powdered cheek or to listen better to the pilot's drawl one could not say.

* * * * * * * *

"I had a boy. He's dead now. Typhoid. Nettie named him after me—Merrill Cutler. I didn't noways want it done, but Nettie was persistent. She always had a streak in her—— But she's gone, too, and I shan't say a word about her but praise. She was a good wife and mother. I reckon most women are, after all.

"My boy went to school with Cleaver Jesup. It was when we were living at Buttonshell Bluff—over yonder. You can see the lights on Main street now. It's about the only street there is, and it runs from the pearl button factories and brewery and the Tri-State Plow Works, that's been shut down for 27 years, and the bluff to where folks live. The town has sent out two United States Senators and had two famous murderers. In '68 the National Hotel was the headquarters for the river gamblers. George Bishop says he can also remember that Patti sang in the Agricultural Hall, since burned down. Which, if George hadn't said it was so, I would have felt pretty certain of, myself.

* * * * * * * *

"Nettie and I had a four-room, one-story house just off Main street, where the stores are, and there wasn't any trouble with it except Johnson's Livery, where the horses would stamp at night and keep a man awake, and in the summer, just to walk across the brick pavement, side of it, would start up a swarm of flies that would make a fuss about as loud as a flock of ducks.

"It was hot there in our town from the first high water in the river in May until low water in October. This is what you've heard called the corn country, and a man can hear the heat creak at night. Heat is on the river and on the prairies back of that rise on the bank where I pointed out the Jesup homestead.

"My boy was the only boy at school that had much to do with Cleaver. The Jesup boy was undersized, and shy, and always dreaming. He never cared much for games. He was so awkward he'd lean the wrong way when he was running around the corner, and his shoulders stooped, and one of his eyes was blue and the other was brown. Fourteen boys could go over a barbed-wire fence, but it was always Cleaver whose pants caught. One of his ears stuck out as if it was trying to get away and the other looked as if it had been ironed flat on his skull. From the first day when I had come home from a trip to Natchez and my boy brought Cleaver in, till the last time I saw him, 40 years after, he never had a pair of shoes that didn't pinch or blister his feet somewhere, and in his time, first and last, he had more chigger bites and ulcerated teeth than any other human crittur I ever knew.

"I shan't forget noways, how I saw him for the first time setting at our table.

"He had been dressed up to come, I reckon. He had a nice, clean little cambric blouse with a pattern of horseshoes and whips printed all over it, and it had been washed and had shrunk around the collar so it throttled him, and his head and face were as red as a raspberry, and before dinner was through his little eyes bulged out. So I unbuttoned the collar and he felt so ashamed that I'd found out about it that he never spoke another word until we got up from the table, and then he busted into tears and ran out, and it was four years before he ever came back.

"Yet back yonder in those days I learned from my own boy the one thing there was to know about Cleaver. He had an ambition. There wasn't much about him but that. It's funny how a hankering will start and last a lifetime. The little fool! He wanted to be a hero. He'd set his heart on it—the slant-shouldered, knock-kneed, homely, freckled little chap.

* * * * * * * *

"Maybe he got the idea out of books. My boy thought he got it first learning a poem called 'Horatio at the Bridge.' He had to recite it at school with his one bat ear sticking out, and Merrill said as how Cleaver just went on reciting it so excited and fast that all the words ran together like molasses candy in hot weather and nobody understood what it meant but him, and the sweat ran down his cheeks and nobody would ever know he was Cleaver Jesup at all. It was just as if he had forgotten that he was the son of Martin Jesup, who kept the clothing and trunk store and never paid his bills, and always went shuffling and sniffling down Main street. It was just as if the little cuss thought he was Horatio—hide, hair and shoe leather.

"But however come that he got started, he hadn't a picayune of interest afterward in much that interests boys except to read about the heroes of history, ancient and modern. He knew about Lycurgus defending the pass, and Sheridan and Paul Revere and Sir Francis Drake and Capt. Smith and Galahad and a sight more, and he had a colored picture of Joan of Arc pinned onto the wall of his room, until he read a book and found out she was a woman. Then he was all broke up over it and took it down and put up a picture of Van Amberg, the lion tamer, to cover the square where the sun hadn't been able to bleach the color out of the wall paper.

* * * * * * * *

"When you've known a grown man, it's funny to look back a ways and see the boy he growed from. That's why I tell, before I ever come to the finish, of what happened way back yonder. I remember how Cleaver begged old papers from folks who got 'em from the city so's he could sit on a stool with a pair of scissors and cut out pieces from 'em about men who rescued people from drowning, and lighthouse keepers who rode out to wrecks, and boys who had stopped runaway horses, and all like that. And I remember that he'd beg his mother, who was always a sickly woman and going blind, to make him flour paste, and then he'd stick his clippings in an old ledger from his father's store and cover up a bad debt with every swipe of the past brush. Ain't it onery to think that a man can begin that early to be something and that he can look up so often into a sky like this one above us tonight and want to be it so bad it seems as if he couldn't stand it—just wanting to be a hero, and hankering and hankering and hankering!

"He learned to dive and swim, so my boy said, jesso he could save somebody from drowning when the time came, and he wasted so many hours there weren't any use counting 'em, trying to decide whether he'd rather be Perseus or Fighting Joe Hooker, and never quite fetched up with the answer.

"When he was 13 or along there he was still at it, dreaming and planning with his one brown eye shut and his one blue eye open. Maybe he'd be standing in front of his father's store with a broom in his hand and fuzz beginning to show on his upper lip and his receding chin. He was still at it and nobody gave him anything but ridicule, except his sickly mother. Merrill said the story went around among the boys that when she died she put her yellow hand on Cleaver's shoulder and called him 'My little hero,' and kissed him on his freckled forehead.

"But the rest gave him nothing but discouragement. His father bawled him out one day, right in front of the Andrew Jackson House. Cleaver had seen smoke way out on the Bowknot road and left the store without anyone to wait on folks, and he ran out four miles, with the thermometer above a hundred, just to find that no house was afire with a child to save in the third story, but only a farmer burning weeds off an old sweet potato field.

* * * * * * * *

"Even my boy thought he was a fool for want o' sense, and another of the boys, named Fred Stark, who grew up into the drunkenest feller and was the town even to ship off a piece of bark in such a way that it bounded against the solar plexus of the squirrel and caused him to be counted out.

"If a man was no-account and ornery and failed to support his family," declared Uncle John, "he was 'sold' to someone for a time. He worked as this man directed and his wages were given to his wife."

"How did that scheme work?"

"It worked about as well as the man worked and if he didn't work they harnessed him up to a whipping post and blistered him. After that he worked."

People were more courteous and obliging in those days and men of ideas and force of character were at a premium. Uncle John remembers Davy Crockett as a man expert with words and rifle bullets and thinks it would be better if there were more men like him today. He liked everything about Andrew Jackson except his ideas on things, but admits that he was a good fighter. He considers the nickname "Old Hickory" as especially descriptive of the Hon. Andrew's head. As an evidence of the wholehearted sincerity of the people of those days, he cites the fact that when a man was bad he was very bad. Like gold, goodness seems not to have fluctuated in value.

Socially, the people were as gay as could be expected in a community where everybody knew everybody else. They liked the dance. The music of the times was as fast as a rough-boarded floor would permit. The lack of the "mystery element" and its accompaniment of tin horns, cowbells and police whistles, as developed in the modern foxtrot, was compensated for to a fair extent by the inferior quality of the fiddles and the exotic reaction of the fiddlers to real whisky. When a man built a house he invited the neighbors to a "log rolling," where they worked all day and feasted and danced all night, regardless of union hours. At each log rolling the date of the next was announced.

"We just kept a-rollin' and a-dancin'," quoth Uncle John, "until we made a State out of Tennessee."

Horse racing on quarter-mile, straight tracks and rifle shooting were popular sports. The rifles were of two kinds—small-bore squirrel rifles and Mississippi Yagers. The Yager was a sort of one-man infant cannon which registered a knockout punch at both ends. As a purveyor of food and freedom it was as dangerous to bear and British as a barrel of wood alcohol in Old Home Week.

The Big Business of that day was flat-boating. In flat-boating, the procedure is very similar to that invented by Noah when he built the ark. The flatboater merely assembled a nonsubmersible collection of timbers, crowned it with whatever he had for sale, got it into the middle of the river and stayed there until the river got to the place he had chosen for a market. Crude as this method of navigation may seem, there is no known instance where one of those Columbii of the Middle West ever got off his course, except when a sudden rise in the stream caught him asleep and beached him on an inland farm.

Once each month there was held a muster day. On this day every male citizen was supposed to report with his gun, prepared to fight for his country should it be learned that his country had become involved in an argument. If all was found to be quiet on the Potomac and a man felt that he would like to fight for any other reason, including the mere joy of battle, it was considered a neighborly duty for someone to accommodate him to the fullest extent.

In a country having an elevation of four or five thousand feet above sea level it is not surprising to learn that land was high. It became higher still. The land of the valleys became even higher than the land of the hills. Disturbed by this topographical paralox, many people went farther up in the country. John Smith went to Kentucky in 1856. Two years later he went to Missouri.

"A man told me," said he, "that in Missouri you could shake a bush and the money would fall off of it."

Sixty years' residence in the Two-bear State has caused John Smith to gravely doubt this assertion. The journey to Missouri was made in a "Tennessee" (Conestoga) wagon, a sort of boat-shaped ark on wheels, with a 16-foot bed, the front end of which overhung the rear pair of oxen. It was covered with canvas and was so high that a short ladder was carried for the purpose of getting into it.

In Missouri, John Smith settled first in Laclede County and later in Pulaski County. He served in the Confederate army, under Burbridge and Mitchell. His farm in Pulaski County is in the "bend" of the Gasconade River, and he has long been known as "The King of the Bend." His present residence is on the high land near his "bend" farm. He is the father of five children, two boys and three girls, the only survivor of whom is Mrs. Houston Stroup, the baby of the family, now 62 years old. He has seen five generations of his people. He is fond of sweets and never sleeps by day. For quite some time he viewed automobiles and telephones with considerable distrust. Strangely enough, on the afternoon of the interview an airplane went droning over the Bowl, following the St. Louis and Springfield route. How it impressed this old man, who lived before even the first railroad was built, is an interesting question.

He is a member of the Methodist Church South, a kindly, fatherly old patriarch, extremely solicitous of the welfare of those around him. He does not set much value on sleep as an aid to old age and does not know the nature of worry. He has enjoyed life; it is a pleasant thing to hear him laugh. His advice to those who desire old age is: "Don't die." But in a serious vein he says:

"Be good. Live right and the Lord will think well of you. He wanted me to be old, so I am old. My parents were not extremely old, but my maternal grandfather, Archibald Exendine, a Cherokee of Georgia and a Methodist minister, lived 110 years and was clear in his mind to the last. My paternal grandfather, James R. (Buck) Smith, a Georgia Cherokee chief, lived 105 years, but became childish in his old age and amused himself by building little mud cabins with stick chimneys, just like a child. I always worked hard and provided for my family. I went to bed early and got up at 4 o'clock. It's been a good world to me; I reckon I made out pretty well. Always I have heard people speak of a new country. There is only one new country"——

His eyes filled with tears and his voice trembled as he pointed upward.

"It's up there. Heaven's my home. There's where I want to go."

Over in Shepherd's Church, a few minutes' walk across the fields, the old gray-haired superintendent had read that afternoon this quotation from Kings:

"And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as thy father David did walk, then will I lengthen thy days."

Old John Smith's words sounded strangely like the fulfillment of that promise.

The discussion continued until we had finally reached the door of the White House in the dark. The matter was finally adjusted, thanks to the peace policy of Mr. Blaine. More than once he kept the United States out of foreign trouble, as I personally know.

Why Grant Stopped Drinking.

ON A JOURNEY to and from Washington, Gen. Grant stopped at Pittsburg to make the necessary arrangements for his removal to the East. I met him on the line on both occasions and took him to dine with me in Pittsburg. There were no dining cars then.

He was the most ordinary looking man of high position I had ever met, and the last that one would select at first glance as a remarkable man. I remember that Secretary Stanton said that when he visited the armies of the West, Gen. Grant and his staff entered his car; he looked at them, one after the other, as they entered, and seeing Gen. Grant, said to himself: "Well, I do not know which is Gen. Grant, but there is one that cannot be." Yet this was he. * * *

The story is told that during the trials of the war in the West, Gen. Grant began to indulge too freely in liquor. His chief of staff, Rawlins, boldly ventured to tell him so. That this was the act of a true friend Grant fully recognized.

"You do not mean that? I was wholly unconscious of it. I am surprised," said the General.

"Yes, I do mean it. It is even beginning to be a subject of comment among your officers."

"Why did you not tell me before? I'll never drink a drop of liquor again."

He never did. Time after time, in later years, dining with the Grants in New York, I have seen the General turn down the wine glasses at his side. That indomitable will of his enabled him to remain steadfast to his resolve, a rare case as far as my experience goes. Some have refrained for a time. In one noted case one of our partners refrained for three years, but, alas, the old enemy at last recaptured its victim.

James B. Eads and His Bridge.

I AM reminded of another unusual character with whom we were brought into contact in these bridge-building days. (Carnegie had founded the Keystone Bridge Co.) This was Capt. Eads of St. Louis, an original genius minus scientific knowledge to guide his erratic ideas of things mechanical. He was seemingly one of those who wished to have everything done upon his own original plans. That a thing had been done in one way before was sufficient to cause its rejection.

When his plans for the St. Louis (Eads) bridge were presented to us, I handed them to the one man in the United States who knew the subject best, Mr. Linville. He came to me in great concern, saying: "The bridge, if built upon these plans, will not stand up; it will not carry its own weight."

"Well," I said, "Capt. Eads will come to see you, and in talking over matters explain this to him gently, get it into proper shape, lead him into the straight path and say nothing about it to the others."

This was successfully accomplished, but in the construction of the bridge poor Piper (the firm's mechanical expert) was totally unable to comply with the extraordinary requirements of the Captain. At first he was so delighted with having received the largest contract that had yet been let that he was all graciousness to Capt. Eads. It was not even "Captain," at first, but "Col. Eads, how do you do!"

By and by matters became a little complicated. We noticed that the greeting became less cordial, and it was now: "Good morning, Capt. Eads." Soon we were surprised to hear Piper talking of "Mr. Eads." Before the troubles were over, it was "Jim Eads," and, to tell the truth, long before the work was out of the shops, "Jim" was now and then preceding by a big "D."

A man may be possessed of great ability, and be a charming, interesting character, as Capt. Eads undoubtedly was, and yet not be able to construct the first bridge of 500-foot span over the Mississippi River, without availing himself of the scientific knowledge and practical experience of others.

"Yust One More Pass."

UPON one of my visits to Pittsburg, William (William Borntraeger, a young German mill hand who became one of the first of the famous "Carnegie partners") told me he had something "particular" he wished to tell me. He asked permission to return to Germany to marry the sister of a former schoolfellow, who had risen to be a professor.

"Of course you can go," I said. "Go over at once and bring her home. I suppose your sweetheart is a beautiful, tall, peaches-and-cream kind of German young lady."

"Vell, Mr. Carnegie, she is a leetle stout. If I had the rolling of her I give her yust one more pass." All William's illustrations were founded on mill practice.

A Hilarious Grandfather.

MY FATHER, William Carnegie, was a damask weaver, the son of Andrew Carnegie, after whom I was named. My Grandfather Carnegie was well known throughout the district for his wit and humor, his genial nature and irrepressible spirits. He was head of the lively ones of his day, and known near and far as the chief of their joyous club—"Patiemuir College."

Upon my return to Dunfermline, after an absence of 14 years, I remember being approached by an old man who had been told that I was the grandson of the "Professor," my grandfather's title among his cronies. As he tottered across the room towards me and laid his trembling hand upon my head, he said: "And ye are the grandson o' Andra Carnegie! Eh, mon, I ha'e seen the day when your grandfather and I could ha'e hallooed ony reasonable man oot o' his jidgment."

Several other old people of Dunfermline told me stories of my grandfather. Here is one of them: One Hogmanay night (Dec. 31) an old wifey, quite a character in the village, being surprised by a disguised face suddenly thrust in at the window, looked up and after a moment's pause exclaimed: "Oh, it's jist that daft callant Andra Carnegie." She was right; my grandfather at 75 was out frightening his old lady friends, disguised like other frolicking youngsters.

I think my optimistic nature, my ability to shed trouble and to laugh through life, making "all my ducks swans," as friends say I do, must have been inherited from this delightful old masquerading grandfather, whose name I am proud to bear. A sunny disposition is worth more than fortune. Young people should know that it can be cultivated; that the mind, like the body, can be moved from the shade into the sunshine.

Life's Motto From Burns.

BURNS gives the grand rule of life: "Thine own reproach alone do fear." This motto, adopted early in life, has been more to me than all the sermons I ever heard, and I have heard not a few, although I may admit resemblance to my old friend Baillie Walker in my mature years.

He was asked by his doctor about his sleep and replied that it was far from satisfactory, he was very wakeful, adding with a twinkle in his eye: "But I get a bit fine doze i' the kirk noo and then."

HE ALSO RAN (Continued)

drunkard of Buttonshell an' no good, used to make life a spell of misery for the Jesup boy.

"He'd meet him coming home from school and he'd say: 'Here's a hero. How's Horatio today? You think you're going to wear a medal, eh? You think people is goin' to throw up their hats and give a tiger on the end for you. Well, you tell 'em Fred Stark licked the stuffin' out'n you.' Then he'd pull Cleaver's nose and there'd be a fight and Fred was bigger and handier. So the Jesup boy would go under, and there'd be scratches on his face for 10 days.

"When he was 17 he got a chance one night to play his part. There used to be an old Burton Line steamer by the name of The Belle of Quincy that dropped into the levee landing once a week with a load of passengers. It was just growing dark, and men and girls and children were all hanging over the deck rail when somebody saw a head bobbing way out in the current and somebody else said they heard a cry.

" 'It's a woman,' said some, and others said it was a boy, and the men along the shore began to look for boats and there weren't any.

" 'She'll drown. The beautiful young girl will drown. Nobody'll reach her,' screams a woman. And she grabbed Cleaver Jesup by the arm as he stood looking out into the current.

" 'I will,' he says, with the joy shining in his brown eye and his blue eye. 'I've lived for this,' says he under his breath. And with words like those he pulls off his coat amidst all the shouting and confusion and dives into the water.

"Then a cheer went up. It was the first time anybody'd ever cheered him, and when they saw how he could swim so good they yelled and leaned over the rail, and others ran along the shore, and some folks said, 'Whoever'd think a no-account boy like him would be the one!' And others said, 'You'd never believe it nohow!'

"Maybe he was fighting too hard with the current or watching the head bobbing along out in the river so close he didn't hear or see the folks, but it was a great moment for him anyhow. When he got to the head he stopped swimming and some boy who'd climbed up on a telegraph pole shouts: 'He's tuckered out. He can't save her!'

"But Cleaver reached out for the other and came swimming back, and tears were running down the faces of the women. He came near shore puffing and blowing and white in the face. It seemed to me when he crawled up on the levee that his ear stuck out worse than ever. And it wasn't a girl he'd saved at all! Nor a man! Nor a boy! It wasn't anything but a dog—a dog somebody had kicked off the The Belle of Quincy as she was coming in—just a miserable, mangy, yellow, black-streaked hound dog!

* * * * * * * *

"So the crowd laughed. And they laughed even when Cleaver turned some shades whiter and fell among the molasses barrels on the shore.

" 'Nothin' but a dog,' said some. And Fred Stark, who'd already begun to struggle toward being the town drunkard, stood on a big box in front of everybody and pointed to the poor hound panting alongside of Cleaver and says, "I've come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.'

"So from that on, the dog was called Caesar, and always stuck to Cleaver, long after Cleaver got married.

"You never saw such a dog for fleas in your life! When his tail wasn't thumping on the floor of Cleaver's tailor shop, his hind legs always were. Going by the store you couldn't tell whether the sewing machine was running or whether the hound was busy again. When folks would hear him baying at night out on the Jesup place they'd laugh and say, 'There's the beautiful young girl that Cleaver saved from a watery grave.'

"So Cleaver growed up.

"He growed up hankering and hankering and hankering, and there wasn't any chance for him to be a hero in Buttonshell. He still read about rescues in newspapers, and one night I met him on Main street, limping along with a sore foot, and a pencil behind his bat ear which he'd forgotten to take down when he closed up the shop.

" 'Merrill,' he says to me, 'I've been reading about a shipwreck off a place they call the Azores, and one feller gave up his place in the lifeboats to a Spanish woman's husband so's the family shouldn't be separated. There ain't nothin' like doing something for somebody, is there? Why, they'll put that feller's name on a tablet and he won't be forgotten for a good many hundred years.'

* * * *

"Then he stook looking in the window of Johnson's jewelry store, with his shoulders slanting more than ever, thinking and dreaming and hoping.

" 'I'd like to get away from this town,' he says, after a while. 'I've never done well here. I can't get ahead any. Father never made anything out of the clothing business but enemies. And nothing ever happens in this town but haircuts and shaves. Somehow, nobody seems to respect me much, and it's a long walk out home, and lonesome now that my folks is gone. I've had a lot of trouble with my teeth this year, and I'd like to go where life was going on, and accidents or catastrophes, and a man would have a chance to show what was in him.'

" 'Well,' says I, 'why not?'

" 'I'll tell you why. You know Betty Cullson,' he says. 'Now, that's the reason. I can't seem to love her powerful strong, but she thinks a sight of me and I guess maybe she expects me to marry her. She's told me how homelike she'd fix up the place. She kind of dreams about it, I reckon. And then, you know, she's always been ailing and ain't just straight in the spine and suffers a good deal in rainy weather. I don't believe she could get anybody else if I went away. So probably you'll find me down at the store the next time you come—same as usual.'

"He married her. She was a little thing—and crooked like a maple that has sprouted under the porch and growed up through a crack. There wasn't any six weeks went by that Dr. Burton didn't have to come around and relieve pain and tinker over her.

" 'Must be tedious,' I says to Cleaver, after four or five years.

" 'She's mighty sweet about it,' says he.

"His father had a red trunk chained and padlocked outside the store to advertise that he sold such truck as well as coats, vests and pants, and Cleaver was taking it in off the sidewalk because it looked like rain, when he spoke.

" 'I meant tedious for you,' I says.

" 'Well, it is,' says he. 'I always looked for an exciting life. I ain't a very good home man. But I've kept that from her. A man can't distinguish himself in the home. But she thinks I'm satisfied. She don't know the things I've set my heart on, and I hope she never will.'

"I thought of what he said when the Spanish War came on in '98.

"You remember when war was declared. That day there was a crowd on the steps of Agricultural Hall to see an auction sale of farm machinery, and somebody came driving out from Main street and brought a horse up the road all sweat and hurry.

" 'It's war, boys!' he yells. 'I just heard the news from the compositor in the Democrat office! It's war!'

"Cleaver was standin' right among the others and he just took in his breath like a man who has been drowned and is coming to life. You never saw such a light as shone in his eyes—both his eyes—the blue and the brown.

" 'Merrill,' he said to me, 'I can't hardly say a word. There ain't anything like a man sacrificing himself for his country, is there?'

" 'You're going, I suppose,' I says.

" 'Yes. It has come at last,' he says. 'Well, well!'

"When he said it, Fred Stark, who was growed fat and red and bulby, was standing by and gave a grunt and a laugh.

" 'You'd make a fine soldier!' he roars. 'Why, your feet is always blistered and you never walk anywhere except on Main street. You ain't a hero, Cleaver. I've always said so. You don't walk like a hero or a soldier or nothing—you walk like a duck.'

"Nobody had any respect for Fred—he was the town drunkard, but the boys all laughed and Jesup got red even to the lobe of his bat ear. He turned away and came to me.

" 'I didn't want war to come,' says he. 'You understood that, Merrill. But if it had to come I'm glad it's brought the chance to me, and I don't know but what I did hope for it a little, after all. The only thing that worries me is Betty. It seems a shame to leave her alone.'

" 'Have you talked it over with her,' says I. 'What does she say?"

" 'She,' says Jesup, with his upper lip shaking. 'Oh, she says for me to go.'

"I remember how he said it. I had to go on the Delafield to New Orleans that spring and it weren't till the end of June that I got back to Nettie and Buttonshell Bluff. We'd heard down the river how Dewey fought in Manila Bay and the like of that, and now and then I'd meet fellers from up the river who told me of boys from my town who'd gone away to Nashville or Tampa with the army, and four of 'em were lucky and went across to Cuba. But nobody ever mentioned Cleaver Jesup's name.

"I don't know as I give it much attention one way or the other. He wasn't a boy any more. He'd growed up to be a man and I figured he could take care of himself. My own boy died in '95 and in one way or another I'd lost track of Cleave.

"Everybody remembers how the news of the big sea fight in Cuba reached us on the afternoon of the Fourth. Lawyer Newcomb was making the oration up at Schmoll's Grove and saying so many words that seemed to mean something, whether they did or not, that you couldn't hear a single tin spoon on an ice-cream plate or a peanut cracking. And he was all done by 2 o'clock and everybody was walking along toward town, sticking handkerchiefs in their collars or feeling for hairpins and wondering what they'd do between then and the fireworks, and the crowd was just plain straggling, when all of a sudden the news began to circulate around: Nobody knew where it came from. It seemed likely it just got started from nowhere.

"Somebody'd say: 'Whee! A big battle in Cuba. The Spaniards is all sunk! Haven't you heard? We never lost a man.'

"Then a woman'd say, 'Well, I never!'

"And a man, 'We gave 'em ——!'

"And his wife, 'John! Don't you talk so. This ain't any trifling matter. Think of them ships being burnt. And it happened yesterday, they say, and we weren't told!"

"Then everybody began to forget the heat and the dust and hurry along, and men and women holding onto children's hands crowded up together in knots on corners and in front of gates.

* * * * * * * *

"When I found Cleaver he was all alone. He'd opened the front door of his shop, and he was sitting in front of his rickety cutting table with his head in his hands, staring ahead of him like a man in a dream. You never saw such a hungry look.

" 'What's the matter?' says I. 'I see your face is all up again on one side. Is it another tooth?"

" 'I'd forgotten that,' he says, with the water coming into his eyes. 'I was just thinking how I'd like to have been there. It ain't noways right for a man to show his feelings, Merrill. But I'd have swapped all the rest of my life just to have come back here to Buttonshell and say that I was there and seen them big guns going and seen the Spanish dogs of war grovel in the dust at the bottom of the Spanish Main. The Lord may not have ever intended me to do a good deed of valor, but I'd like to see some great deed before I die.'

" 'I thought you was going,' I says.

" 'Yes, I was,' says he, looking at the ground. 'I'd set my heart on it. But Betty was ailing, worse and worse. She'd got fretful and nervous—couldn't stand to hear the crickets singing at night, and busted out crying over any excuse. You knew she'd gone? Well, Doc Burton

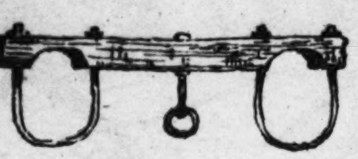
Pulaski County Super-Centenarian Contrasts Pioneer Days With the Present Era

"Uncle John" Smith of Dixon Hill, physically active and mentally alert despite his 108 years, grows reminiscent over the frontier days in the Middle West when flatboating was a leading calling and when "log rollings" built up the settlements in Tennessee and Missouri -o- -o- -o- -o-

By FREDERICK S. LIESMANN,
Dixon, Mo., With Sketches by the Author.

"I AM 108 years old and I cast my first vote for Henry Clay."

The author of this remarkable statement still lives on the slopes of Dixon Hill, in Pulaski County, Mo. If your mental picture of the man recalls the figure of Gagool in "King Solomon's Mines," or if you associate his voice with the croak of Vanderdecken's parrot in "The Flying Dutchman," get the idea out of your mind; for this old chap is a big, shaggy six-footer, with the shoulders of a blacksmith and a boom in his voice that carries like a hunting horn. His name is the most familiar name of the English-speaking world; it looms largely in our Colonial history; people write it on checks in time of financial panic. He is one of several thousand men who hold the world's record for namesakes. His name, in short, is John Smith. A strong, honest, unassuming name it is, and the Old Man of Dixon Hill lives up to it.



"Uncle John, when were you born?"

"I don't remember that far back, suh," replies old John, with the dry smile of one who likes a joke, "but I was born at Cracker Neck, Sequatchie Valley, Overton County, Tenn. The county seat then was at Monroe. I lived in Overton County until 1856. I voted twice for Henry Clay; once when he was running against Polk and Dallas. I don't know who ran against him the other time. I wasn't quite 21 the first time—my birthday was in February—but they let me vote anyway."

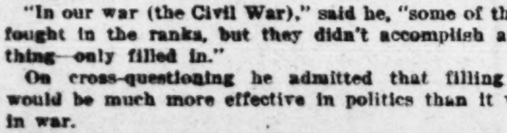
Fortunately, the Hon. Henry Clay may be put on the stand without the formality of a writ of habeas corpus. A search of the records reveals the fact that his career was somewhat analogous to that of our Mr. Bryan. He had ideas of his own and three times ran for the presidency. His first race was in 1824; his second in 1832 and his last in 1844. Polk and Dallas ran against him in 1844. Since Clay was a Kentuckian and John Smith lived in Tennessee, John Smith could have voted for him only for the presidential office; since the race of 1844 was Clay's last effort, John Smith's first ballot for him must have been cast either in 1824 or in 1832. John Smith never misses an election; the latter date is the more likely one. Therefore, John Smith was born not later than 1812 and now is at least 108 years old. And it is possible, though not probable, that he is 116.

When the car rolls out of Dixon on Steelbridge road it is almost a coast down the eastern wall of the magnificent bowl from Lick's, the last house out, to McMakin's Creek. Beyond McMakin's, on the crest of a ridge which decisively tells you whether or not you have a motor, there is a pleasant mottle of field and forest, in the heart of which stands a little, homelike cottage. A thick foretop of trees shades its front; along its side stands a weather-beaten fence whose gray pickets lean against each other like curious children, and on its porch, looking over beyond the azure Ozark horizon toward the faraway land of Tennessee, sits a big, brown, gray-bearded old man.

Consciously or unconsciously, the study of the human face may be one of your hobbies. In the face of this old man you would note three salient characteristics — the swarthiness of his complexion, the smoothness of his skin and the unusual formation of his nose. He is very brown and his face shows less wrinkles than that of many a man of 50. This detail is particularly noticeable on the back of his neck and on the backs of hands and fingers. His nose is broad and bulbous; the end of it, around his nostrils, is smoothly round, without a trace of modeling. He claims a strong predominance of Indian blood and has the shaggy, oblique eyebrow of the red man. His eyes are dark, with the bluish glaze characteristic of very old men, and he has a faultless head of iron-gray hair, which reminds one of Paderewski. He fills out the old Ozark summary, "Round as a log and much of a man;" and his only noticeable failing is a certain lack of physical balance.

This 108-year-old child of nature still has five front teeth, discerns a pen line or heavy pencil line at reading distance and readily hears a high-pitched voice at little more than the force of ordinary conversation. His pulse is a bit above the normal, with a sharp, even beat; he eats well, sleeps well and enjoys life. He has very definite opinions on things and does not care a tinker's embankment who knows it. He would not have one of Dr. Voronoff's famous glands as a gift; and while he does not exactly agree with Dr. Osler's idea of chloroforming every man over 70, he does not object to the doctor trying the experiment on himself to see how it would work out.

A leaf of good old Burley is much more than a decorative detail to old John and for the trifling matter of 107 years he found occasional use for a bit of good whisky. In the language of Mr. "Bugs" Baer, Uncle John would have made this last thing unanimous had not one Volstead interfered with a particularly unfortunate theory on how to keep a war won. He considers the Constitution complicated enough without the addition of the eighteenth amendment. "Less law and more enforcement" is his slogan; but he ruefully admits that this might better have been reversed in the case of Mr. Volstead's law. Anyway, says he, whisky has improved only in price since the day when 20 cents would buy a gallon of it and it was a shiftless man who did not own a "still."



Asked if he thought women had gone a step too far in demanding the vote, he replied that they had gone as much as two or three steps too far; that they only would mix politics a bit more, whereas politics, like some other necessaries, should be taken absolutely straight.

"In our war (the Civil War)," said he, "some of them fought in the ranks, but they didn't accomplish anything—only filled in."

On cross-questioning he admitted that filling in would be much more effective in politics than it was in war.

He asserts that the lot of the negro was rather inconvenient in the days of slavery, particularly where a brutal overseer was concerned, but does not admit that lynching was so common as at present. For instance, in the case of horse theft, the posse merely shot the thief off of the horse and brought back the horse. In those days, education was not such a necessity that people felt constrained to force it upon their children. The average of intelligence was such that the normal man could be depended on to make his way through the world without consulting a stack of books. Yet such as there was of it enjoyed a marked environment of solidity—the schoolhouses being built of large logs and the benches of smaller logs split in half and mounted with the split side up. The benches were finished in natural wood and were polished to a high degree of brilliancy by the application of homespun cloth worn by boys and girls. The idea of education was given a great impetus by the fact that the women furnished the wood for fuel.

Legal procedure has broadened and grown considerably since the old Sequatchie Valley days, according to Uncle John's statement. Whereas at present a case may be kept in court for 15 or 20 years, at that period many infractions of the law never got into court at all. The whipping post was a going concern—men were sentenced to receive a certain number of lashes. Since a whipping under any other name would afford an equal satisfaction to all concerned, quick-tempered citizens with a tendency to direct action occasionally effected a considerable saving of mileage and time for the criminal by whipping him at home.

"I remember one old man named Boggs," said he, "who died from a whipping given him for stealing a few ears of corn."

In cases of personal disagreement, if a reasonable amount of argument failed to convince a man, it was considered quite proper to impinge a fistful of brute force upon his face or disarrange his system with whatever might happen to be lying around loose.

The ancient Tennesseeans were not at all narrow-minded concerning such affairs. If a man lacked confidence in his face or fist or was a conscientious objector to pugilism, he had the option of being placed back-to-back with his opponent, each of them holding a loaded pistol. At the word they walked a stipulated number of steps, wheeled and fired until someone fell or changed his mind or the ammunition gave out. Such contests seldom were called off on account of darkness, because the average Tennesseean could shoot either eye out of a squirrel, or

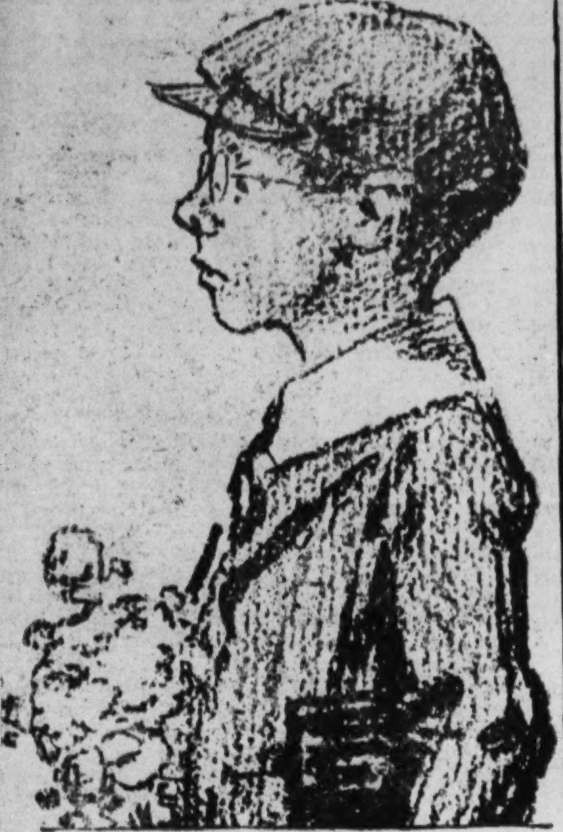
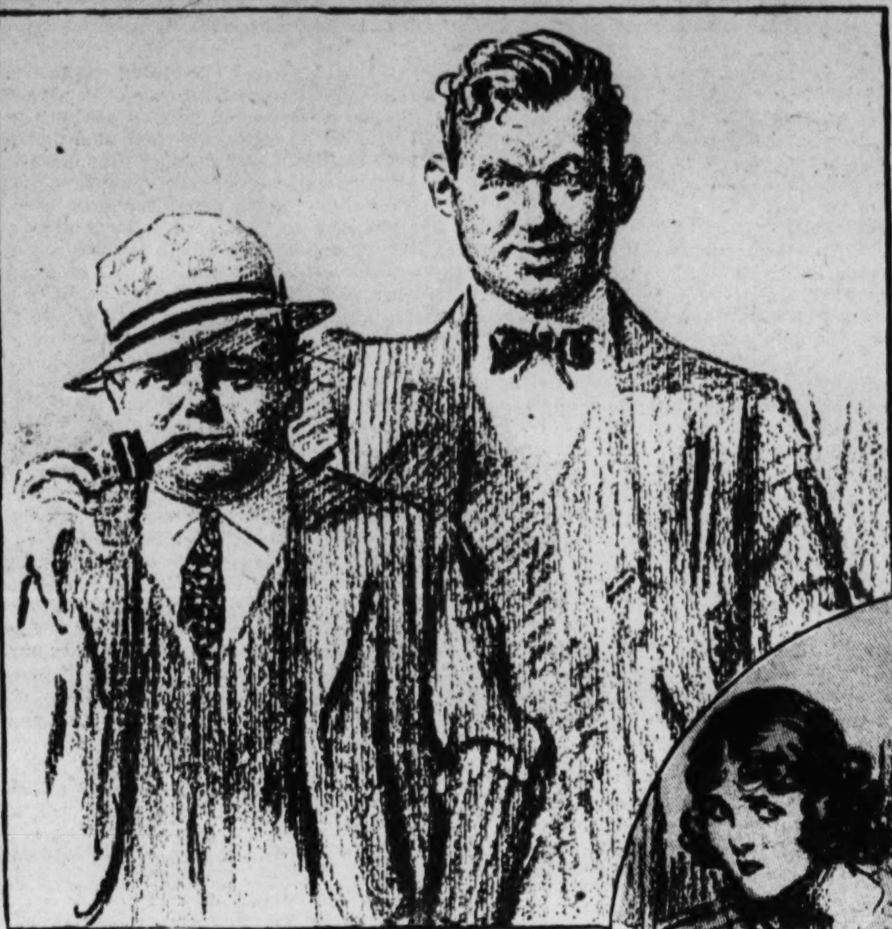
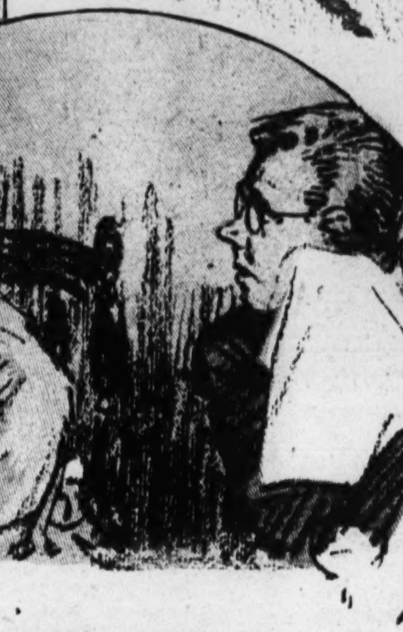
THE SENTIMENTAL MALE



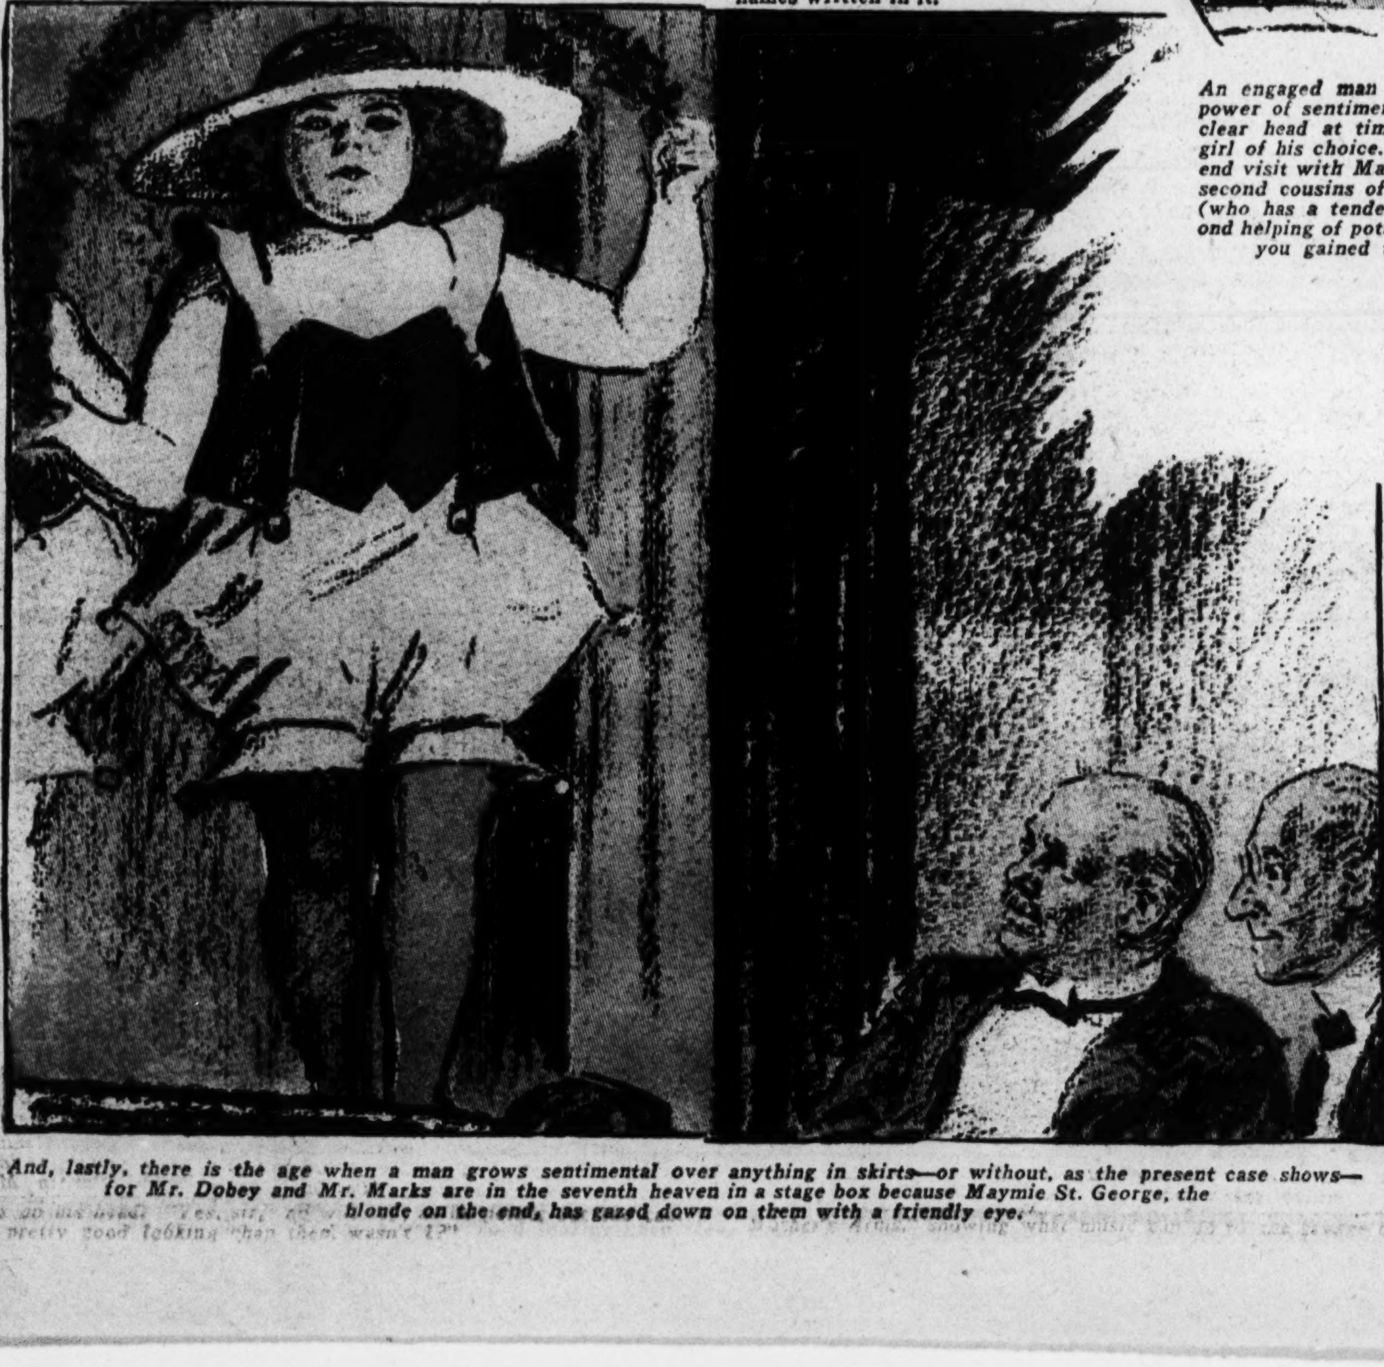
First signs of sentiment in Johnny begin to show up about the time Johnny is promoted to the seventh grade in grammar school, over which Miss Ethel Hodges presides, a being who causes Johnny no end of premature flutterings around the heart. The flowers, some bedraggled late growers, are from Johnny's backyard garden and are destined for Miss Hodges' desk at school.



The college friendship stuff. Old Joe Briggs and good old "Snaggs" Tousey are reunioning at college. Joe and "Snaggs" never had much of anything in common when they were in college and they haven't seen each other since, but they are getting positively emotional over "Dear Alma Mater," "All boys together," and if they get a third old grad to join in they are going to give the old college yell with a row-de-dow on the end. Joe has his old eating club hat, with all the names written in it.



An engaged man is supposed to have reached the nth power of sentimentality. Maybe so, but he has a pretty clear head at times, and it jars now and then on the girl of his choice. For example, here's Fred on a week-end visit with Mabel, who is being looked over by some second cousins of Fred's. Fred has just begged Mabel (who has a tendency to embonpoint) to lay off a second helping of potatoes. "They're fattening, and you know you gained three pounds last week, honey!"



And, lastly, there is the age when a man grows sentimental over anything in skirts—or without, as the present case shows—for Mr. Dobey and Mr. Marks are in the seventh heaven in a stage box because Maymie St. George, the blonde on the end, has gazed down on them with a friendly eye.

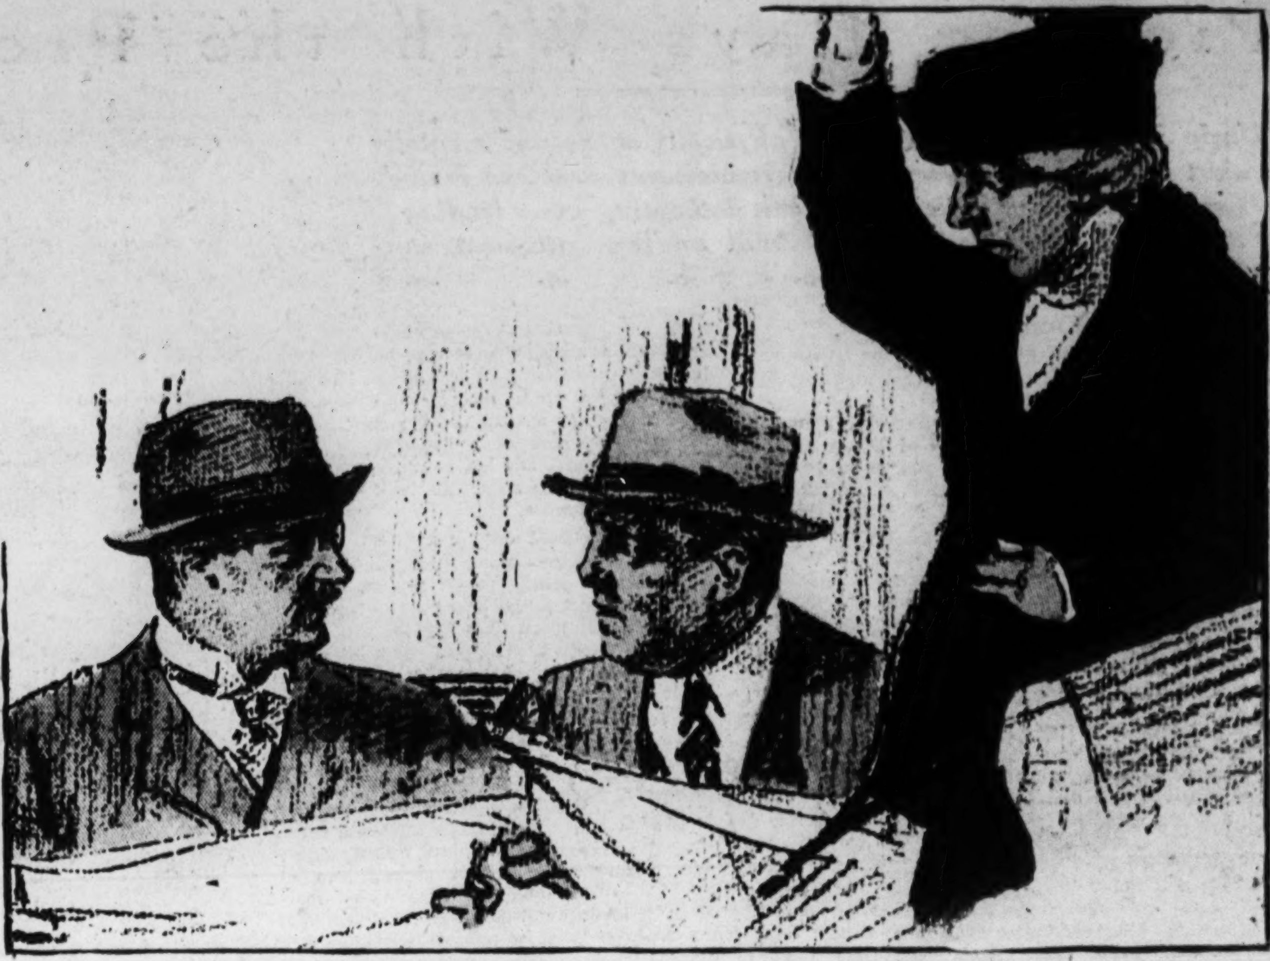
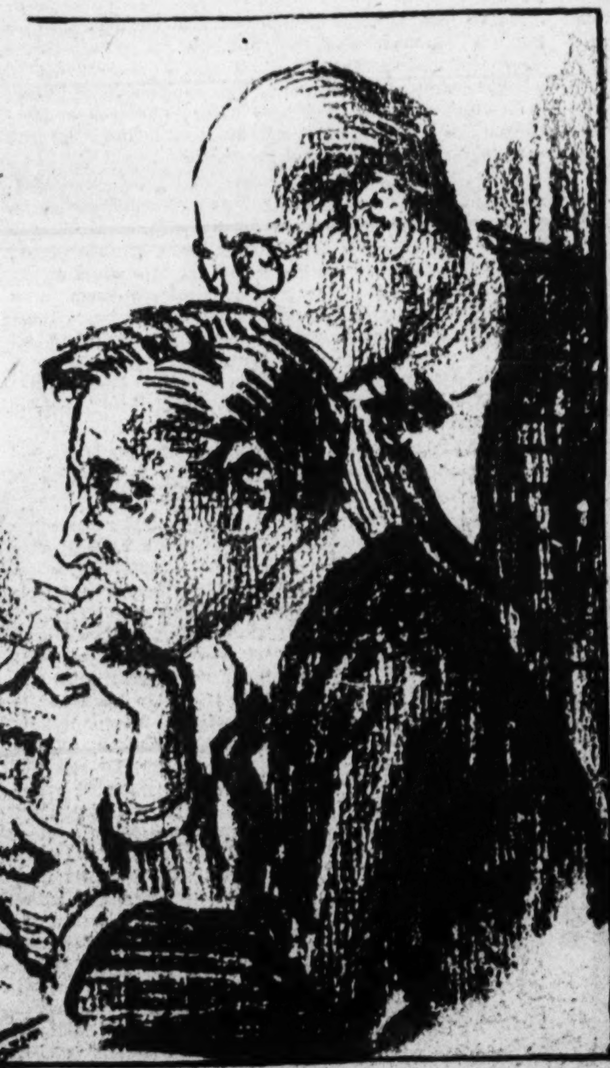
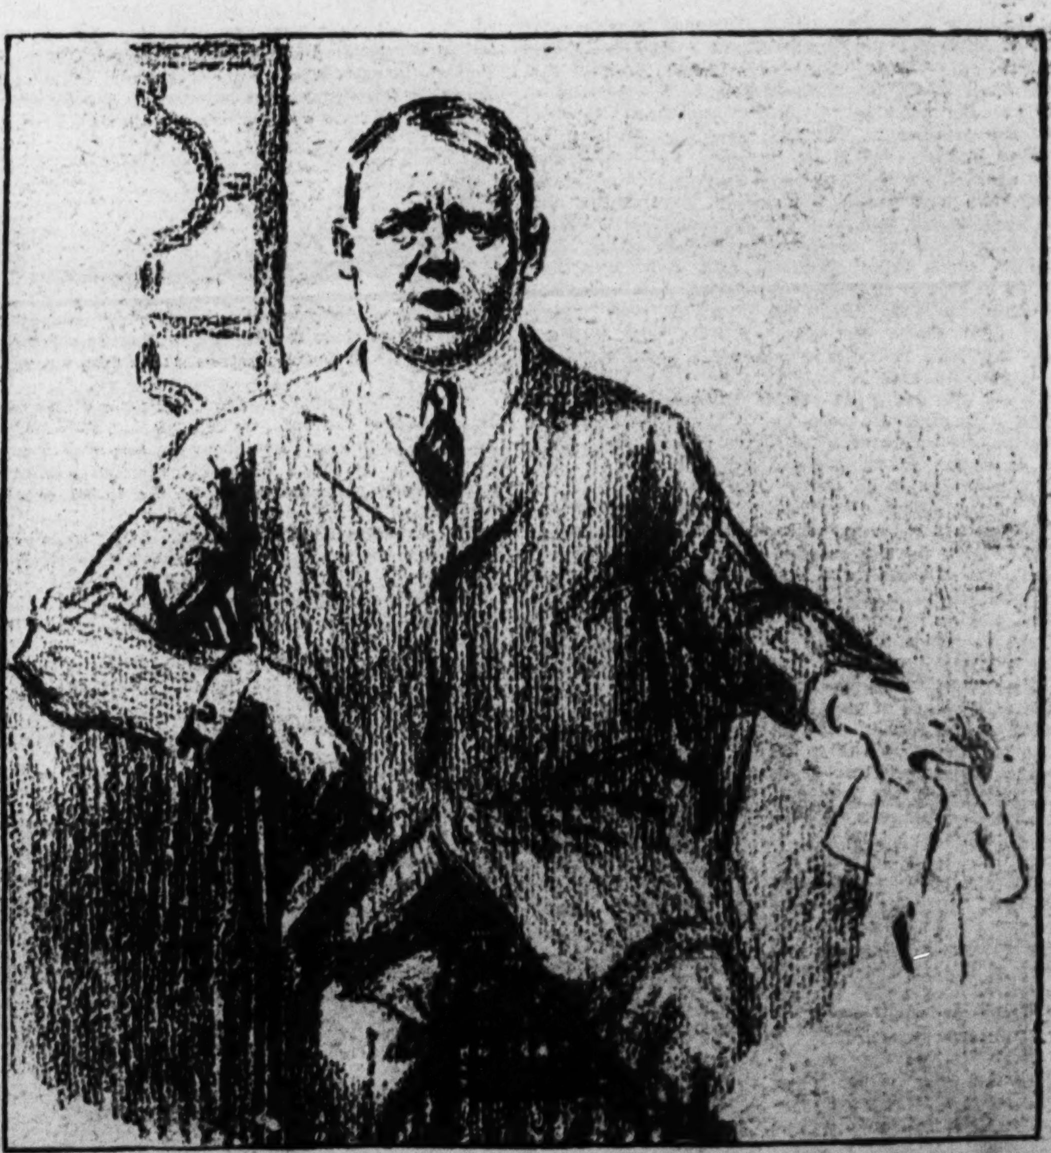
Sentiment in business. Mr. Rouse is great on the sentimental side of business—that is, if it doesn't conflict with the profits. He is going to give "his boys" in the iron foundry concern a big "100 per cent American" banner to hang on the factory walls—if the profits this month reach a given point. And maybe he will give the Poles and the Finns (who won't understand it anyway) a little talk during the noon hour on the "getting together spirit of modern industry."



The man who grows sentimental over the past—"a little over one year back, when prohibition was just a fool idea, not a reality."



ul burst of sentimentality in the average male of the hair begins to thin out on top he loves to show you pic- well lovingly over the pictures taken when he was ead. "Yes, sir," he will say, as he points out the cabi- od looking chap then, wasn't I?"



Mr. Lew Waldron, of the cloak and suit business, is waxing sentimental over the sweet strains of a cabaret orchestra. With nothing more than a glass of one-half of 1 per cent to give impetus, Lew is coming strong on the second chorus of "I'm in Heaven When I'm in My Mother's Arms," showing what music can do to the savage breast.
